GERMANS DROP 'SUPER-BOMBS' IN TERRIFYING ATTACK UPON LONDON

Nazis Using Biggest Planes in Effort To Force Quick Showdown

Goering Directing What Many Believe Is Major Drive To Shock Great Britain into Surrendering; Berlin Reports Destruction of British Factories, Arsenals and Fuel Stores; Many Planes Thrown into Action

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Sept. 9 (Monday) — Germany loosed on London today her biggest bombing planes laden with new "super-bombs."

Both the craft and the explosives are of the deadly types reserved exclusively for Nazi knockout blows on special objectives.

In these new smashes in a concentrated effort to give the English defenses a paralyzing shock, Germany obviously sought a quick showdown in the war.

Everything indicated that the drive now would be continued with relentless fury to the full extent of the Reich's powers.

Speculation on whether "der tag" had come centered on the fact that Reichsmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering had assumed personal direction of the attack, which seemed unlimited in time and in the number of planes participating.

It was believed that Goering would not personally associate himself with anything but a major war action.

Returning German airmen agreed that the British anti-aircraft fire continued vigorously, but conveyed the impression that British fighter-plane defenses were losing force.

GERMAN PLANES BATTERED

One member of a propaganda company, returning from a flight over London, said anti-aircraft fire made the air extremely rough. The concussion of thousands of shell explosions threw his plane crew from their seats, he said, and many returning German machines were scarred by twenty or thirty shell fragments.

Some German fighter pilots, however, said they escorted bombers to and from England without having anything to do in the way of defense against British planes.

Fragmentary reports from Nazi bases in France and the low countries stressed the new attacks on London harbor and industrial regions, claiming factories, arsenals and fuel stores were destroyed.

There were occasional brief reports of attacks on Liverpool, Manchester, Southampton and other cities, but the assault on London overshadowed all else.

"Super-Bomb" Powerful

In mentioning the "super-bombs" for the first time, authorized German sources gave no description, but it was reported one such great missile was capable of leveling anything in a radius of 500 yards, and that the concussion tosses airplanes about like small boats in a wild sea, even at heights of several thousand feet.

(Whether these heaviest of German bombs used so far constitute the storied "secret weapon" of Adolf Hitler was not disclosed.

(But the Nazi shortwave radio in a German language broadcast heard in New York by CBS said the newly used bombs are so powerful that they destroy everything within a radius of 1,600 feet and "even human lungs cannot resist the terrific force of their explosion.")

35 Planes in Fleet

The midnight wave of the heaviest type bombers with their cargoes designed for sudden and widespread death and destruction numbered about thirty-five planes.

The "super-fleet" followed masses of other planes hurled against England on a scale equalling the great assaults against London Saturday night.

Returning German fliers reported extensive fires in London and that they "apparently had spread to some extent."

Pillars of fire lighting the great target of London for many miles guided German bombers directly to their mission of destruction early today, German authorities announced.

Launch Many Attacks

The raiders have been roaring away toward England since the early evening hours of Sunday, the Germans declared, bent on "continuing the work of destruction of

Delayed Draft Plan Favored by Senate Leaders

Expected To Get Together with House and Adjust Differences

By EDWIN B. HAAKINSON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8. (AP)—Senate supporters of peacetime conscription expressed general dissatisfaction today with the delayed draft amendment adopted by the House last night before it passed the Burke-Wadsworth selective service bill by a vote of 263 to 149.

At the same time, both Democratic leader Barkley of Kentucky, and acting Republican Leader Austin of Vermont said that this and other differences between Senate and House versions of the compulsory military training legislation should be adjusted speedily by a joint House-Senate Committee.

By a seven-vote margin, 207 to 200, the House directed a 60-day recruiting drive, stimulated by a presidential proclamation, before any men were conscripted to supply the first quota of 400,000 trainees for the army.

Under this proposal, advanced by Rep. Fish (R-NY), the registration of prospective trainees would be carried out, but the draft would be applied only to fill out the differences between the number of volunteers and the quota.

Call after Jan. 1

After next Jan. 1, the president could call for an additional quota of 400,000, and, after another 60 days, invoke the draft if there were insufficient volunteers.

Senator Connally (D-Tex), who helped defeat a similar proposal in the Senate forty-three to forty-one, said "this attempted mixture of voluntary and compulsory systems would delay and confuse the whole program."

Senators said there would be less difficulty over other Senate-House differences and some predicted final congressional action would send the first peacetime military conscription bill to the White House before this week ends.

Leaders indicated that once this was done, they would renew a drive for Congressional adjournment, or at least a recess until after the November elections.

A possible snag for this schedule is Senate action on the excess profits tax bill, now pending before the Senate Finance Committee.

Chairman Harrison (D-Miss) was forced to abandon plans for Senate consideration early this week because of failure of defense advisers and treasury officials to agree on tax concessions for construction of new defense facilities. Harrison

HER SON AGAIN A KING

Michael, for the second time King of Rumania, is seen with his mother, the Princess Helen of Greece, on one of the boy's visits. Princess Helen, who divorced Carol when he showed his preference for Magda Lupescu, has been recalled from Germany to watch over her 18-year-old son, according to report.

British Troops Reach Egypt To Battle Italians

Large Force Arrives on Biggest Convoy Used during the War

By LARRY ALLEN

CAIRO, Sept. 8 (AP)—Britain reinforced her middle east fighting forces with thousands of troops landed on the sun-baked quays here today from the biggest convoy ever to reach Egypt.

A long line of big transports splashed into the light green waters of the harbor during the day after an uneventful voyage from England in which they reported not a single Italian warship sighted.

The exact number of troops disembarking from ships was not disclosed but officials said there were "several thousand." They will be dispatched immediately to fronts "somewhere in the middle east."

In addition to ground troops, there were many Australian airmen, hundreds of nurses from England and Scotland and several hundred reinforcements for the navy and Royal Air force.

Millions Taken Away from Carol By New Dictator

Stock Holdings, Credits and Titles All Sequestered

BUCHAREST, Sept. 8 (AP)—Former King Carol's stock holdings, his credits and titles, with an estimated value of millions of dollars, were ordered sequestered today by Gen. Ion Antonescu, Rumania's new military dictator.

(Carol, who abdicated Friday in favor of his son, eighteen-year old Crown Prince Mihai after appointing Gen. Antonescu premier with dictatorial powers, arrived today in Lugano, Switzerland—the first halt in his exile.)

The order to sequester the banished monarch's property was one of a batch of sensational decrees signed by the new pro-axis "chief of state."

Prayers for Mihai

By his command, too, the populace of Rumania knelt today to pray for Mihai and to "curse those responsible for the nation's troubles."

The capital's churches were jammed. Traffic stopped for one minute throughout the city. Pedestrians even knelt in front of the palace Mihai, guarded by steel-helmeted

Carol Arrives in Switzerland and Is Well Received

Crowd Cheers Former Monarch as He Enters Hotel

BERN, Switzerland, Sept. 8 (AP) — Carol of Rumania, a man without a country, rested tonight in free Switzerland, one of the few enduring refuges in a turbulent Europe which no longer offers a gracious living to ex-kings.

In flight since Friday from Bucharest where his eighteen-year-old son, the former crown prince Mihai, is the nominal ruler while a strong military dictator, Gen. Ion Antonescu, actually holds power, the banished monarch crossed the Swiss-Italian border at Chiasso late this afternoon.

After a twenty-two minute wait during which Alexandre Guaranesco, Rumanian minister to Switzerland, and a representative of the Swiss government boarded the train of ten Rumanian coaches and a dining car proceeded to the resort town of Lugano where Carol alighted.

He was wearing civilian clothes, a soft gray hat and eye glasses. He appeared to be in good spirits.

Crowd Cheers Carol

When Carol emerged, crossing the sidewalk to enter an automobile, the crowd cheered. Carol looked up, smiled, and waved his hand, and the car rolled swiftly to the hotel where an apartment had been engaged for the night.

How long he would remain in Lugano, or in Switzerland, were matters of conjecture.

Just as puzzling was the question of whether red-haired Magda Lupescu, Sarol's woman friend of many years, was on the train.

There was a red-haired woman in the party of twenty-nine that followed Carol from Bucharest and she looked like pictures of Mme. Lupescu, but Erwin Clauss, one of Carol's aides, declared at Milan, Italy, when the train halted there, that this woman was a Madame Lorenz.

At none of the stops the train made — at Milan, Cervignano di Friuli and Chiasso — and finally at Lugano did "Madame Lorenz" appear. At Lugano the whole party remained on board while Carol was driven away to the hotel.

Not in Carol's Car

A railroad man said "Madame Lorenz" travelled with her father in a different car from Carol's.

Clauss likewise denied that the bullet holes and marks on the train —about thirty were counted when the train stopped at Milan — were made in the reported attack on the train by Iron Guardists Saturday as it drew near the Rumanian-Yugoslav border. Clauss said the

Heavy Explosives Fall Near Parliament Houses In War's Greatest Raid

Associated Press Building Repeatedly Shaken in New Broadside; Brief Lulls Followed by Increasingly Furious Attacks by Fleets of Invading Planes; Extent of Damage Is Unknown

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 9 (Monday)—German bombers began sweeping over London in waves again an hour before dawn today and loosed heavy explosives in the vicinity of the Houses of Parliament.

The Associated Press building, in the center of the area ringed by dropping bombs, was repeatedly shaken by the heaviest shocks yet felt in the capital.

Rooftop observers there saw a big cluster of heavy bombs drop in the general direction of the Houses of Parliament but there was no immediate indication where they struck.

BRICKS FALL ON ROOF

A shower of bricks fell on the roof of the Associated Press building after a heavy bomb exploded 150 yards away.

The wave-bombing came as a new broadside against London after Nazi planes had presented a variety of tactics of onslaught.

Dive bombers strafed the outer areas of the great city.

Other planes, incessantly circling, showered incendiary and explosive projectiles on both the inner and outer sections of the capital of the empire.

In the opening stages, starting at dusk Sunday, the great attack followed the same pattern as the Saturday night-Sunday morning raid in which 400 persons were killed.

There was a lull around midnight. Then the tireless raiders developed a stronger assault than before and the explosions became progressively heavier and more frequent.

Two big bombs whirred down and burst within a mile of the Associated Press building.

Launch Mass Attacks

Massed Nazi warplanes flew against the added threat of an overnight thunderstorm to lay new horrors of demolition and fire across London today, but a British air ministry official commented, "we have not reached the top note of this crescendo of air attack."

Even so, the great raid was acknowledged as the equal in ferocity of that which killed 400 and maimed 1,300 to 1,400 persons in the besieged capital Saturday night.

The air ministry official, calling this "undoubtedly a very critical month of war," admitted, "even if we had four times as many or an even greater proportion of fighters, it would still be impossible to prevent some of the bombers from reaching the capital."

Huddle in Shelters

The homeless and the bereaved, poor and rich, men, women and children, huddled in air raid shelters as the German bombers swept over the capital, roaring up from the Thames estuary with their deadly loads.

They came first at twilight after a day of scattered fighting along the coast north of Dover.

Maine Election Today Likely To Show 1940 Trend

Politicians Greatly Interested in First Test of Strength

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8 (AP) — Maine's election tomorrow, bringing the first direct 1940 test of Republican and Democratic strength, will herald, too, the end of the summer campaign doldrums and the opening of intensified political activity.

Wendell Willkie will begin on Thursday a 7,200-mile tour through the middle and far west, the Republican presidential nominee's first extensive campaign trip.

Henry A. Wallace, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, already on a speech-making tour, will continue it by visiting Nebraska for a series of addresses.

President Roosevelt has given no indication that he has changed his mind about not making any formal campaign speeches.

Accepting the Democratic nomination for a third term, he said "I shall not have the time or the inclination to engage in purely political debate."

Not Long in Washington

In a statement today, the Republican National Committee recalled what Mr. Roosevelt had said and commented that he had been absent from Washington thirty-two days

'Miss America' Is Without a Steady Beau, She Says

But Miss Fraces Marie Burke Would Like Tall, Manly One

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 8 (AP)—Miss Frances Marie Burke of Philadelphia, chosen for her beauty, charm and talent, as the 1940 "Miss America," is a girl without a steady boy friend, she confided today.

But, gentlemen, don't step up unless you're "tall and manly."

Miss Francis Marie Burke, 19, of Philadelphia, elevated at the Atlantic City beauty pageant early today from the rank of "Miss Philadelphia' to that of "Miss America," laid down these specifications for an escort, but said they were virtually the only requirements. She is five-feet-nine herself, weighs 120 pounds and has brown hair.

Answering scores of questions so that the nation might better know "Miss America," she said:

"The only thing I want to be now is a top-notch model. Of course, if I get a chance to get on the stage or in the movies, that would make me very happy, but my main ambition right now is to be a model."

Runner-up in the "Miss America" contest was Rosemary LaPlanche, 18, "Miss California," who had been the popular favorite and who burst into tears as another girl won out. Miss Burke succeeds Patricia Donnelly of Detroit as the titlist.

Daladier and Two Others Held Under Law Authorized by Former

(By The Associated Press)

RIOM, France, Sept. 8 — Three deposed top leaders of old France held in the "war blame" cases—Former Premiers Edouard Daladier and Paul Reynaud and Former Generalissimo Maurice Gustave Gamelin—were taken into custody under a decree authored by Daladier himself, it was disclosed today.

The three former officials, arrested yesterday, are being held in strict "administrative internment" at Chateau Chazeron.

Their detention was ordered under authority of a decree law enacted by Daladier after war broke out Sept. 3, 1939, providing for internment of persons considered dangerous to the national defense and public safety.

Law Still in Force

The authoritarian Petain government issued a supplementary decree last Tuesday stating the Daladier law remains in force until a peace treaty is signed and that persons under its provisions could be placed in special administrative internment.

Thus, while no definite charges have been placed against the officials as yet, it was possible to put them under guard. The Supreme Court in conducting an investigation of those responsible for France's unpreparedness and entry into the war and on the results of its findings will depend the charges and eventual trials.

The only persons against whom definite charges have been placed are former air ministers Pierre Cot and Guy La Chambre, who are understood to be in the United States.

Mandel Accused

Former interior Minister Georges Mandel, accused of plotting against the security of the state, faces charges before a military tribunal and it is believed he might also be brought before the Riom court. He is in custody.

Just how many persons eventually will be brought to trial at Riom is unknown. A large number are being questioned in the current investigation and it would not be contrary to general belief if many more temporary detentions are ordered.

Unable To Prevent Raids

The British, still fighting back, hour after hour, acknowledged through an air ministry official that it would be impossible to keep all raiders from the city, even with four times the RAF's present numbers.

The official said the "top note" of the German attacks had not yet been reached.

As in the Saturday night and Sunday morning onslaughts, the Germans used every available type of airplane. Level-bombers at high altitude dropped tons of explosives and were followed up by the screaming dive-bombers which are the Nazis' pet terror weapons.

Administration Seeking To Bar Fifth Columnists from Country

By J. C. STARK

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8 (AP)—Classing it as urgently needed to aid the drive on Fifth Columnists, the administration is seeking quick passage of legislation to purge citizen rolls of many "doubtful" Americans and generally tighten citizenship requirements.

Under the stress of world conditions, Congressional right-of-way has been gained for a long-standing project to revise and codify existing nationality laws. It is expected to come up this week in the House where it has been pending since June.

Thousands of persons said by officials to be American citizens in name only would lose their citizenship, as would those serving in any foreign army, if the measure is enacted.

Under present law, Americans serving in a foreign army retain their citizenship unless they swear allegiance to a foreign sovereign.

Would Affect Many

The proposed change would affect many American volunteers in British military services—mainly the Canadian expeditionary forces—who were not required to swear allegiance to King George VI.

More important, however, officials say, is the need for establishing stricter requirements regarding persons who have inherited citizenship but through long resistence and political attachments abroad are alien to American principles.

Clarification of existing laws also is needed, officials contend, to eliminate difficulties in establishing whether some persons are citizens and thus entitled to United States protection abroad.

One provision would make loss of citizenship the penalty for voting in a political election in a foreign state.

Another, recommended by the war department to check Fift Column activities, would withdraw citizenship from persons born in any incorporated territory—Alaska and Hawaii—after six months residence in a foreign country of which either of their parents had been nationals.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8 (AP) — Maine's election tomorrow, bringing the first direct 1940 test of Republican and Democratic strength, will herald, too, the end of the summer campaign doldrums and the opening of intensified political activity.

Wendell Willkie will begin on Thursday a 7,200-mile tour through the middle and far west, the Republican presidential nominee's first extensive campaign trip.

Henry A. Wallace, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, already on a speech-making tour, will continue it by visiting Nebraska for a series of addresses.

President Roosevelt has given no indication that he has changed his mind about not making any formal campaign speeches.

Accepting the Democratic nomination for a third term, he said "I shall not have the time or the inclination to engage in purely political debate."

Not Long in Washington

In a statement today, the Republican National Committee recalled what Mr. Roosevelt had said and commented that he had been absent from Washington thirty-two days

Heavy Explosives Fall Near Parliament Houses In War's Greatest Raid

Associated Press Building Repeatedly Shaken in New Broadside; Brief Lulls Followed by Increasingly Furious Attacks by Fleets of Invading Planes; Extent of Damage Is Unknown

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 9 (Monday)—German bombers began sweeping over London in waves again an hour before dawn today and loosed heavy explosives in the vicinity of the Houses of Parliament.

The Associated Press building, in the center of the area ringed by dropping bombs, was repeatedly shaken by the heaviest shocks yet felt in the capital.

Rooftop observers there saw a big cluster of heavy bombs drop in the general direction of the Houses of Parliament but there was no immediate indication where they struck.

BRICKS FALL ON ROOF

A shower of bricks fell on the roof of the Associated Press building after a heavy bomb exploded 150 yards away.

The wave-bombing came as a new broadside against London after Nazi planes had presented a variety of tactics of onslaught.

Dive bombers strafed the outer areas of the great city.

Other planes, incessantly circling, showered incendiary and explosive projectiles on both the inner and outer sections of the capital of the empire.

In the opening stages, starting at dusk Sunday, the great attack followed the same pattern as the Saturday night-Sunday morning raid in which 400 persons were killed.

There was a lull around midnight. Then the tireless raiders developed a stronger assault than before and the explosions became progressively heavier and more frequent.

Two big bombs whirred down and burst within a mile of the Associated Press building.

Launch Mass Attacks

Massed Nazi warplanes flew against the added threat of an overnight thunderstorm to lay new horrors of demolition and fire across London today, but a British air ministry official commented, "we have not reached the top note of this crescendo of air attack."

Even so, the great raid was acknowledged as the equal in ferocity of that which killed 400 and maimed 1,300 to 1,400 persons in the besieged capital Saturday night.

The air ministry official, calling this "undoubtedly a very critical month of war," admitted, "even if we had four times as many or an even greater proportion of fighters, it would still be impossible to prevent some of the bombers from reaching the capital."

Huddle in Shelters

The homeless and the bereaved, poor and rich, men, women and children, huddled in air raid shelters as the German bombers swept over the capital, roaring up from the Thames estuary with their deadly loads.

They came first at twilight after a day of scattered fighting along the coast north of Dover.

Two Embassies Deny Germany Financed a "Red Militia"

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8 (AP)—The German and Mexican embassies declared today that there was no truth in a statement by Elliott Roosevelt, son of the president, that Germany had financed a "Red militia" of 200,000 men in Mexico.

A German embassy spokesman said: "There is no such an undertaking in Mexico, no such an organization as a 'Red Militia.' The Mexican government is fully capable of managing its own affairs."

The Mexican embassy had this to say:

"The statements are so evidently

(By The Associated Press)

RIOM, France, Sept. 8 — Three deposed top leaders of old France held in the "war blame" cases—Former Premiers Edouard Daladier and Paul Reynaud and Former Generalissimo Maurice Gustave Gamelin—were taken into custody under a decree authored by Daladier himself, was disclosed today.

The three former officials, arrested yesterday, are being held in strict "administrative internment" at Chateau Chazeron.

Their detention was ordered under authority of a decree law enacted by Daladier after war broke out Sept. 3, 1939, providing for internment of persons considered dangerous to the national defense and public safety.

Law Still in Force

The authoritarian Petain government issued a supplementary decree last Tuesday stating the Daladier law remains in force until a peace treaty is signed and that persons under its provisions could be placed in special administrative internment.

Thus, while no definite charges have been placed against the officials as yet, it was possible to put them under guard. The Supreme Court in conducting an investigation of those responsible for France's unpreparedness and entry into the war and on the results of its findings will depend the charges and eventual trials.

The only persons against whom definite charges have been placed are former air ministers Pierre Cot and Guy La Chambre, who are understood to be in the United States.

Mandel Accused

Former interior Minister Georges Mandel, accused of plotting against the security of the state, faces charges before a military tribunal and it is believed he might also be brought before the Riom court. He is in custody.

Just how many persons eventually will be brought to trial at Riom is unknown. A large number are being questioned in the current investigation and it would not be contrary to general belief if many more temporary detentions are ordered.

Administration Seeking To Bar Fifth Columnists from Country

By J. C. STARK

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8 (AP)—Classing it as urgently needed to aid the drive on Fifth Columnists, the administration is seeking quick passage of legislation to purge citizen rolls of many "doubtful" Americans and generally tighten citizenship requirements.

Under the stress of world conditions, Congressional right-of-way has been gained for a long-standing project to revise and codify existing nationality laws. It is expected to come up this week in the House where it has been pending since June.

Thousands of persons said by officials to be American citizens in name only would lose their citizenship, as would those serving in any foreign army, if the measure is enacted.

Under present law, Americans serving in a foreign army retain their citizenship unless they swear allegiance to a foreign sovereign.

Would Affect Many

The proposed change would affect many American volunteers in British military services—mainly the Canadian expeditionary forces—who were not required to swear allegiance to King George VI.

More important, however, officials say, is the need for establishing stricter requirements regarding persons who have inherited citizenship but through long resistence and political attachments abroad are alien to American principles.

Clarification of existing laws also is needed, officials contend, to eliminate difficulties in establishing whether some persons are citizens and thus entitled to United States protection abroad.

One provision would make loss of citizenship the penalty for voting in a political election in a foreign state.

Another, recommended by the war department to check Fift Column activities, would withdraw citizenship from persons born in any incorporated territory—Alaska and Hawaii—after six months residence in a foreign country of which either of their parents had been nationals.

Roosevelts Hear Prayer for Peace

Attend Church at Hyde Park with Crown Princess Martha

By DOUGLAS B. Cornell

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sept. 8 (AP) — Observing a national day of prayer for world peace—as he had asked his fellow Americans of all creeds and denominations to do—President Roosevelt heard the rector of St. James Episcopal church ask God today for "a peace which is the fruit of righteousness and justice."

With Mrs. Roosevelt, Crown Princess Martha and the Countess Ostgard of Nazi-conquered Norway, the president sat in the second pew of the dimly sunlit sanctuary and heard the Rev. Frank R. Wilson pray for peace at a time when "many of us feel that we are on the brink of the greatest catastrophe of all time."

Formally noticing the President's presence and his proclamation of a day of prayer, the rector asked, "can the hand of the oppressor be stayed?"

"The President of the United States believes it can, with God's help," he added. "That is why he has called upon us to join in prayer."

After the service, the president drove back to his Hudson valley home to spend the day quietly.

Tomorrow, his luncheon guest will be Myron Taylor, just back from Europe, where he was the president's personal representative at the Vatican.

Heavy Explosives

700 attackers of Saturday night.

They came through drifting clouds from which occasional forked tongues of lightning darted, and between which the wan sickle of a new moon was occasionally visible.

Two barrage balloons plummeted down in flames, apparently struck by lightning.

London Streets Empty

The streets of the great city were empty save for fire trucks and ambulances and an occasional night worker who had to walk to his job.

Some managed to travel part way by subway. Trainmen quietly shepherded passengers in and out of the cars.

Sirens wailed through the deepening shadows and bomb explosions were heard, followed almost immediately by flashes of anti-aircraft fire to the east, where the full fury of yesterday's mass assault fell on docks and nearby slum areas.

Londoners, warned to air raid shelters by the alarm sounding at 7:58 p. m. (1:58 p. m., EST), braced themselves for another night of terror.

Apparently the twilight raiders broke through after stiff anti-aircraft and fighter opposition in the Dover area had given London daylight respite in a Sunday of comparative calm.

Barrage Like Picket Fence

Raiders also approached the city from the northwest, where a heavy barrage of anti-aircraft fire was thrown up like a picket fence.

Bursting shells flashed thickly in the darkening sky.

A second wave of Nazi bombers approached the east London area about three quarters of an hour after the warning sounded.

That made three waves taking part in the raid thus far.

Within a few seconds after the moan of warning sirens died away violent anti-aircraft fire broke out in central London.

This was followed by the screech of scream bombs and the boom of explosions.

Eight Nazi Planes Downed

An air ministry communique said that already eight enemy planes had been destroyed during the day and revised German losses yesterday, adding eleven more planes shot down, making the new total ninety-nine.

Observers in the area where the hostile planes were flying overhead described the reception of anti-aircraft fire as the heaviest since the great raids on London started.

The attackers' reappearance was signalled only a few minutes after it was reported here that Reichmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering had broadcast to the German people that he was watching waves of German bombers taking off for England.

It was the second raid warning of a sabbath otherwise calm and peaceful after the great all-night raid that ended at dawn. The daytime first warning lasted fifty-one minutes.

In areas not blasted by last night's storm of bombers people who had been window shopping and strolling in parks were returning home after their Sunday outing.

Other enemy planes were reported over southeast and southwest England, possibly heading for London.

In the eastern sky over the capital low-lying clouds reflected a pink glow. At times the new moon shone through.

After more than an hour and a half the raiders still were over the London area.

It was apparent they were taking refuge in the clouds, dropping their bombs seemingly indiscriminately from above them, while searchlights kept poking their long, white fingers into the ghostly, pale cloud banks.

A communique issued before the 7:58 p. m. alarm said:

"Since dawn this morning enemy activity was negligible until shortly before mid-day when a large force of enemy aircraft approached the coast north of Dover.

"They were promptly engaged by our fighters and anti-aircraft guns and only small formations were able to penetrate inland.

"These flew north to the Thames estuary where they were dispersed and driven off."

The damage was light, most of the bombs dropping in rural areas, although "some houses and a railway station were hit and a road temporarily blocked."

The southwest coast during the night formed London's first line of anti-aircraft defense.

Cliff Batteries in Action

Batteries on the high cliffs and promontories and dotting the inland reaches along the Thames put up the heaviest barrages of the war against the almost continuous waves of night raiders, twelve to fifteen planes in each formation.

Even so, about 500 planes of the German armada broke through to rake London, causing about 400 deaths and seriously injuring between 1,300 and 1,400 persons, according to official, preliminary estimates.

In Sunday's first daylight assault the anti-aircraft batteries brought down three planes. British fighting planes, swarming to the counter attack, got four more, it was announced. Three British fighters were lost but the pilot of one parachuted to safety.

The attack caused a fifty-one minute alarm in London, starting at 12:29 p. m. (6:29 a. m., E. S. T.) but no planes were sighted.

Although Berlin dispatches told of German claims of a continued all-out assault on Britain, reports available at nightfall did not support this.

London at least found daylight respite to number her dead and maimed, measure the damage and quench the fires left by the night-long German assault that rivaled the devastation of Warsaw and the raking of Chungking.

British Report Successes

The British chalked up successes on their own side of the air warfare ledger. Despite "poor visibility and vigorous defenses," the RAF last night dealt the following blows, according to tonight's air ministry announcement:

Hits at Calais, France, across from Dover, where bombs burst between the basin and the entrance to the harbor. Gun emplacements and searchlight batteries there also were bombed.

Bombardment of the Colmar airdrome, in France, where a hangar was hit and aircraft set afire.

Fires started by bombs at Boulogne, France.

Direct hits on barges at Ostend, Belgium, and heavy attacks on barges at Dunkerque, France.

Attacks on the Krupp works at Essen, war factories at Emden and Zweibrucken and the oil plant at Gelsenkirchen, all in Germany.

Bomb explosions on rail depots at Mannheim, Ehrang and Hamm, Germany.

Bomb-started fires in war material stores in Germany's black forest.

Airdrome attacks at Gilzerijen, Wesel and Krefeld, in Germany, Brussels in Belgium, Querqueville in France, and Soesterburg and Eindhoven, in the Netherlands.

"From these widespread operations all our aircraft returned," the communique concluded.

Greatest Raid of War

In the greatest raid thus far on London, German bombers during the night turned this sprawling capital into an arena of havoc. They raked both sides of the Thames, with its docks and factories but splattering bombs beyond the limits of strictly military objectives.

The port of London authority declared today that despite the battering "all services of the port will be maintained."

British officialdom, decaring that about one-fifth of the attacking planes, estimated at 500, either were shot down or disabled so as not to reach home, acknowledged the severity of the attack but asserted that the damage, "judged against the background of the war, is not serious."

The major smashes were on the two banks of the Thames east of the city, causing three "extensive" dock fires and a number of lesser blazes, but, said a communique, in the latter phases the bombing "appeared to be indiscriminate."

Bombs hit a utility plant, docks of the port of London authority among others, a tar refinery, two schools, a church and a chapel, and houses in various districts, as listed by official reports and independent surveys.

Outside London, on the Thames, an oil installation was set afire.

There were two periods of dusk-to-dawn alarm in London. The first started shortly after 4 p. m., and lasted ninety minutes in which the fiercest air battle of the war was fought from the Straits of Dover up the Thames estuary to London. The second alarm came at 8:32 p. m., and was lifted eight hours and eighteen minutes later.

BUT IT'S STILL HOME

This man saw his home wrecked by a Nazi bomb, but it didn't stop him from climbing up amid the ruins and nonchalantly getting a drink. This photo was passed by the British censor to show how calmly the average English resident is taking the air raids.

Millions Taken

soldiers, went to the cathedral to join in services.

A telegram from Adolf Hitler said the German fuehrer would follow Antonescu's "constructive work with great sympathy and interest" and predicted the new European order by which Rumania is bound to the Rome-Berlin axis would long continue.

The Iron Guard minister of culture issued decrees requiring all subordinates to resign immediately from the Masonic organization and prohibiting Jews from "continuing their blasphemy" of selling religious art objects or having even the remotest connection with anything artistic—even serving as ushers in motion picture theaters.

Both the capital's newspapers and government offices said today Mihai's mother, Princess Helen, had not yet arrived in Rumania, but was expected tomorrow or Tuesday.

At Brasov, funerals were held for those killed in last week's disorders. It was disclosed that a great many more people had been slain than at first reported.

At Galati, 313 German troopers, the elite Black Shirt guard, arrived with hundreds of trucks and many trains, as well as the vanguard of a fleet of twenty-five Nazi Danube river boats which are to remove 90,000 Germans from the province of Bessarabia, ceded by Rumania to Soviet Russia.

City Nearly Normal

The ban on Bucharest theaters, movie houses and gypsy orchestras was lifted today and the city began taking on a more normal aspect.

Flags still flew from every building and the streets still were littered with Iron Guard newspapers. Store windows held pictures of Corneliu Codreanu, slain Iron Guard leader, whose name ten days ago could only be whispered by his followers. Now he has become Rumania's number one national martyr.

The signing of the agreement by which Rumania ceded southern Dobruja to Bulgaria was mourned by one art gallery which displayed a picture of Queen Marie's private garden at Balcic, seaport and resort in the territory, where her heart lies buried as a challenge to her son, Carol, never to relinquish the territory she won for Rumania at the peace table.

Although Antonescu had told the people Rumania's past would be a "closed book," he himself opened it enough to allow investigations to be made by special commissions into what one government officer called "ten years of corruption and looting of the public treasury."

Attempts have already been started under the general's decrees to discover who got some of the huge sums of money spent for armaments, where former premiers and cabinet ministers got their wealth, who made profits out of foreign money deals, what happened to money appropriated for the youth movement and what cabinet members did with the semi-official "slush funds."

Police Conference To Open Sessions Today

OCEAN CITY, Md., Sept. 8 (AP) — The Maryland Police Association's third quarterly meeting will be held here tomorrow and Tuesday.

Marcus H. Miles, Sparrows Point chief of police, said J. Edgar Hoover, Federal Bureau of Investigation chief; Governor Herbert R. O'Conor and Mayor Howard W. Jackson of Baltimore had been invited to speak briefly.

Other speakers include Judge T. Owen Knotts, second judicial circuit, Denton; States Attorney William G. Kerbin, Jr., of Worcester county, and State Senator Thomas F. Johnson.

Blue and the Gray Memorial Concert Scheduled for Sunday

SHARPSBURG, Md., Sept. 8 (AP)—The seventh annual memorial concert to the Blue and the Gray will be held next Sunday at 4 p. m. on the Antietam national battlefield site, scene of the bloody fighting in the Civil War seventy-eight years ago.

From a small beginning in 1934, the event has grown to be one of the outstanding musical treats in the western section of Maryland and thousands of visitors are expected.

This year's guests organization will be the Hagerstown High school band under direction of Victor J. Marietta.

While the Hagerstown band was organized in 1939, it is rapidly attaining a high standard among musical organizations and now numbers 50 members.

The concert may be termed "Antietam's own," as no similar program is conducted each year at any of the other national historical parks.

The program includes a parade through the avenue of state flags to the rostrum, and lowering of the stars and stripes by the American Legion during the playing of the national anthem.

The union and confederate armies battled on the site Sept. 17, 1862.

Marietta, director of instrumental music in Hagerstown high schools, was director of music for the northeastern Pennsylvania School Music Association in 1936 and 1937.

Poultry Raisers To Convene Wednesday

COLLEGS PARK, Md., Sept. 8 (AP) — Outstanding leaders and officials of the poultry industry will speak at the annual three-day poultry products grading and marketing school at the University of Maryland beginning Wednesday.

The school's purpose, as outlined by those in charge, is to help Maryland poultry producers and dealers solve their egg and poultry grading and marketing problems.

"It is particularly timely as active enforcement of the Maryland fresh egg law has created a great demand for better quality Maryland eggs," the University Extension Service reported.

Speakers include Dr. A. E. Van Wagenen and H. E. Botsford, Cornell University; H. G. F. Hamman, United States Egg and Poultry Marketing Service; Dr. C. W. Knox, U. S. Department of Agriculture, and R. R. Slocum, agriculture marketing service.

Demonstrations of various methods of producing, handling and distributing eggs and other poultry products will be given each day.

In addition, the largest equipment for packaging, grading and marketing of poultry and eggs will be displayed and demonstrated.

fifteen-car trains bound for duty in Egypt and Palestine.

"We are glad to be here though we hated to leave our families in England," said one soldier. "But we know our forces there can give Hitler more than he wants and we've come down here to clean up the Italian side of this war."

"We'll wind this thing up as soon as possible," commented an officer.

The new batch of troops is composed largely of men who fought in France and represents a cross section of the British army.

Boarding several of the transports, I found the soldiers, nurses, sailors and fliers in excellent spirits and "R'aring to go."

"I'm anxious to get into a plane and take a crack at the Italians," one youthful Australian pilot said. "From what I've heard and judging from the RAF's successes, it ought to be easy to bring down at least one plane every day I go up."

Another said the entire voyage was without incident. "We got a big laugh one night when we heard a Berlin broadcast that our ship had been sunk off North Ireland."

Many troops boarded trains for their new posts immediately after disembarking and receiving a welcome from Lieut. Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, commanded of the middle forces.

bullet marks were there when the train left Rumania.

Some fifty Iron Guardists were reported to have taken part in the attack on the train at the town of Timisoara. They asked the station master if the train would stop and he told them it would, but then telegraphed a nearby station to signal it to speed through.

As it sped past the men attacked with pistols and stones, while others seized a locomotive and pursued the royal train. Still others jumped in automobiles and tried to beat the train to the town of Jimbolia at the frontier. When this group reached the town soldiers halted them and arrested twenty.

Ruling Slated Today In Truck Dispute

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 8 (AP) — Federal Judge George W. McClintic is scheduled to rule tomorrow on an application of Evans Lines, Inc. for a temporary injunction restraining five other trucking concerns from interfering with its shipments.

Man Found Beaten to Death near His Car

FREDERICK, Md., Sept. 8. (AP)—The body of Charles Saylor, 33, of near New Midway, was found on the highway beside his automobile near Union Chapel early today, victim of what Dr. Howard J. Maldeis, chief state medical examiner, described as a "severe beating."

Dr. Maldeis said Saylor had apparently been beaten by fists, and that "exposure and alcoholism" were contributing causes of his death.

The body was found by J. Calvin Beard, a farmer, about 6 a. m. today on the Libertytown-Daysville road.

Sheriff Guy Anders of Frederick county, who began an investigation with Corp. W. J. May, said three negroes near Libertytown had been picked up for questioning. Anders said Saylor apparently had not been robbed.

Dr. Maldeis and Dr. R. W. Baer, Frederick county deputy medical examiner, performed an autopsy. Anders said Saylor is survived by five sisters and six brothers.

and present nineteen days since July 19.

The saying that "as Maine goes, so goes the nation," was discarded long ago, but politicians will watch tomorrow's results eagerly for indications of a trend or other political straws in the wind. Maine was one of the two states carried by Alf Landon, the 1936 Republican nominee.

In addition to choosing presidential electors, Maine voters will elect state officers, a senator and three members of the House of Representatives.

Other Primaries This Week

Besides the Maine election, this week will bring primaries in Hampshire, Vermont, and Washington. On Wednesday, Georgia will hold its primary.

Government officials are seeking an amendment to make this applicable also to persons born anywhere in the United States.

Other important provisions would:

Other Provisions

Remove American nationality from naturalized citizens for protracted residence abroad.

Require longer periods of residence in the United States for a person to transmit citizenship to a child born abroad.

Establish stricter rules for acquiring citizenship both by naturalization and inheritance.

Officials said they had not calculated the number of persons who would lose their citizenship under the measure but it would run into many thousands.

Under existing laws, officials said that many persons with doubtful claim to citizenship have a right to enter this country, regardless of their character, political views or criminal record.

Delayed Draft

Seek Compromise Today

The job of compromising the House and Senate differences on the training bill will begin tomorrow. House members of the conference committee, headed by Chairman May (D-Ky) of the Military Committee, were named last night. Chairman Sheppard (D-Tex) of the Senate Military Committee will head the Senate group, to be appointed tomorrow.

Aside from the House's sixty-day clause, the major difference to be ironed out is the age limit of men facing registration and possible conscription for twelve months service. The Senate approved a bracket from twenty-one to thirty years, inclusive, estimated to number 12,000,000 men, while the House voted for a range of twenty-one through forty-four, estimated at 24,000,000.

Senators said the war department favored the lower bracket.

No trouble is expected over the "draft industry" provision, as Congress members have designated it.

The Senate provision would allow the government to condemn and take over any factory needed for national defense production when its owners failed to cooperate.

The House voted to permit the government to take over plants under such circumstances on a rental or lease basis. The owners would be paid rent and could recover the plants later.

"Not a single one of the assertions made is correct."

The president's son said in an address last night at Lawton, Okla., that "while Mexico tells us that they have an army of only 100-and-some-odd thousand men I can tell you, and I know it for a fact, that there is an army that was officered and trained by former revolutionaries from Spain and there are 7,000 of them in Mexico today."

Roosevelt predicated his remarks with the assertion that "any danger that confronts this country doesn't lie all the way across the ocean."

Myron C. Taylor and his wife return to New York aboard the Excalibur. President Roosevelt's personal representative to the Holy See, Mr. Taylor recently was taken ill and was operated on in Europe. He declined to answer questions about his mission, said he was glad to be home at this crucial time in American affairs.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By EDWARD E. BOMAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

By MAX BOYD

The Nazi air force appears to be making a supreme attempt to shock England into surrender or to pave the way for troop landings before the expected end of good flying weather a week or two hence.

It is a little too early to say definitely that such attempt is under way. German communiques still speak of the damaging raids upon London as reprisals for British night attacks "on residential sections and other non-military objectives." But these characterizations may be intended only to justify the smashing attack, not to describe their nature.

Decisive Test Looms

There are many signs that England is in for a possibly decisive test within a matter of weeks.

One possible indication is the German announcement that bombers are being hurled against the enemy simultaneously from Denmark, Northern France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Northwest Germany. Another is the German statement that Reichsmarshal Herman Wilhelm Goering, head of the air force, is personally commanding the intensified attacks from his headquarters in Northern France.

Dismiss these announcements as part of the "war of nerves," if you like, and there remains the news that German raiders penetrated London's defenses Saturday night and early Sunday with greater success than ever before.

It can hardly be doubted that the German high command will be encouraged, by the admitted hits on industrial objectives and municipal services, to pound the British capital anew before this damage can be repaired.

Probably the most important indicator that there will be an almost continuous "all-out" German air attack during the next few days is the time element.

Weather men say that the visibility over the British isles begins to get bad, normally, around September 15—next Sunday. In some years the first fogs are a week or two early, in others a week or two late. But by the latter part of September they are almost always on hand, and the weather continues unfavorable for flying through most of the fall and winter.

If Britain survives the remaining period of good weather without being shocked into surrender or weakened for invasions by German troops landing under cover of fog and the lengthening nights, she will have a chance to make long strides toward neutralizing Nazi power by next spring.

Hitler is well aware of that, and he is likely to use every bit of his present numerical superiority in the air to make good the German boast that England would be forced to sue for peace by September 15.

There are several possible explanations for the increased success with which the Nazi airmen have penetrated British defenses. It may be due to British losses of fighter planes and pilots, to the exhaustion of pilots, to the destruction of some anti-aircraft installations or the shooting down of balloon barrages.

In measuring Britain's power to withstand further aerial onslaughts of equal or increased intensity, it must be kept in mind that her leaders have expected such attacks.

Only last week, Prime Minister Winston Churchill met Hitler's latest threat with a defiant "we can stand it."

Whether the British people actually can stand it may be apparent in a matter of weeks.

Nazis Using

the London harbor and industrial section."

Already, many British anti-aircraft batteries and searchlights have been destroyed by direct bomb hits, the Nazis related.

The British capital's famed arsenal borough of Woolwich and the southwest reaches of the city have been subjected to a concentrated, destructive scourge.

Bomb Large Factories

Following up their night-long, crippling blows of Saturday on London and the British industrial heart, the Germans reported they bombed several large factories in southwest London, and a warehouse and railway station, starting at least two large fires.

British fighters engaged the bombing squadrons and their escorts in scattered encounters, the Germans announced, twelve British and four German planes being destroyed.

Directed personally by Reichsmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, the massed waves of German bombers were reported to have poured over the British coast from bases in Denmark, France, Belgium, Holland and northwest Germany.

(In London there were both afternoon and night alarms. The British said the afternoon attack was repelled, but admitted that the night raid was as bad as that of the night before, when death cut a wide swath through London and terrifying, bomb-lit fires redened the skies.

Reports "Terrified Attacks"

Goering, speaking unexpectedly by radio, presumably from his headquarters with the airforce, told the nation that a "terrific attack" was in progress against London and that the Fuhrer had entrusted him with attacking "the heart of the British empire."

"London will be blasted with millions of pounds of bombs as long as attacks of enemy pilots on non-military objectives in Germany continue," declared DNB, official German news agency.

An authorized spokesman said Nazi fliers, since morning had been repeating yesterday's attack on London—massed, rolling assaults by every type of German bomber escorted by fighter and destroyer squadrons.

Smoke Hampers Scouts

Dense smoke over the British capital was said to have hampered German aerial scouts hovering above the city since early morning.

Great tongues of flames occasionally shot through the veil, they reported, indicating that fires started yesterday still were burning, and German reports said the glare of the London fires could be seen during the night from the French channel coast between Calais and Cherbourg.

The relentless German attacks were cited by one Nazi military spokesman as proof that "England is not in a position to protect her capital."

Assessing Officers To Meet Today

BALTIMORE, Sept. 8 (AP)—Approximately 300 state and local assessing officers from all sections of the country will attend the four-day session of the seventh national conference of assessment administration opening here tomorrow.

The National Association of Assessing Officers, established in 1934 for the purpose of improving assessment administration, is in charge of the conference.

Nearly every phase of assessment practice will be covered in conference discussions, officials said. Included will be sessions on new technique for appraisal of real and personal property, review and appeal procedures, assessment of public utilities, in-service training methods and reassessment projects.

Willkie Ready To Start Long Tour

Special Train Will Be His Home for 15-Day Campaign Trip

By WILLIAM B. ARDERY

RUSHVILLE, Ind., Sept. 8 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie completed today arrangements for the twelve-car special train which will be his home on a forthcoming fifteen-day campaigning tour.

Accompanied by Mrs. Willkie and his son Philip, the Republican presidential nominee will occupy a private car. At the rear, he will have a small lounge where he can rest and chat with his family between brief stops for platform talks.

More than 100 persons will accompany the candidate, including his personal and research staff, train operators, newspaper and radio men and photographers.

Willkie spent much of today resting and reading. He did some additional work on his western speeches and chatted with neighbors who dropped in for a visit at his red-brick home.

Anti-War Move Popular

The nominee's headquarters reported he had received a number of messages expressing approval of his declaration last night that he never would lead the country into any European war.

Willkie, who drove to Memorial park here for a showing of Republican campaign movies, said in a brief address that Henry A. Wallace, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, recently had charged that the Republican party was the party of appeasement.

Declaring that "appeasement" could have various interpretations, Willkie added that if Wallace "meant working out compromises with the dictators then he was 100 per cent wrong."

GOP Party of Peace

But, Willkie continued, if Wallace meant that the Republican party "is the party of peace," then "he spoke th truth."

"I shall never lead this country into any European war," the candidate continued. "And when I say that I mean it."

He reiterated previous statements that he wanted to give Great Britain all possible aid short of war, but emphasized that such aid should not involve this country in the European conflict.

possibility that Germany may hope to club Britain into submission without risking the peril of direct invasion.

Reichsmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, somewhere at the front personally directing the Nazi air legions, told Germany by radio that a "terrific attack" is in progress against London.

Night British raiders flung broadside attacks on Nazi shipping and air bases along the French channel coast as well as at the Essen Krupp works, other factories, an oil plant, railroads and war stores in Germany itself.

Never before had Luftwaffe warplanes attacked with such ferocity, never before had London been bombed so long or so hard.

But the world's greatest city, bloody but unbowed, took it with chin up.

Severest of All Attacks

British officials acknowledged that the attack was the severest yet struck at their capital and admitted that heavy damage had been inflicted to industrial centers, docks, communications and vital municipal services.

Thousands of fire trucks and ambulances clanged through London streets all Saturday night to keep the blazes under control and get medical aid to the hardest-hit areas, some of them thickly populated residential districts.

Through the night a fiery glow lit the sky, a crimson background for probing searchlights, flashing shell fire and the whine and thunder of battle and bomb.

But the British minimized the German success, pointing out that damage, however heavy for a peacetime fire, was small in perspective to the war.

Down 88 Nazi Planes

It cost the Germans, they say, eighty-eight planes—most downed in the London area—and probably thirty-five more so badly damaged they never reached home. The British admitted losing only twenty-two of their own.

The Germans declared that not only London but also Liverpool, Manchester, Birmingham, Cardiff, Bristol, Southampton, Portsmouth, Portland and other British centers were attacked Saturday.

However, they claimed the greatest triumph over London, declaring Nazi bombers left huge fires raging after bombing docks, tanks, air ports, factories, arsenals, transportation facilities and other military objectives.

At the same time, they said, two waves of British night raiders crossed the German border, at least one trying vainly to reach Berlin.

The Germans, admitting loss of only twenty-six of their own planes, declared that ninety-four British planes were knocked out in battle and that the smoke haze from London fires prevented them from counting the British craft destroyed on the ground.

Both Germany and Italy, meanwhile, kept up their naval assault on British shipping.

The German high command reported 44,400 tons of British shipping sunk — five ships totalling 33,400 tons by one submarine and three others totalling 11,000 tons, two speed boats, both in raids on convoys.

Roosevelts Hear Prayer for Peace

By DOUGLAS B. Cornell

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sept. 8 (AP) — Observing a national day of prayer for world peace—as he had asked his fellow Americans of all creeds and denominations to do—President Roosevelt heard the rector of St. James Episcopal church ask God today for "a peace which is the fruit of righteousness and justice."

With Mrs. Roosevelt, Crown Princess Martha and the Countess Ostgard of Nazi-conquered Norway, the president sat in the second pew of the dimly sunlit sanctuary and heard the Rev. Frank R. Wilson pray for peace at a time when "many of us feel that we are on the brink of the greatest catastrophe of all time."

Formally noticing the President's presence and his proclamation of a day of prayer, the rector asked "can the hand of the oppressor be stayed?"

The President of the United States believes it can, with God's help," he added. "That is why he has called upon us to join in prayer."

After the service, the president drove back to his Hudson valley home to spend the day quietly.

Tomorrow, his luncheon guest will be Myron Taylor, just back from Europe, where he was the president's personal representative at the Vatican.

700 attackers of Saturday night.

They came through drifting clouds from which occasional forked tongues of lightning darted, and between which the wan sickle of a new moon was occasionally visible.

Two barrage balloons plummeted down in flames, apparently struck by lightning.

London Streets Empty

The streets of the great city were empty save for fire trucks and ambulances and an occasional night worker who had to walk to his job.

Some managed to travel part way by subway. Trainmen quietly shepherded passengers in and out of the cars.

Sirens wailed through the deepening shadows and bomb explosions were heard, followed almost immediately by flashes of anti-aircraft fire to the east, where the full fury of yesterday's mass assault fell on docks and nearby slum areas.

Londoners, warned to air raid shelters by the alarm sounding at 7:58 p. m. (1:58 p. m. EST), braced themselves for another night of terror.

Apparently the twilight raiders broke through after stiff anti-aircraft and fighter opposition in the Dover area had given London daylight respite in a Sunday of comparative calm.

Barrage Like Picket Fence

Raiders also approached the city from the northwest, where a heavy barrage of anti-aircraft fire was thrown up like a picket fence.

Bursting shells flashed thickly in the darkening sky.

A second wave of Nazi bombers approached the east London area about three quarters of an hour after the warning sounded.

That made three waves taking part in the raid thus far.

Within a few seconds after the moan of warning sirens died away violent anti-aircraft fire broke out in central London.

This was followed by the screech of scream bombs and the boom of explosions.

Eight Nazi Planes Downed

An air ministry communique said that already eight enemy planes had been destroyed during the day and revised German losses yesterday, adding eleven more planes shot down, making the new total ninety-nine.

Observers in the area where the hostile planes were flying overhead described the reception of anti-aircraft fire as the heaviest since the great raids on London started.

The attackers' reappearance was signalled only a few minutes after it was reported here that Reichmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering had broadcast to the German people that he was watching waves of German bombers taking off for England.

It was the second raid warning of a sabbath otherwise calm and peaceful after the great all-night raid that ended at dawn. The daytime first warning lasted fifty-one minutes.

In areas not blasted by last night's storm of bombers people who had been window shopping and strolling in parks were returning home after their Sunday outing.

Other enemy planes were reported over southeast and southwest England, possibly heading for London.

In the eastern sky over the capital low-lying clouds reflected a pink glow. At times the new moon shone through.

After more than an hour and a half the raiders still were over the London area.

It was apparent they were taking refuge in the clouds, dropping their bombs seemingly indiscriminately from above them, while searchlights kept poking their long, white fingers into the ghostly, pale cloud banks.

A communique issued before the 7:58 p. m. alarm said:

"Since dawn this morning enemy activity was negligible until shortly before mid-day when a large force of enemy aircraft approached the coast north of Dover.

"They were promptly engaged by our fighters and anti-aircraft guns and only small formations were able to penetrate inland.

"These flew north to the Thames estuary where they were dispersed and driven off."

The damage was light, most of the bombs dropping in rural areas, although "some houses and a railway station were hit and a road temporarily blocked."

The southwest coast during the night formed London's first line of anti-aircraft defense.

Cliff Batteries in Action

Batteries on the high cliffs and promontories and dotting the inland reaches along the Thames put up the heaviest barrages of the war against the almost continuous waves of night raiders, twelve to fifteen planes in each formation.

Even so, about 500 planes of the German armada broke through to rake London, causing about 400 deaths and seriously injuring between 1,300 and 1,400 persons, according to official, preliminary estimates.

In Sunday's first daylight assault the anti-aircraft batteries brought down three planes. British fighting planes, swarming to the counter attack, got four more, it was announced. Three British fighters were lost but the pilot of one parachuted to safety.

The attack caused a fifty-one minute alarm in London, starting at 12:29 p. m. (6:29 a. m., E. S. T.) but no planes were sighted.

Although Berlin dispatches told of German claims of a continued all-out assault on Britain, reports available at nightfall did not support this.

London at least found daylight respite to number her dead and maimed, measure the damage and quench the fires left by the night-long German assault that rivaled the devastation of Warsaw and the raking of Chungking.

British Report Successes

The British chalked up successes on their own side of the air warfare ledger. Despite "poor visibility and vigorous defenses," the RAF last night dealt the following blows, according to tonight's air ministry announcement:

Hits at Calais, France, across from Dover, where bombs burst between the basin and the entrance to the harbor. Gun emplacements and searchlight batteries there also were bombed.

Bombardment of the Colmar airdrome, in France, where a hangar was hit and aircraft set afire.

Fires started by bombs at Boulogne, France.

Direct hits on barges at Ostend, Belgium, and heavy attacks on barges at Dunkerque, France.

Attacks on the Krupp works at Essen, war factories at Emden and Zwelbrucken and the oil plant at Gelsenkirchen, all in Germany.

Bomb explosions on rail depots at Mannheim, Ehrang and Hamm, Germany.

Bomb-started fires in war material stores in Germany's black forest.

Airdrome attacks at Gilzerijen, Wesel and Krefeld, in Germany, Brussels in Belgium, Querqueville in France, and Soesterburg and Eindhoven, in the Netherlands.

"From these widespread operations all our aircraft returned," the communique concluded.

Greatest Raid of War

In the greatest raid thus far on London, German bombers during the night turned this sprawling capital into an arena of havoc. They raked both sides of the Thames, with its docks and factories but splattering bombs beyond the limits of strictly military objectives.

The port of London authority declared today that despite the battering "all services of the port will be maintained."

British officialdom, decaring that about one-fifth of the attacking planes, estimated at 500, either were shot down or disabled so as not to reach home, acknowledged the severity of the attack but asserted that the damage, "judged against the background of the war, is not serious."

The major smashes were on the two banks of the Thames east of the city, causing three "extensive" dock fires and a number of lesser blazes, but, said a communique, in the latter phases the bombing "appeared to be indiscriminate."

Bombs hit a utility plant, docks of the port of London authority among others, a tar refinery, two schools, a church and a chapel, and houses in various districts, as listed by official reports and independent surveys.

Outside London, on the Thames, an oil installation was set afire.

There were two periods of dusk-to-dawn alarm in London. The first started shortly after 4 p. m., and lasted ninety minutes in which the fiercest air battle of the war was fought from the Straits of Dover up the Thames estuary to London. The second alarm came at 8:32 p. m., and was lifted eight hours and eighteen minutes later.

BUT IT'S STILL HOME

This man saw his home wrecked by a Nazi bomb, but it didn't stop him from climbing up amid the ruins and nonchalantly getting a drink. This photo was passed by the British censor to show how calmly the average English resident is taking the air raids.

Millions Taken

soldiers, went to the cathedral to join in services.

A telegram from Adolf Hitler said the German fuehrer would follow Antonescu's "constructive work with great sympathy and interest" and predicted the new European order by which Rumania is bound to the Rome-Berlin axis would long continue.

The Iron Guard minister of culture issued decrees requiring all subordinates to resign immediately from the Masonic organization and prohibiting Jews from "continuing their blasphemy" of selling religious art objects or having even the remotest connection with anything artistic—even serving as ushers in motion picture theaters.

Both the capital's newspapers and government offices said today Mihai's mother, Princess Helen, had not yet arrived in Rumania, but was expected tomorrow or Tuesday.

At Brasov, funerals were held for those killed in last week's disorders. It was disclosed that a great many more people had been slain than at first reported.

At Galati, 313 German troopers, the elite Black Shirt guard, arrived with hundreds of trucks and many trains, as well as the vanguard of a fleet of twenty-five Nazi Danube river boats which are to remove 90,000 Germans from the province of Bessarabia, ceded by Rumania to Soviet Russia.

City Nearly Normal

The ban on Bucharest theaters, movie houses and gypsy orchestras was lifted today and the city began taking on a more normal aspect.

Flags still flew from every building and the streets still were littered with Iron Guard newspapers. Store windows held pictures of Corneliu Codreanu, slain Iron Guard leader, whose name ten days ago could only be whispered by his followers. Now he has become Rumania's number one national martyr.

The signing of the agreement by which Rumania ceded southern Dobruja to Bulgaria was mourned by one art gallery which displayed a picture of Queen Marie's private garden at Balcic, seaport and resort in the territory, where her heart lies buried as a challenge to her son, Carol, never to relinquish the territory she won for Rumania at the peace table.

Although Antonescu had told the people Rumania's past would be a "closed book," he himself opened it enough to allow investigations to be made by special commissions into what one government officer called "ten years of corruption and looting of the public treasury."

Attempts have already been started under the general's decrees to discover who got some of the huge sums of money spent for armaments, where former premiers and cabinet ministers got their wealth, who made profits out of foreign money deals, what happened to money appropriated for the youth movement and what cabinet members did with the semi-official "slush funds."

Police Conference To Open Sessions Today

OCEAN CITY, Md., Sept. 8 (AP) — The Maryland Police Association's third quarterly meeting will be held here tomorrow and Tuesday.

Marcus H. Miles, Sparrows Point chief of police, said J. Edgar Hoover, Federal Bureau of Investigation chief; Governor Herbert R. O'Conor and Mayor Howard W. Jackson of Baltimore had been invited to speak briefly.

Other speakers include Judge T. Owen Knotts, second judicial circuit, Denton; States Attorney William G. Kerbin, Jr., of Worcester county, and State Senator Thomas F. Johnson.

Blue and the Gray Memorial Concert Scheduled for Sunday

SHARPSBURG, Md., Sept. 8 (AP)— The seventh annual memorial concert to the Blue and the Gray will be held next Sunday at 4 p. m. on the Antietam national battlefield site, scene of the bloody fighting in the Civil War seventy-eight years ago.

From a small beginning in 1934, the event has grown to be one of the outstanding musical treats in the western section of Maryland and thousands of visitors are expected.

This year's guests organization will be the Hagerstown High school band under direction of Victor J. Marietta.

While the Hagerstown band was organized in 1939, it is rapidly attaining a high standard among musical organizations and now numbers 50 members.

The concert may be termed "Antietam's own," as no similar program is conducted each year at any of the other national historical parks.

The program includes a parade through the avenue of state flags to the rostrum, and lowering of the stars and stripes by the American Legion during the playing of the national anthem.

The union and confederate armies battled on the site Sept. 17, 1862.

Marietta, director of instrumental music in Hagerstown high schools, was director of music for the northeastern Pennsylvania School Music Association in 1936 and 1937.

Poultry Raisers To Convene Wednesday

COLLEGS PARK, Md., Sept. 8 (AP) — Outstanding leaders and officials of the poultry industry will speak at the annual three-day poultry products grading and marketing school at the University of Maryland beginning Wednesday.

The school's purpose, as outlined by those in charge, is to help Maryland poultry producers and dealers solve their egg and poultry grading and marketing problems.

"It is particularly timely as active enforcement of the Maryland fresh egg law has created a great demand for better quality Maryland eggs," the University Extension Service reported.

Speakers include Dr. A. E. Van Wagenen and H. E. Botsford, Cornell University; H. G. F. Hamman, United States Egg and Poultry Marketing Service; Dr. C. W. Knox, U. S. Department of Agriculture, and R. R. Slocum, agriculture marketing service.

Demonstrations of various methods of producing, handling and distributing eggs and other poultry products will be given each day.

In addition, the largest equipment for packaging, grading and marketing of poultry and eggs will be displayed and demonstrated.

fifteen-car trains bound for duty in Egypt and Palestine.

"We are glad to be here though we hated to leave our families in England," said one soldier. "But we know our forces there can give Hitler more than he wants and we've come down here to clean up the Italian side of this war."

"We'll wind this thing up as soon as possible," commented an officer.

The new batch of troops is composed largely of men who fought in France and represents a cross section of the British army.

Boarding several of the transports, I found the soldiers, nurses, sailors and fliers in excellent spirits and "R'aring to go."

"I'm anxious to get into a plane and take a crack at the Italians," one youthful Australian pilot said. "From what I've heard and judging from the RAF's successes, it ought to be easy to bring down at least one plane every day I go up."

Another said the entire voyage was without incident. "We got a big laugh one night when we heard a Berlin broadcast that our ship had been sunk off North Ireland."

Many troops boarded trains for their new posts immediately after disembarking and receiving a welcome from Lieut. Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, commanded of the middle forces.

bullet marks were there when the train left Rumania.

Some fifty Iron Guardists were reported to have taken part in the attack on the train at the town of Timisoara. They asked the station master if the train would stop and he told them it would, but then telegraphed a nearby station to signal it to speed through.

As it sped past the men attacked with pistols and stones, while others seized a locomotive and pursued the royal train. Still others jumped in automobiles and tried to beat the train to the town of Jimbolia at the frontier. When this group reached the town soldiers halted them and arrested twenty.

Ruling Slated Today In Truck Dispute

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 8 (AP) — Federal Judge George W. McClintic is scheduled to rule tomorrow on an application of Evans Lines, Inc. for a temporary injunction restraining five other trucking concerns from interfering with its shipments.

Man Found Beaten to Death near His Car

FREDERICK, Md., Sept. 8 (AP)— The body of Charles Saylor, 33, of near New Midway, was found on the highway beside his automobile near Union Chapel early today, victim of what Dr. Howard J. Maldeis, chief state medical examiner, described as a "severe beating."

Dr. Maldeis said Saylor had apparently been beaten by fists, and that "exposure and alcoholism" were contributing causes of his death.

The body was found by J. Calvin Beard, a farmer, about 6 a. m. today on the Libertytown-Daysville road.

Sheriff Guy Anders of Frederick county, who began an investigation with Corp. W. J. May, said three negroes near Libertytown had been picked up for questioning. Anders said Saylor apparently had not been robbed.

Dr. Maldeis and Dr. R. W. Baer, Frederick county deputy medical examiner, performed an autopsy. Anders said Saylor is survived by five sisters and six brothers.

and present nineteen days since July 19.

The saying that "as Maine goes, so goes the nation," was discarded long ago, but politicians will watch tomorrow's results eagerly for indications of a trend or other political straws in the wind. Maine was one of the two states carried by Alf Landon, the 1936 Republican nominee.

In addition to choosing presidential electors, Maine voters will elect state officers, a senator and three members of the House of Representatives.

Other Primaries This Week

Besides the Maine election, this week will bring primaries in Hampshire, Vermont, and Washington. On Wednesday, Georgia will hold its primary.

Government officials are seeking an amendment to make this applicable also to persons born anywhere in the United States.

Other important provisions would:

Other Provisions

Remove American nationality from naturalized citizens for protracted residence abroad.

Require longer periods of residence in the United States for a person to transmit citizenship to a child born abroad.

Establish stricter rules for acquiring citizenship both by naturalization and inheritance.

Officials said they had not calculated the number of persons who would lose their citizenship under the measure but it would run into many thousands.

Under existing laws, officials said that many persons with doubtful claim to citizenship have a right to enter this country, regardless of their character, political views or criminal record.

Delayed Draft

still talked, however, about Senate action some time this week.

Seek Compromise Today

The job of compromising the House and Senate differences on the training bill will begin tomorrow. House members of the conference committee, headed by Chairman May (D-Ky) of the Military Committee, were named last night. Chairman Sheppard (D-Tex) of the Senate Military Committee will head the Senate group, to be appointed tomorrow.

Aside from the House's sixty-day clause, the major difference to be ironed out is the age limit of men facing registration and possible conscription for twelve months service. The Senate approved a bracket from twenty-one to thirty years, inclusive, estimated to number 12,000,000 men, while the House voted for a range of twenty-one through forty-four, estimated at 24,000,000.

Senators said the war department favored the lower bracket.

No trouble is expected over the "draft industry" provision, as Congress members have designated it.

The Senate provision would allow the government to condemn and take over any factory needed for national defense production when its owners failed to cooperate.

The House voted to permit the government to take over plants under such circumstances on a rental or lease basis. The owners would be paid rent and could recover the plants later.

"Not a single one of the assertions made is correct."

The president's son said in an address last night at Lawton, Okla. that "while Mexico tells us that they have an army of only 100-and-some-odd thousand men I can tell you, and I know it for a fact, that there is an army that was officered and trained by former revolutionaries from Spain and there are 7,000 of them in Mexico today."

Roosevelt predicated his remarks with the assertion that "any danger that confronts this country doesn't lie all the way across the ocean."

Myron C. Taylor and his wife return to New York aboard the Excalibur. President Roosevelt's personal representative to the Holy See, Mr. Taylor recently was taken ill and was operated on in Europe. He declined to answer questions about his mission, said he was glad to be home at this crucial time in American affairs.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By EDWARD E. BOMAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

By MAX BOYD

The Nazi air force appears to be making a supreme attempt to shock England into surrender or to pave the way for troop landings before the expected end of good flying weather a week or two hence.

It is a little too early to say definitely that such attempt is under way. German communiques still speak of the damaging raids upon London as reprisals for British night attacks "on residential sections and other non-military objectives." But these characterizations may be intended only to justify the smashing attack, not to describe their nature.

Decisive Test Looms

There are many signs that England is in for a possibly decisive test within a matter of weeks.

One possible indication is the German announcement that bombers are being hurled against the enemy simultaneously from Denmark, Northern France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Northwest Germany. Another is the German statement that Reichsmarshal Herman Wilhelm Goering, head of the air force, is personally commanding the intensified attacks from his headquarters in Northern France.

Dismiss these announcements as part of the "war of nerves," if you like, and there remains the news that German raiders penetrated London's defenses Saturday night and early Sunday with greater success than ever before.

It can hardly be doubted that the German high command will be encouraged, by the admitted hits on industrial objectives and municipal services, to pound the British capital anew before this damage can be repaired.

Probably the most important indicator that there will be an almost continuous "all-out" German air attack during the next few days is the time element.

Weather men say that the visibility over the British isles begins to get bad, normally, around September 15—next Sunday. In some years the first fogs are a week or two early, in others a week or two late. But by the latter part of September they are almost always on hand, and the weather continues unfavorable for flying through most of the fall and winter.

If Britain survives the remaining period of good weather without being shocked into surrender or weakened for invasions by German troops landing under cover of fog and the lengthening nights, she will have a chance to make long strides toward neutralizing Nazi power by next spring.

Hitler is well aware of that, and he is likely to use every bit of his present numerical superiority in the air to make good the German boast that England would be forced to sue for peace by September 15.

There are several possible explanations for the increased success with which the Nazi airmen have penetrated British defenses. It may be due to British losses of fighter planes and pilots, to the exhaustion of pilots, to the destruction of some anti-aircraft installations or the shooting down of balloon barrages.

In measuring Britain's power to withstand further aerial onslaughts of equal or increased intensity, it must be kept in mind that her leaders have expected such attacks.

Only last week, Prime Minister Winston Churchill met Hitler's latest threat with a defiant "we can stand it."

Whether the British people actually can stand it may be apparent in a matter of weeks.

the London harbor and industrial section."

Already, many British anti-aircraft batteries and searchlights have been destroyed by direct bomb hits, the Nazis related.

The British capital's famed arsenal borough of Woolwich and the southwest reaches of the city have been subjected to a concentrated, destructive scourge.

Bomb Large Factories

Following up their night-long, crippling blows of Saturday on London and the British industrial heart, the Germans reported they bombed several large factories in southwest London, and a warehouse and railway station, starting at least two large fires.

British fighters engaged the bombing squadrons and their escorts in scattered encounters, the Germans announced, twelve British and four German planes being destroyed.

Directed personally by Reichsmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, the massed waves of German bombers were reported to have poured over the British coast from bases in Denmark, France, Belgium, Holland and northwest Germany.

In London there were both afternoon and night alarms. The British said the afternoon attack was repelled, but admitted that the night raid was as bad as that of the night before, when death cut a wide swath through London and terrifying, bomb-lit fires reddened the skies.

Reports "Terrified Attacks"

Goering, speaking unexpectedly by radio, presumably from his headquarters with the airforce, told the nation that a "terrific attack" was in progress against London and that the Fuhrer had entrusted him with attacking "the heart of the British empire."

"London will be blasted with millions of pounds of bombs as long as attacks of enemy pilots on non-military objectives in Germany continue," declared DNB, official German news agency.

An authorized spokesman said Nazi fliers since morning had been repeating yesterday's attack on London—massed, rolling assaults by every type of German bomber escorted by fighter and destroyer squadrons.

Smoke Hampers Scouts

Dense smoke over the British capital was said to have hampered German aerial scouts hovering above the city since early morning.

Great tongues of flames occasionally shot through the veil, they reported, indicating that fires started yesterday still were burning, and German reports said the glare of the London fires could be seen during the night from the French channel coast between Calais and Cherbourg.

The relentless German attacks were cited by one Nazi military spokesman as proof that "England is not in a position to protect her capital."

Willkie Ready To Start Long Tour

Special Train Will Be His Home for 15-Day Campaign Trip

By WILLIAM B. ARDERY

RUSHVILLE, Ind., Sept. 8 (AP)— Wendell L. Willkie completed today arrangements for the twelve-car special train which will be his home on a forthcoming fifteen-day campaigning tour.

Accompanied by Mrs. Willkie and his son Philip, the Republican presidential nominee will occupy a private car. At the rear, he will have a small lounge where he can rest and chat with his family between brief stops for platform talks.

More than 100 persons will accompany the candidate, including his personal and research staff, train operators, newspaper and radio men and photographers.

Willkie spent much of today resting and reading. He did some additional work on his western speeches and chatted with neighbors who dropped in for a visit at his red-brick home.

Anti-War Move Popular

The nominee's headquarters reported he had received a number of messages expressing approval of his declaration last night that he never would lead the country into any European war.

Willkie, who drove to Memorial park here for a showing of Republican campaign movies, said in a brief address that Henry A. Wallace, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, recently had charged that the Republican party was the party of appeasement.

Declaring that "appeasement" could have various interpretations, Willkie added that if Wallace "meant working out compromises with the dictators then he was 100 per cent wrong."

GOP Party of Peace

But, Willkie continued, if Wallace meant that the Republican party "is the party of peace," then "he spoke th truth."

"I shall never lead this country into any European war," the candidate continued. "And when I say that I mean it."

He reiterated previous statements that he wanted to give Great Britain all possible aid short of war, but emphasized that such aid should not involve this country in the European conflict.

possibility that Germany may hope to club Britain into submission without risking the peril of direct invasion.

Reichsmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, somewhere at the front personally directing the Nazi air legions, told Germany by radio that a "terrific attack" is in progress against London.

Night British raiders flung broadside attacks on Nazi shipping and air bases along the French channel coast as well as at the Essen Krupp works, other factories, an oil plant, railroads and war stores in Germany itself.

Never before had Luftwaffe waves attacked with such ferocity, never before had London been bombed so long or so hard.

But the world's greatest city, bloody but unbowed, took it with chin up.

Severest of All Attacks

British officials acknowledged that the attack was the severest yet struck at their capital and admitted that heavy damage had been inflicted to industrial centers, docks, communications and vital municipal services.

Thousands of fire trucks and ambulances clanged through London streets all Saturday night to keep the blazes under control and get medical aid to the hardest-hit areas, some of them thickly populated residential districts.

Through the night a fiery glow lit the sky, a crimson background for probing searchlights, flashing shell fire and the whine and thunder of battle and bomb.

But the British minimized the German success, pointing out that damage, however heavy for a peace-time fire, was small in perspective to the war.

Down 88 Nazi Planes

It cost the Germans, they said, eighty-eight planes—most downed in the London area—and probably thirty-five more so badly damaged they never reached home. The British admitted losing only twenty-two of their own.

The Germans declared that not only London but also Liverpool, Manchester, Birmingham, Cardiff, Bristol, Southampton, Portsmouth, Portland and other British centers were attacked Saturday.

However, they claimed their greatest triumph over London, declaring Nazi bombers left huge fires raging after bombing docks, oil tanks, air ports, factories, arsenals, transportation facilities and other military objectives.

At the same time, they said, two waves of British night raiders crossed the German border, at least one trying vainly to reach Berlin.

The Germans, admitting loss of only twenty-six of their own planes, declared that ninety-four British planes were knocked out in battle and that the smoke haze from London fires prevented them from counting the British craft destroyed on the ground.

Both Germany and Italy, meanwhile, kept up their naval assaults on British shipping.

The German high command reported 44,400 tons of British shipping sunk — five ships totalling 33,400 tons by one submarine and three others totalling 11,000 tons by two speed boats, both in raids on convoys.

Assessing Officers To Meet Today

BALTIMORE, Sept. 8 (AP)—Approximately 300 state and local assessing officers from all sections of the country will attend the four-day session of the seventh national conference of assessment administration opening here tomorrow.

The National Association of Assessing Officers, established in 1934 for the purpose of improving assessment administration, is in charge of the conference.

Nearly every phase of assessment practice will be covered in conference discussions, officials said. Included will be sessions on new technique for appraisal of real and personal property, review and appeal procedures, assessment of public utilities, in-service training methods and reassessment projects.

The Willkie Movement Continues To Gain

PROPAGANDA, which is anything but subtle, is being put out by the New Deal press department and columnists in which a decline in the Willkie movement is asserted.

The exact reverse is true, however, for which reason such studied effort is being made to give the erroneous impression. With the clearing of the stage for serious campaigning, Willkie continues to gain in popularity.

Reports of four separate polls made public during the last week or so all show that the Republican nominee is still away in front.

Editor and Publisher, reporting from a survey of 1,058 daily newspapers, shows 700 of these, with a circulation of 16,387,145, favoring Willkie, to 216 with a circulation of 5,332,905 for the president. One hundred forty-two, with a circulation of 6,198,821, have taken no stand.

The Institute of Public Opinion reports Maine as giving Mr. Willkie a 64 to 36 per cent preference, a drop of seven points for Mr. Roosevelt from his 1936 strength.

A more significant poll was that of the Ohio State Journal taken on regular voting machines at the Ohio State fair at Columbus. This poll gave Mr. Willkie a two-to-one lead over the president. Ohio, incidentally, has voted for a presidential winner ever since the Civil war. So that Ohio qualifies as a real barometer state.

The fourth poll, reported by the Republican National Committee, was taken among employes of a large copper mine at Globe, Ariz. It also showed the Republican nominee leading two-to-one.

Besides these indicia, we have had recently a notable registration of popular feeling at the primary election polls, this having been out in California where the New Deal was licked to a frazzle. There, Senator Hiram Johnson was a candidate for re-election. Although a Republican, he supported Mr. Roosevelt six years ago and also four years ago. Roosevelt also enthusiastically supported him, referring to him publicly as "that great liberal statesman." But Senator Johnson, like so many others, sickened at the New Deal failures and came out for Willkie. That nettled Mr. Roosevelt to such extent that he indicated that the senator was a liberal no longer and the New Deal support was thrown to a Mr. Ford on the Democratic ticket.

Thus the issue of the New Deal was squarely faced and the result was a painful defeat for it, showing that the Willkie tide is running strong in California. In the Republican primaries, Senator Johnson polled 578,000 votes as against 50,000, 45,000 and 32,000, respectively, against three other candidates. Senator Johnson also went into the Democratic primaries, this being allowed in that state, and there he polled 480,000 votes as against 194,000 for Mr. Patterson and 168,000 for Mr. Ford, the presidential favorite. Other minor candidates drew a total of around 110,000 votes.

Certainly the New Deal is losing out miserably when its chief opponent here wins in his own primaries by a six-to-one vote and polls more votes in the Democratic primaries than all the Democrats combined and three times as many as the Roosevelt choice.

Thus the tide surges toward the Republican nominee and away from the man who would perpetuate himself in the presidency. These registrations are but a continuation of the movement that has been demonstrated in every primary and every bye-election since 1938.

Hitlerian Potentialities In Conscription

NOTING that the real issue presented by conscription is rather one of method than of principle, the New York Herald Tribune pertinently points out that, while conscription of either men or machinery can be a democratic approach to the thing, it can also lead directly to the destruction of democracy.

"Everything depends," it says, "on the form it takes. If in either case the law insists upon an impartial selection by way of carefully defined rules of eligibility with the object of placing the burden of service on those best able to bear and to discharge it, if meanwhile with equal care it limits the term of compulsory service to provide for a recapture of the freedom it proscribes, it follows faithfully the democratic pattern. If, on the other hand, it consists of a loose grant of authority to the executive to pick and choose where he pleases and to make his selection permanent, it becomes simply an invitation to the establishment here of the very type of dictatorship against which the nation at enormous sacrifice is arming."

While the Herald Tribune has favored peacetime conscription in the face of a widespread protest, it admits that the contrast it presents is fundamental and is exhibited at close range in two sections of the Burke-Wadsworth measure.

"The one," it says, "would call up for military training certain classes of young men with every reasonable reservation to fit individual circumstances and a time limit on their impressment. x x x The other, as embodied in the Russell amendment, proposes a conscription of industry to match; only it doesn't match. Instead it would give the president the right to take over any given 'manufacturing plant or facility' without classification which he deemed necessary for the national defense and for whose use either the secretary of war or the secretary of the navy had failed to come to an agreement with its owner, and to take it over for good, the owner to be compensated later as the courts might see fit. This is not conscription in any democratic sense! it is potential Hitlerism.

"Fortunately, the Military Affairs committee of the House seems awake to the essential difference. Already the committee has adopted a substitute for the Russell amendment, sponsored by Representative Smith, of Connecticut, prescribing a lease to the government of the seized 'facility' instead of an outright transfer. This is a slight gain. Much better, though still far from perfect, is the proposal which Representative Vinson, of Georgia, will offer independently from the floor—namely, that the secretaries of war and of the navy be empowered to enter into leasing arrangements with suppliers where there is hopeless disagreement and, should such negotiations come to naught, to refer the difficulty to the National Defense Advisory Commission for conciliation. The commission failing, the Vinson measure would have the latter certify the situation to the president, who could then order conscription of the plant on such terms of compensation as he thought suitable.

"Absent from either substitute is any proper definition of the 'facilities' to be covered. This should exclude all but those which are actual or potential producers of war supplies and specifically newspapers, radio stations and other media of public opinion. Absent also is any limit as to the time within which the seizure may be effected or continued. Unless these omissions are remedied no law of the kind can be other than a bid for a self-perpetuating dictator."

These suggestions, together with the modifications that have thus far been caused by legislative debate and the voice of the people, again emphasize the need for caution in the enactment of any conscription measure.

All of Us Are In Business

ONE of the things Wendell L. Willkie is seeking to do, is to clarify a misconception held by too many persons about business. This misconception, he holds, makes for class warfare, of which we have had entirely too much during the last several years. Particularly unfortunate is the fact that we have had men in high office who have been promoting this sort of thing.

"Directly, or indirectly," Willkie has stated, "all of us are engaged in business. Whether we live on wage earnings or on savings or on life insurance or on government salaries, we get our money from the productive forces of industry and agriculture."

When this fact is appreciated, it can be realized that there is no barrier between business and the people. It is something in which all of them are engaged, rich or poor, in high places or humble.

Willkie has also stressed the important fact that government itself can create no wealth. "Its income comes entirely from the economic enterprises of the people," he states. "There is no such thing as a separate and highly sinister activity called 'business' pursued by a few economic royalists. There are only millions and millions of Americans trying to earn a living. Some rise to executive positions, and some are wage earners. Some work in a big company, some in a small one. But for all of them business is the most important activity of their lives. It is not the function of government to be either the dictator or the enemy of the ten million enterprises in which the people are engaged."

A sensible reminder, indeed, especially needed now in view of the fact that the New Deal entertains a different theory and, by restricting the liberties of the people and expanding the powers of government, has drawn an unjust distinction between business and the people as if one were hostile to the other, whereas they are inseparably and mutually intermingled.

Pierro Cot, air minister in the Leon Blum cabinet, now in New York, offers two more explanations of why France failed to repulse the invader. Experts are checking up to see if they overlap explanations already on file.

In Russia, Germany, Italy and Mexico the dictators can tell to a fraction how many votes they will receive. In this country the people tell the dictator how many he will not receive.

New autumn styles for the college girl include man's hats, coats and socks. And, of course, if she's pretty enough—his fraternity pin.

Matters could be worse. Suppose Mr. Blanton, the Gentleman from Texas, were in Congress now.

The Janitor's Justice

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I was sitting on a desk after hours, talking to a janitor as he piled up the waste paper in a truck and swept and dusted and did the various chores of his occupation . . . And as we talked, in through the door came a shambling figure who said to my friend the janitor: "How's chances of getting half a dollar from you, buddy?"

Marshall Maslin

The janitor leaned on his broom and looked the beggar over. Then he quietly answered: "Yes, I will give you the fifty cents——"

The beggar brightened to attention—and the janitor went on:

"Yes, I will give you the money if you will take my brush and soap and mop and clean out the men's washroom."

"Aw, what're you givin' us?" growled the other fellow.

"But I must clean out the washroom to earn the fifty cents that you ask me to give you—and I do not like it very much—and I will give you that fifty cents if you do it for me."

"Aw! you're nuts!" snarled the panhandling gentleman and faded like the dark before the brightness of that janitor's logic.

And many a time since then have I remembered our janitor's reply and the ease of his victory over that uninvited gentleman who wanted fifty cents of his money but was unwilling to do fifty cents worth of his toil.

The defeat was so complete that the beggar did not even think of turning to me in desperate appeal to rescue him from the astounding position in which he found himself . . . But went away, shaking his head and mumbling and complaining of the sad state of the world.

I respected that janitor before, but afterwards I had doubled respect for him. He had given me a lesson in logic, in the mathematics of justice—something to remember when I am tempted to ask for help without being willing to repay out of my own store.

My friend was not harsh. He was merely just. But so often the other fellow's justice seems like cruelty to us.

Conscription Delay Charge Erroneous, Gen. Johnson Says

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Hugh Johnson

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8—The Fish amendment to the selective service act, tentatively adopted by the House, has been erroneously reported as a measure to postpone effectiveness of the selective service law by sixty days. It has other gross faults, but it does not do that.

As soon as the law passes, the government can set up the machinery for registration and classification of manpower. It can proceed, when ready to register them and, rapidly as possible, to classify them in the order of their relative availability for military service with the least possible disturbance of domestic, industrial or social relations.

Must Have Registration

You can't have any actual taking of men into the army under our system until the registration is complete to the last man. You can't have it until the classification has proceeded at least to the point of filling the quotas of each locality. "Filling the quotas" means the actual taking of men for whom the great lottery in Washington has determined that their turn has come and of whom committees of their neighbors have decided that thtre is less reason for them to remain in the civil occupations than exists for other men.

Starting from scratch, this machinery could not possibly be set up, oiled and put in efficient operation to produce 400,000 or even 100,000 men in less than sixty days. All that the Fish amendment provides is that while the machinery may be created as quickly as possible, it can't actually take a single man for sixty days.

Election Facts

Thus, on the cold hard facts, there will be no real delay on this score. Cold hard facts aside, however, the amendment is a mouthful of mush—political mush. The "sixty days delay" is designed to let valiant legislators stand for election before any men have actually been drafted—which will be true but unimportant.

It has another aspect that is important—importantly dangerous. It is worked into the law as a period during which the president may call for 400,000 volunteers and then, actually select only 400,000 men less the number that have volunteered within the sixty days. That is provided so that the fearless statesmen can say in their campaigns that they refused to conscript a single man until no more men would volunteer.

Suggested by Writer

I regret to say that in a somewhat cynical attempt to get this bill passed quickly without one day's delay in effective action, this column suggested this sixty day delay in induction, pointing out that it didn't mean much of anything but might ease the fears of politicians up fo relection.

That column also suggested that if, after men had been selected for class 1 (immediately available for military service), they were not required to wait their turn in the list of lottery numbers but permitted to volunteer to go at once, the quotas could be filled by that kind of volunteer in practically every locality in the nation—filled with men selected as available for military service and no others.

Is Different

That is a very different proposal from the Fish amendment. When men have been notified by their government that its best interest requires that they either go or stay at home, their duty is clearly determined without pressure, stigma or emotion, but if unregulated volunteering is to be glorified by patrioteering tom-tom beating, then all selected men are going to be brought into contempt as unwilling conscripts.

If that happens, the brightest and strongest single feature of selective service goes down and the whole project may fail. You can't have selective service and let men select themselves. Conscription and volunteering won't work together and volunteering won't work at all.—Distributed by United Features Syndicate, Inc.

SUCCESS AND THEN--

Sullivan Says Hasty or Progressive Building Is Chief Question in Defense

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8 — The conscription debate has consumed fourteen legislative days (nineteen calendar week-days) in the Senate, and in the House five days. About all that can possibly be said on both sides or from any angle, including arguments by congressmen, extracts from the testimony of military and other experts before committees of Congress, and reprints of discussions outside Congress—all is in the 2,200 pages of the Congressional Record since August 9. All this, the writer of this column has scanned, much he has read carefully. On this basis, and admitting complete lack of any particular qualification for judgment, the writer has arrived at certain conclusions, or received certain impressions. The most pertinent ones are here stated—subject to the likelihood of error on some points; and subject to the difficulty, the impossibility, of condensing some five or ten million words of Congressional debate into 700 or so words of newspaper despatch:

Mark Sullivan

Defense Needs

The United States needs an air force, from 30,000 to 50,000 thousand planes, with the necessary manpower for pilots and ground service.

The United States needs a navy, very large, probably twice as large as any we ever had.

The United States army does not need to be so large. We need a regular standing army of some 800,000. This would be 500,000 more than the present regular army, which is some 300,000. (Some would say the army should be a million, some a million two hundred thousand.) This should be a professional army, of the greatest attainable skill and training; highly mechanized, most of the men being mechanics, artisans, and engineers of the most skilled type, with especial capacity for cooperation, coordination of services. This army should be as able in team-work as a football squad kept in continuous top-notch training. It should be as adept in coordination of services as that part of the German army, which though not great in numbers, probably not over 100,000, was able to break through the French defenses and thus bring about defeat of a French army of millions.

Career Men Best

Because our regular, standing army, should have these qualities of mechanical skill, and experience in coordination, it should be made up mainly, probably wholly, of professional soldiers—men who join the army as a job, a career, and who remain in it through one enlistment term after another, because they like it as a career; men who join the army in the same spirit in which other men join the police force, or become firemen or school teachers or enter other public services. Steps toward this are now being taken.

Such a regular army, of say 500,000, would be adequate for any foreseeable need. But our policy should take care of even unforeseeable emergency. For this, there should be a great reservoir of partially-trained men who can be called upon for drafting into the regular army.

Training Obvious

To provide this reservoir, if it turns out to be a permanent need, an obvious method would be to furnish training, for not exceeding a year, to young men as they leave school or college, This should be training, as distinct from actual service in the army. The training, if it is confined to training only, can be compulsory and universal. No serious question of principle or of American tradition is involved in requiring young men to take training, the same as they are required to go to school in the ordinary sense. To require men to enter the army, however; to conscript them for service, when the country is not engaged in war, raises just the difficult question of principle which is involved in the pending conscription bill. If the training is compulsory and universal, it should be literally universal, without exemption for any one.

Contingency Exists

There is one possible contingency which might justify enactment of the present conscription bill. This contingency would consist of the following circumstances: (a) conquest of Britain by Germany; (b) including acquisition by Germany of the British fleet; (c) at a time before we will have been able to build up our air force and navy. Such a contingency exists. We are obliged to take account of it. It would be extremely awkward for us. Because this contingency exists, it is to our interest to help Britain, with destroyers or otherwise, so as to prevent the contingency if possible, or postpone it until we are better prepared.

If the contingency above described should actually happen, then possession of even a hastily extemporized army, through the present conscription bill, would be of some value to us.

The Real Question

The question is: admitting this contingency exists and that we should prepare for it as best we can, which would be better? (a) An army hastily extemporized by means of the pending conscription bill; or (b) an army created as rapidly as possible through voluntary enlistment of the kind now going on. Voluntary enlistment is proceeding on a large and rapidly increasing scale. During June, the first full month after Congress authorized more enlistments, the number of recruits was 23,442. In July, it rose to 31,985. The number for August is not yet fully reported. It is estimated to be over 40,000.

The pending conscription bill contemplates an addition of 400,000 before next April. The question is whether voluntary enlistment, with its present ascending rate, would provide a comparable number within a comparable time

Maryland Farm Musings

Ornamental plants which are not injured, or only slightly attacked, by the Japanese Beetle are calendula, coreopsis, goldenglow, nasturtium, petunia, sweet pea, carnation, cosmos, iris, pachysandra, phlox, tulip, chrysanthemum, four-o'clock, larkspur, pansy, poppy, violet, columbine, gladiolus, lily, peony, and snapdragon, according to Dr. George S. Langford, specialist in insect control for the University of Maryland Extension Service.

A. F. Vierheller, specialist in horticulture for the extension service, says that new spray residue tolerances for 1940 are: Arsenical residue .025 grains per pound of fruit, and lead residue .05 grains per pound of fruit. Last year the tolerances were .01 and .025 respectively.

While the commercial turkey industry in Maryland is a comparatively recent development, a survey showed that turkeys have been raised in the state for nearly 100 years, according to a recent bulletin by the University of Maryland Experiment Station. The survey also showed that for the year 1937-1938 approximately 300,000 turkeys were produced in Maryland.

The United States census of 1935 reports 44,412 farms in Maryland, of which number 12,220 report some acreage in fruit.

Most Maryland poultrymen could increase the returns from their flocks materially if they would work to secure better fall egg production when prices are usually high, according to Dr. Morley A. Jull, head of the University of Maryland Poultry Department.

A Fool's Paradise

From the Industrial News Review

Congress has not had the courage thus far to effect a single important economy to offset record-breaking defense spending, which for the present year will probably run above $20,000,000,000. Income, despite new taxes, will amount to little more than $6,000,000,000. As the New York Times observes, this is enough to show "that our budget has got utterly out of hand."

For the time being, war has obscured the grim fact that this country is moving inexorably toward financial ruin—not only because of debts and deficits in themselves, but because there has been no serious inclination to chart a course that will ultimately bring government spending under control. We have no budget policy, and we have no tax policy. The Federal treasury is regarded as a grab bag. Taxation has been thought of as something with which to soak the rich and get votes. But hidden taxes blanket every necessity and every luxury, and by far the greater part of them are paid by the average citizen. This is the state of the nation financially—a fool's paradise of waste, at a time when it must be strong if it is to survive as a democracy in the stern world of the future.

Bankrupt nations end in anarchy. Anarchy ends in dictatorship, for dictatorship is the only way in which civil order can again be established. Too late the people of a bankrupt democracy discover what keeps democracy alive, namely, a sense of personal responsibility for acts of elected public servants, and full realization of the fact that there is nothing superhuman about government. What government gives, it must first take away. In piling up debt it is taking away from our national future. If it takes away over a long enough period, there will be no future for us as a free people

New Mechanism Gives Mr. Augen a Pain in the Neck

Bp EDWIN C. HILL

Edwin C. Hill

We were puzzled to find our friend Hymie Augen deeply distressed over the new mechanical baseball umpire which is being developed at Wichita, Kans. We had missed it in the news, but Mr. Augen had a clipping about it in his hat band. Using the electric eye, it calls a strike or a ball when the pitched ball passes through, or misses, the sensitized area above the plate.

Mr. Augen wasn't angry. He was hurt. These are nostalgic days, with this unseasonable weather, and summer fading, and I thought that that was in this mood that Mr. Augen mourned his lost boyhood when he used to yell "robber"! at the umpire.

But it wasn't that. Nor was it the matter of technological unemployment among umpires. I am still not quite sure what it was, although I did make out that, with the peering intrusion of electric eyes, in the van of ruthless change, Mr. Augen is beginning to feel like a planetary alien. His world has moved on and left him behind.

Trust Is Lacking

"It makes a mugg like me think he ought to get fingerprinted with all these foreigners they're putting down in the books," he said. "The trouble with the world now is that nobody trusts anybody. Everything was all right when they left things to the umpire. Pretty soon they'll have an electric eye in the supreme court and a bell will ring when a lawyer makes an offside crack and the judges will be just dummies and a score board will show who won at the end. That's how things are going."

Here Mr. Augen digressed in a dissertation on the mechanical rabbit, for which he has an extreme distaste. It was not quite clear why he disliked it so, until I began to understand that in his view machines are spoil sports and there are more and more complexities in our once simple and innocent enjoyments.

Has No Chance

"Besides," he added, "it's a gyp when you take a dog that's doing his best and let him run himself ragged with everything rigged against him and he hasn't a chance to catch the rabbit and it wouldn't do him any good if he did. Life is getting like that, and if I had anything I'd just sell out and play pinochle a few years before they get the electric eye on that."

"How is a sap ever going to get wised up and quit being a sap if he never went to the Boston Institute of Technology, or whatever it is? You look a bookmaker in the eye and trade a few cracks with him and figure in a few things about people that it took you years to learn and you feel safe when you put down a bet, or satisfied because you didn't. Now I don't say they put in the fix on these pari-mutuel machines, but it's just as easy, maybe easier, to fix a machine as it is a judge. It used to be that the only guys that had anything on you was the plumber and the jeweler that fixed your watch, but you could watch them and put up a squawk if they didn't do right. Now some kind of a machine is always laying it on the line and you can take it or leave it and you can't talk back.

Back Talk Needed

"The more machinery there is in the world, the less back talk. A guy would get fat trying to bop an electric eye with a pop bottle. He could take a shot at a slot machine when he didn't get a jack pot but it wouldn't make him feel any better and he wouldn't understand it even if he shot its insides out. Maybe he would like to play a game of Kelly pool, but there's nothing but pin-ball at the corner drugstore, all circused with trick lights and bells. Maybe you're proud of being a pool shark, but a bimbo with St. Vitus dance might lick you at this pin-ball thing, all niggered up with machinery and, like I said, no back talk.

"It's the same if you go out to Surf Beach and look for some old spieler you used to know and find an electric tin horn there instead. Even the mitt-reader isn't a nice gypsy dame any more in a dark tent. It's a machine which rattles and growls and whams out your fortune when you drop in a penny. What it says is all screwy and you can't say a word. It makes you feel like you didn't have a friend in the world. I'm telling you, the world will keep on being a tough place until more little guys like me and you can talk back."—Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

If the Senator wants to know my position, if he has any doubt about it, I will say that I do not expect ever in my life to support any candidate for the third term in the presidency.

The Willkie Movement Continues To Gain

PROPAGANDA, which is anything but subtle, is being put out by the New Deal press department and columnists in which a decline in the Willkie movement is asserted.

The exact reverse is true, however, for which reason such studied effort is being made to give the erroneous impression. With the clearing of the stage for serious campaigning, Willkie continues to gain in popularity.

Reports of four separate polls made public during the last week or so all show that the Republican nominee is still away in front.

Editor and Publisher, reporting from a survey of 1,058 daily newspapers, shows 700 of these, with a circulation of 16,387,145, favoring Willkie, to 216 with a circulation of 5,332,905 for the president. One hundred forty-two, with a circulation of 6,198,821, have taken no stand.

The Institute of Public Opinion reports Maine as giving Mr. Willkie a 64 to 36 per cent preference, a drop of seven points for Mr. Roosevelt from his 1936 strength.

A more significant poll was that of the Ohio State Journal taken on regular voting machines at the Ohio State fair at Columbus. This poll gave Mr. Willkie a two-to-one lead over the president. Ohio, incidentally, has voted for a presidential winner ever since the Civil war. So that Ohio qualifies as a real barometer state.

The fourth poll, reported by the Republican National Committee, was taken among employes of a large copper mine at Globe, Ariz. It also showed the Republican nominee leading two-to-one.

Besides these indicia, we have had recently a notable registration of popular feeling at the primary election polls, this having been out in California where the New Deal was licked to a frazzle. There, Senator Hiram Johnson was a candidate for re-election. Although a Republican, he supported Mr. Roosevelt six years ago and also four years ago. Roosevelt also enthusiastically supported him, referring to him publicly as "that great liberal statesman." But Senator Johnson, like so many others, sickened at the New Deal failures and came out for Willkie. That nettled Mr. Roosevelt to such extent that he indicated that the senator was a liberal no longer and the New Deal support was thrown to a Mr. Ford on the Democratic ticket.

Thus the issue of the New Deal was squarely faced and the result was a painful defeat for it, showing that the Willkie tide is running strong in California. In the Republican primaries, Senator Johnson polled 578,000 votes as against 50,000, 45,000 and 32,000, respectively, against three other candidates. Senator Johnson also went into the Democratic primaries, this being allowed in that state, and there he polled 480,000 votes as against 194,000 for Mr. Patterson and 168,000 for Mr. Ford, the presidential favorite. Other minor candidates drew a total of around 110,000 votes.

Certainly the New Deal is losing out miserably when its chief opponent here wins in his own primaries by a six-to-one vote and polls more votes in the Democratic primaries than all the Democrats combined and three times as many as the Roosevelt choice.

Thus the tide surges toward the Republican nominee and away from the man who would perpetuate himself in the presidency. These registrations are but a continuation of the movement that has been demonstrated in every primary and every bye-election since 1938.

Hitlerian Potentialities In Conscription

NOTING that the real issue presented by conscription is rather one of method than of principle, the New York Herald Tribune pertinently points out that, while conscription of either men or machinery can be a democratic approach to the thing, it can also lead directly to the destruction of democracy.

"Everything depends," it says, "on the form it takes. If in either case the law insists upon an impartial selection by way of carefully defined rules of eligibility with the object of placing the burden of service on those best able to bear and to discharge it, if meanwhile with equal care it limits the term of compulsory service to provide for a recapture of the freedom it proscribes, it follows faithfully the democratic pattern. If, on the other hand, it consists of a loose grant of authority to the executive to pick and choose where he pleases and to make his selection permanent, it becomes simply an invitation to the establishment here of the very type of dictatorship against which the nation at enormous sacrifice is arming."

While the Herald Tribune has favored peacetime conscription in the face of a widespread protest, it admits that the contrast it presents is fundamental and is exhibited at close range in two sections of the Burke-Wadsworth measure.

"The one," it says, "would call up for military training certain classes of young men with every reasonable reservation to fit individual circumstances and a time limit on their impressment. x x x The other, as embodied in the Russell amendment, proposes a conscription of industry to match; only it doesn't match. Instead it would give the president the right to take over any given 'manufacturing plant or facility' without classification which he deemed necessary for the national defense and for whose use either the secretary of war or the secretary of the navy had failed to come to an agreement with its owner, and to take it over for good, the owner to be compensated later as the courts might see fit. This is not conscription in any democratic sense! it is potential Hitlerism.

"Fortunately, the Military Affairs committee of the House seems awake to the essential difference. Already the committee has adopted a substitute for the Russell amendment, sponsored by Representative Smith, of Connecticut, prescribing a lease to the government of the seized 'facility' instead of an outright transfer. This is a slight gain. Much better, though still far from perfect, is the proposal which Representative Vinson, of Georgia, will offer independently from the floor—namely, that the secretaries of war and of the navy be empowered to enter into leasing arrangements with suppliers where there is hopeless disagreement and, should such negotiations come to naught, to refer the difficulty to the National Defense Advisory Commission for conciliation. The commission failing, the Vinson measure would have the latter certify the situation to the president, who could then order conscription of the plant on such terms of compensation as he thought suitable.

"Absent from either substitute is any proper definition of the 'facilities' to be covered. This should exclude all but those which are actual or potential producers of war supplies and specifically newspapers, radio stations and other media of public opinion. Absent also is any limit as to the time within which the seizure may be effected or continued. Unless these omissions are remedied no law of the kind can be other than a bid for a self-perpetuating dictator."

These suggestions, together with the modifications that have thus far been caused by legislative debate and the voice of the people, again emphasize the need for caution in the enactment of any conscription measure.

All of Us Are In Business

ONE of the things Wendell L. Willkie is seeking to do, is to clarify a misconception held by too many persons about business. This misconception, he holds, makes for class warfare, of which we have had entirely too much during the last several years. Particularly unfortunate is the fact that we have had men in high office who have been promoting this sort of thing.

"Directly, or indirectly," Willkie has stated, "all of us are engaged in business. Whether we live on wage earnings or on savings or on life insurance or on government salaries, we get our money from the productive forces of industry and agriculture."

When this fact is appreciated, it can be realized that there is no barrier between business and the people. It is something in which all of them are engaged, rich or poor, in high places or humble.

Willkie has also stressed the important fact that government itself can create no wealth. "Its income comes entirely from the economic enterprises of the people," he states. "There is no such thing as a separate and highly sinister activity called 'business' pursued by a few economic royalists. There are only millions and millions of Americans trying to earn a living. Some rise to executive positions, and some are wage earners. Some work in a big company, some in a small one. But for all of them business is the most important activity of their lives. It is not the function of government to be either the dictator or the enemy of the ten million enterprises in which the people are engaged."

A sensible reminder, indeed, especially needed now in view of the fact that the New Deal entertains a different theory and, by restricting the liberties of the people and expanding the powers of government, has drawn an unjust distinction between business and the people as if one were hostile to the other, whereas they are inseparably and mutually intermingled.

Pierro Cot, air minister in the Leon Blum cabinet, now in New York, offers two more explanations of why France failed to repulse the invader. Experts are checking up to see if they overlap explanations already on file.

In Russia, Germany, Italy and Mexico the dictators can tell to a fraction how many votes they will receive. In this country the people tell the dictator how many he will not receive.

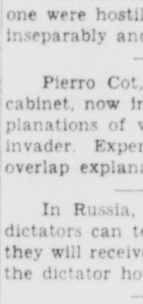

New autumn styles for the college girl include man's hats, coats and socks. And, of course, if she's pretty enough—his fraternity pin.

Matters could be worse. Suppose Mr. Blanton, the Gentleman from Texas, were in Congress now.

The Janitor's Justice

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I was sitting on a desk after hours, talking to a janitor as he piled up the waste paper in a truck and swept and dusted and did the various chores of his occupation . . . And as we talked, in through the door came a shambling figure who said to my friend the janitor: "How's chances of getting half a dollar from you, buddy?"

Marshall Maslin

The janitor leaned on his broom and looked the beggar over. Then he quietly answered: "Yes, I will give you the fifty cents——"

The beggar brightened to attention—and the janitor went on:

"Yes, I will give you the money if you will take my brush and soap and mop and clean out the men's washroom."

"Aw, what're you givin' us?" growled the other fellow.

"But I must clean out the washroom to earn the fifty cents that you ask me to give you—and I do not like it very much—and I will give you that fifty cents if you do it for me."

"Aw! you're nuts!" snarled the panhandling gentleman and faded like the dark before the brightness of that janitor's logic.

And many a time since then have I remembered our janitor's reply and the ease of his victory over that uninvited gentleman who wanted fifty cents of his money but was unwilling to do fifty cents worth of his toil.

The defeat was so complete that the beggar did not even think of turning to me in desperate appeal to rescue him from the astounding position in which he found himself . . . But went away, shaking his head and mumbling and complaining of the sad state of the world.

I respected that janitor before, but afterwards I had doubled respect for him. He had given me a lesson in logic, in the mathematics of justice—something to remember when I am tempted to ask for help without being willing to repay out of my own store.

My friend was not harsh. He was merely just. But so often the other fellow's justice seems like cruelty to us.

Conscription Delay Charge Erroneous, Gen. Johnson Says

Hugh Johnson

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8—The Fish amendment to the selective service act, tentatively adopted by the House, has been erroneously reported as a measure to postpone effectiveness of the selective service law by sixty days. It has other gross faults, but it does not do that.

As soon as the law passes, the government can set up the machinery for registration and classification of manpower. It can proceed, when ready to register them and, rapidly as possible, to classify them in the order of their relative availability for military service with the least possible disturbance of domestic, industrial or social relations.

Must Have Registration

You can't have any actual taking of men into the army under our system until the registration is complete to the last man. You can't have it until the classification has proceeded at least to the point of filling the quotas of each locality. "Filling the quotas" means the actual taking of men for whom the great lottery in Washington has determined that their turn has come and of whom committees of their neighbors have decided that thtre is less reason for them to remain in the civil occupations than exists for other men.

Starting from scratch, this machinery could not possibly be set up, oiled and put in efficient operation to produce 400,000 or even 100,000 men in less than sixty days. All that the Fish amendment provides is that while the machinery may be created as quickly as possible, it can't actually take a single man for sixty days.

Election Facts

Thus, on the cold hard facts, there will be no real delay on this score. Cold hard facts aside, however, the amendment is a mouthful of mush—political mush. The "sixty days delay" is designed to let valiant legislators stand for election before any men have actually been drafted—which will be true but unimportant.

It has another aspect that is important—importantly dangerous. It is worked into the law as a period during which the president may call for 400,000 volunteers and then, actually select only 400,000 men less the number that have volunteered within the sixty days. That is provided so that the fearless statesmen can say in their campaigns that they refused to conscript a single man until no more men would volunteer.

Suggested by Writer

I regret to say that in a somewhat cynical attempt to get this bill passed quickly without one day's delay in effective action, this column suggested this sixty day delay in induction, pointing out that it didn't mean much of anything but might ease the fears of politicians up fo relection.

That column also suggested that if, after men had been selected for class 1 (immediately available for military service), they were not required to wait their turn in the list of lottery numbers but permitted to volunteer to go at once, the quotas could be filled by that kind of volunteer in practically every locality in the nation—filled with men selected as available for military service and no others.

Is Different

That is a very different proposal from the Fish amendment. When men have been notified by their government that its best interest requires that they either go or stay at home, their duty is clearly determined without pressure, stigma or emotion, but if unregulated volunteering is to be glorified by patrioteering tom-tom beating, then all selected men are going to be brought into contempt as unwilling conscripts.

If that happens, the brightest and strongest single feature of selective service goes down and the whole project may fail. You can't have selective service and let men select themselves. Conscription and volunteering won't work together and volunteering won't work at all.—Distributed by United Features Syndicate, Inc.

SUCCESS AND THEN--

Mark Sullivan

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8 — The conscription debate has consumed fourteen legislative days (nineteen calendar week-days) in the Senate, and in the House five days. About all that can possibly be said on both sides or from any angle, including arguments by congressmen, extracts from the testimony of military and other experts before committees of Congress, and reprints of discussions outside Congress—all is in the 2,200 pages of the Congressional Record since August 9. All this, the writer of this column has scanned, much he has read carefully. On this basis, and admitting complete lack of any particular qualification for judgment, the writer has arrived at certain conclusions, or received certain impressions. The most pertinent ones are here stated—subject to the likelihood of error on some points; and subject to the difficulty, the impossibility, of condensing some five or ten million words of Congressional debate into 700 or so words of newspaper despatch:

Defense Needs

The United States needs an air force, from 30,000 to 50,000 thousand planes, with the necessary manpower for pilots and ground service.

The United States needs a navy, very large, probably twice as large as any we ever had.

The United States army does not need to be so large. We need a regular standing army of some 800,000. This would be 500,000 more than the present regular army, which is some 300,000. (Some would say the army should be a million, some a million two hundred thousand.) This should be a professional army, of the greatest attainable skill and training; highly mechanized, most of the men being mechanics, artisans, and engineers of the most skilled type, with especial capacity for cooperation, coordination of services. This army should be as able in team-work as a football squad kept in continuous top-notch training. It should be as adept in coordination of services as that part of the German army, which though not great in numbers, probably not over 100,000, was able to break through the French defenses and thus bring about defeat of a French army of millions.

Career Men Best

Because our regular, standing army, should have these qualities of mechanical skill, and experience in coordination, it should be made up mainly, probably wholly, of professional soldiers—men who join the army as a job, a career, and who remain in it through one enlistment term after another, because they like it as a career; men who join the army in the same spirit in which other men join the police force, or become firemen or school teachers or enter other public services. Steps toward this are now being taken.

Such a regular army, of say 500,000, would be adequate for any foreseeable need. But our policy should take care of even unforeseeable emergency. For this, there should be a great reservoir of partially-trained men who can be called upon for drafting into the regular army.

Training Obvious

To provide this reservoir, if it turns out to be a permanent need, an obvious method would be to furnish training, for not exceeding a year, to young men as they leave school or college. This should be training, as distinct from actual service in the army. The training, if it is confined to training only, can be compulsory and universal. No serious question of principle or of American tradition is involved in requiring young men to take training, the same as they are required to go to school in the ordinary sense. To require men to enter the army, however; to conscript them for service, when the country is not engaged in war, raises just the difficult question of principle which is involved in the pending conscription bill. If the training is compulsory and universal, it should be literally universal, without exemption for any one.

Contingency Exists

There is one possible contingency which might justify enactment of the present conscription bill. This contingency would consist of the following circumstances: (a) conquest of Britain by Germany; (b) including acquisition by Germany of the British fleet; (c) at a time before we will have been able to build up our air force and navy. Such a contingency exists. We are obliged to take account of it. It would be extremely awkward for us. Because this contingency exists, it is to our interest to help Britain, with destroyers or otherwise, so as to prevent the contingency if possible, or postpone it until we are better prepared.

If the contingency above described should actually happen, then possession of even a hastily extemporized army, through the present conscription bill, would be of some value to us.

The Real Question

The question is: admitting this contingency exists and that we should prepare for it as best we can, which would be better? (a) An army hastily extemporized by means of the pending conscription bill; or (b) an army created as rapidly as possible through voluntary enlistment of the kind now going on. Voluntary enlistment is proceeding on a large and rapidly increasing scale. During June, the first full month after Congress authorized more enlistments, the number of recruits was 23,442. In July, it rose to 31,985. The number for August is not yet fully reported. It is estimated to be over 40,000.

The pending conscription bill contemplates an addition of 400,000 before next April. The question is whether voluntary enlistment, with its present ascending rate, would provide a comparable number within a comparable time

Ornamental plants which are not injured, or only slightly attacked, by the Japanese Beetle are calendula, coreopsis, goldenglow, nasturtium, petunia, sweet pea, carnation, cosmos, iris, pachysandra, phlox, tulip, chrysanthemum, four-o'clock, larkspur, pansy, poppy, violet, columbine, gladiolus, lily, peony, and snapdragon, according to Dr. George S. Langford, specialist in insect control for the University of Maryland Extension Service.

A. F. Vierheller, specialist in horticulture for the extension service, says that new spray residue tolerances for 1940 are: Arsenical residue .025 grains per pound of fruit, and lead residue .05 grains per pound of fruit. Last year the tolerances were .01 and .025 respectively.

While the commercial turkey industry in Maryland is a comparatively recent development, a survey showed that turkeys have been raised in the state for nearly 100 years, according to a recent bulletin by the University of Maryland Experiment Station. The survey also showed that for the year 1937-1938 approximately 300,000 turkeys were produced in Maryland.

The United States census of 1935 reports 44,412 farms in Maryland, of which number 12,220 report some acreage in fruit.

Most Maryland poultrymen could increase the returns from their flocks materially if they would work to secure better fall egg production when prices are usually high, according to Dr. Morley A. Jull, head of the University of Maryland Poultry Department.

A Fool's Paradise

From the Industrial News Review

Congress has not had the courage thus far to effect a single important economy to offset record-breaking defense spending, which for the present year will probably run above $20,000,000,000. Income, despite new taxes, will amount to little more than $6,000,000,000. As the New York Times observes, this is enough to show "that our budget has got utterly out of hand."

For the time being, war has obscured the grim fact that this country is moving inexorably toward financial ruin—not only because of debts and deficits in themselves, but because there has been no serious inclination to chart a course that will ultimately bring government spending under control. We have no budget policy, and we have no tax policy. The Federal treasury is regarded as a grab bag. Taxation has been thought of as something with which to soak the rich and get votes. But hidden taxes blanket every necessity and every luxury, and by far the greater part of them are paid by the average citizen. This is the state of the nation financially—a fool's paradise of waste, at a time when it must be strong if it is to survive as a democracy in the stern world of the future.

Bankrupt nations end in anarchy. Anarchy ends in dictatorship, for dictatorship is the only way in which civil order can again be established. Too late the people of a bankrupt democracy discover what keeps democracy alive, namely, a sense of personal responsibility for acts of elected public servants, and full realization of the fact that there is nothing superhuman about government. What government gives, it must first take away. In piling up debt it is taking away from our national future. If it takes away over a long enough period, there will be no future for us as a free people

Bp EDWIN C. HILL

Edwin C. Hill

We were puzzled to find our friend Hymie Augen deeply distressed over the new mechanical baseball umpire which is being developed at Wichita, Kans. We had missed it in the news, but Mr. Augen had a clipping about it in his hat band. Using the electric eye, it calls a strike or a ball when the pitched ball passes through, or misses, the sensitized area above the plate.

Mr. Augen wasn't angry. He was hurt. These are nostalgic days, with this unseasonable weather, and summer fading, and I thought that that was in this mood that Mr. Augen mourned his lost boyhood when he used to yell "robber"! at the umpire.

But it wasn't that. Nor was it the matter of technological unemployment among umpires. I am still not quite sure what it was, although I did make out that, with the peering intrusion of electric eyes, in the van of ruthless change, Mr. Augen is beginning to feel like a planetary alien. His world has moved on and left him behind.

Trust Is Lacking

"It makes a mugg like me think he ought to get fingerprinted with all these foreigners they're putting down in the books," he said. "The trouble with the world now is that nobody trusts anybody. Everything was all right when they left things to the umpire. Pretty soon they'll have an electric eye in the supreme court and a bell will ring when a lawyer makes an offside crack and the judges will be just dummies and a score board will show who won at the end. That's how things are going."

Here Mr. Augen digressed in a dissertation on the mechanical rabbit, for which he has an extreme distaste. It was not quite clear why he disliked it so, until I began to understand that in his view machines are spoil sports and there are more and more complexities in our once simple and innocent enjoyments.

Has No Chance

"Besides," he added, "it's a gyp when you take a dog that's doing his best and let him run himself ragged with everything rigged against him and he hasn't a chance to catch the rabbit and it wouldn't do him any good if he did. Life is getting like that, and if I had anything I'd just sell out and play pinochle a few years before they get the electric eye on that."

"How is a sap ever going to get wised up and quit being a sap if he never went to the Boston Institute of Technology, or whatever it is? You look a bookmaker in the eye and trade a few cracks with him and figure in a few things about people that it took you years to learn and you feel safe when you put down a bet, or satisfied because you didn't. Now I don't say they put in the fix on these pari-mutuel machines, but it's just as easy, maybe easier, to fix a machine as it is a judge. It used to be that the only guys that had anything on you was the plumber and the jeweler that fixed your watch, but you could watch them and put up a squawk if they didn't do right. Now some kind of a machine is always laying it on the line and you can take it or leave it and you can't talk back.

Back Talk Needed

"The more machinery there is in the world, the less back talk. A guy would get fat trying to bop an electric eye with a pop bottle. He could take a shot at a slot machine when he didn't get a jack pot but it wouldn't make him feel any better and he wouldn't understand it even if he shot its insides out. Maybe he would like to play a game of Kelly pool, but there's nothing but pin-ball at the corner drugstore, all circused with trick lights and bells. Maybe you're proud of being a pool shark, but a bimbo with St. Vitus dance might lick you at this pin-ball thing, all riggered up with machinery and, like I said, no back talk.

"It's the same if you go out to Surf Beach and look for some old spieler you used to know and find an electric tin horn there instead. Even the mitt-reader isn't a nice gypsy dame any more in a dark tent. It's a machine which rattles and growls and whams out your fortune when you drop in a penny. What it says is all screwy and you can't say a word. It makes you feel like you didn't have a friend in the world. I'm telling you, the world will keep on being a tough place until more little guys like me and you can talk back."—Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

DEAD RINGER

By MEVA COCHRANE

"Sure we got to do something!" Gregory Goldschmidt yelled in the quiet manner he customarily displayed in polite conversation. "I'm a producer—and what can I produce with a yesterday's favorite like Ilya Marovska? I ask you!" He followed his paunch across and back the office twice, chewing viciously on his cigar.

"You just leave it to me, like you usually do Mr. Goldschmidt!" Terry McShane attempted to placate him. "I have a scheme or two up my sleeve!"

Cheri's Feather Knocked His Hat Off

the sleeve don't put my business back in the black, Terry. What you gotta do is actually produce something like . . . well, anyway produce something. That's your end of the job!"

The practiced talent monger smiled with a strong hint of hope. "All right! Then maybe you'll listen to me for once without mixing all my ideas before I get them out!"

"This one is a corker, G. G.!" McShane said earnestly. "We can't miss on it. Want to hear?"

"Spill it—I can't do less than waste some of my ultra-valuable time listening!"

"Al right, how would you like to sign on Laurelle Dix . . . only it wouldn't be Laurelle Dix?"

The producer's fat cheeks puffed out threatingly. "Don't come at me with no riddles!" he shouted. "Have you got a Laurelle Dix up your sleeve? Is tha' it? She'll cost us a fortune!" He stomped around puffing at the dead cigar.

McShane was used to him and kept on imperturbably. "Laurelle Dix has created a type to replace the old, slinky, glamor type like Marovska," he admitted. "The English companies have spent several bales of lettuce on her promotion so far. Did you know she's coming over here to break in with the Hollywood gang?"

"How could I miss it, when every paper and magazine I look at has a picture of Dix traveling to California incognito—with a feather in her hat two feet long! Well, here you got Dix, or ain't you?"

McShane edged farther away and pulled a photograph from his pocket. "I got something better, G. G.!" he said jubilantly. When the producer grabbed the photo and examined it critically a large question mark framed itself in his eyes. He let McShane continue, however, to show he was listening.

"Know who that is, Boss?" he queried brightly. The Goldschmidt brow voided itself of creases and a broad smile came upon the Goldschmidt features.

"Sure, that's Dix, the star of 'Passion Before Breakfast,' 'The Flaming Heart,' 'Rapture' and a dozen other English hits. Who wouldn't know that?"

"You're wrong, G. G.!" McShane told him quietly, giving his boss a large stage wink. "I got something better than that! You're looking at Cheri Wyant, the cornfed girl from a jerk town in Missouri!"

The produced goggled slightly. "Come again," he pleaded. "You did what?"

"Sure, two weeks ago on my way in from New York I stopped off to judge a local beauty contest. Who do you suppose won it, out of the 100 unknowns that entered?" Again he gave to his boss the exaggerated wink.

"You've got a new buildup for her. I can see right from here it's going to be a knockout!"

"You bet it is, boss! This Wyant gal is going to set the town on fire, the way she'll take on once you get her featured in one of the Gregory Goldschmidt Super Specials! And the country is going to pack the box office. You let me handle the gal!"

"I don't care who handles her, just so we get the young lady's John Henry on the dotted line!" The producer grabbed for the telephone on the desk. "When can you have her here?" he asked Terry, his hand over the mouthpiece, and then shouted into the phone, "Send a man down from the legal department for a hurry job and tell him to bring a blank contract!"

"You won't regret this, G. G.!" McShane grinned appreciatively. "Cheri can act, let me tell you. You can start a whole new Hollywood cycle of homespun, boy-and-girl stuff with her! No more of this dripping, languorous Marovska type of picture!"

"No more of it!" Goldschmidt promised. "Now, Terry, when can you get Dix in here to talk a little business?"

The scout reached for the doorknob. "I brought her right along, G. G.!" he enlightened. "She's waitin' downstairs for me now."

"Smart boy. You get a bonus for pulling a fast one on the trade! Laurelle Dix!" the producer gloated.

"Cheri Wyant, G. G.!" The scout reminded him gently, with another wink. "Remember?"

"Wyant, Dix — what difference does it make?" the producer shrugged happily. "Bring her in!" McShane rushed out, sped down in the elevator, and couldn't help being annoyed as Cheri's feather knocked his hat off as he emerged at the first floor.

It was all over within five minutes of the time she set foot in the office, and Goldschmidt rose to congratulate her upon signing the contract.

"We'll work fine together, I know, Miss Dix!" he calculated, holding her supple little hand in his big paw. "You just leave it to Gregory Goldschmidt! We'll get along!"

"I'm sure we will, but I'm not Laurelle Dix, but Cheri Wyant, like the contract reads!"

The producer grinned. "Sure, I know! You're still incognito! I can tell by the feather!"

McShane cleared his throat untoward the door. "That was no gag, G. G.! Cheri is a dead ringer for Laurelle! Give us your best. . . we're getting married in the morning!" he grinned, and made good use of the open door.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

Back-Buttoning Jumping Dress

Marian Martin

PATTERN 9517

A young schoolgirl's first vote is for a jumper outfit, every time! And no wonder—it's such a smart, versatile mode! This Marian Martin style, Pattern 9517, is especially spirited and becoming. It shows the pinafore influence in an impudent back buttoning. The straps button over to the front in one simple piece. How smart that full-length front panel looks — and what an easy cutting job! The neat little blouse has a choice of long or short sleeves. A good suggestion is to make two blouses for a constant fresh supply. Use the Sew Chart for reference.

Pattern 9517 may be ordered only in girls' sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14. Size 10, jumper, requires 1½ yards 39 inch fabric; long-sleeved blouse, 1⅜ yards contrast; 1⅛ yards 35 inch fabric.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your Size, name, address, and style number.

Your Fashion Future is in the new Marian Martin Pattern Book . . . just off the press! A brilliant forecast of Fall and Winter, with stunning costumes for every age and type. There are pages of "good black dresses" . . . gay "party lines" for evening . . . a college wardrobe line-up. . . youngster school and dress-up modes. You'll see slimming forty-plus frocks, North and South sports clothes and many tailored suits and dresses. Order your copy now. Send 15 cents. Pattern fifteen cents. Book and pattern together, twenty-five cents.

THE DAILY STORY

DEAD RINGER

By MEVA COCHRANE

"Sure we got to do something!" Gregory Goldschmidt yelled in the quiet manner he customarily displayed in polite conversation. "I'm a producer—and what can I produce with a yesterday's favorite like Ilya Marovska? I ask you!" He followed his paunch across and back the office twice, chewing viciously on his cigar.

"You just leave it to me, like you usually do Mr. Goldschmidt!" Terry McShane attempted to placate him. "I have a scheme or two up my sleeve!"

The produced glared. "Tricks up the sleeve don't put my business back in the black, Terry. What you gotta do is actually produce something like . . . well, anyway produce something. That's your end of the job!"

The practiced talent monger smiled with a strong hint of hope. "All right! Then maybe you'll listen to me for once without mixing all my ideas before I get them out!"

"This one is a corker, G. G.!" McShane said earnestly. "We can't miss on it. Want to hear?"

"Spill it—I can't do less than waste some of my ultra-valuable time listening!"

"Al right, how would you like to sign on Laurelle Dix . . . only it wouldn't be Laurelle Dix?"

The producer's fat cheeks puffed out threatingly. "Don't come at me with no riddles!" he shouted. "Have you got a Laurelle Dix up your sleeve? Is tha' it? She'll cost us a fortune!" He stomped around puffing at the dead cigar.

McShane was used to him and kept on imperturbably. "Laurelle Dix has created a type to replace the old, slinky, glamor type like Marovska," he admitted. "The English companies have spent several bales of lettuce on her promotion so far. Did you know she's coming over here to break in with the Hollywood gang?"

"How could I miss it, when every paper and magazine I look at has a picture of Dix traveling to California incognito—with a [illegible] hat two feet long! Well, here you got Dix, or ain't you?"

Cheri's Feather Knocked His Hat Off

McShane edged farther away and pulled a photograph from his pocket. "I got something better, G. G.!" he said jubilantly. When the producer grabbed the photo and examined it critically a large question mark framed itself in his eyes. He let McShane continue, however, to show he was listening.

"Know who that is, Boss?" he queried brightly. The Goldschmidt brow voided itself of creases and a broad smile came upon the Goldschmidt features.

"Sure, that's Dix, the star of 'Passion Before Breakfast,' 'The Flaming Heart,' 'Rapture' and a dozen other English hits. Who wouldn't know that?"

"You're wrong, G. G.!" McShane told him quietly, giving his boss a large stage wink. "I got something better than that! You're looking at Cheri Wyant, the cornfed girl from a jerk town in Missouri!"

The produced goggled slightly. "Come again," he pleaded. "You did what?"

"Sure, two weeks ago on my way in from New York I stopped off to judge a local beauty contest. Who do you suppose won it, out of the 100 unknowns that entered?" Again he gave to his boss the exaggerated wink.

"You've got a new buildup for her. I can see right from here it's going to be a knockout!"

"You bet it is, boss! This Wyant gal is going to set the town on fire, the way she'll take on once you get her featured in one of the Gregory Goldschmidt Super Specials! And the country is going to pack the box office. You let me handle the gal!"

"I don't care who handles her, just so we get the young lady's John Henry on the dotted line!" The producer grabbed for the telephone on the desk. "When can you have her here?" he asked Terry, his hand over the mouthpiece, and then shouted into the phone, "Send a man down from the legal department for a hurry job and tell him to bring a blank contract!"

"You won't regret this, G. G.!" McShane grinned appreciatively. "Cheri can act, let me tell you. You can start a whole new Hollywood cycle of homespun, boy-and-girl stuff with her! No more of this dripping, languorous Marovska type of picture!"

"No more of it!" Goldschmidt promised. "Now, Terry, when can you get Dix in here to talk a little business?"

The scout reached for the doorknob. "I brought her right along, G. G.!" he enlightened. "She's waitin' downstairs for me now."

"Smart boy. You get a bonus for pulling a fast one on the trade! Laurelle Dix!" the producer gloated.

"Cheri Wyant, G. G.!" The scout reminded him gently, with another wink. "Remember?"

"Wyant, Dix — what difference does it make?" the producer shrugged happily. "Bring her in!" McShane rushed out, sped down in the elevator, and couldn't help being annoyed as Cheri's feather knocked his hat off as he emerged at the first floor.

It was all over within five minutes of the time she set foot in the office, and Goldschmidt rose to congratulate her upon signing the contract.

"We'll work fine together, I know, Miss Dix!" he calculated, holding her supple little hand in his big paw. "You just leave it to Gregory Goldschmidt! We'll get along!"

"I'm sure we will, but I'm not Laurelle Dix, but Cheri Wyant, like the contract reads!"

The producer grinned. "Sure, I know! You're still incognito! I can tell by the feather!"

McShane cleared his throat untoward the door. "That was no gag, G. G.! Cheri is a dead ringer for Laurelle! Give us your best. . . we're getting married in the morning!" he grinned, and made good use of the open door.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

Tomorrow: All he wanted was to be alone with the dark-eyed Antoinette. "Repeat Orders," by Glenn Reilly.

Social Events and Items of Interest for the Women

Council of Church Women Sponsor Annual School of Missions Here

The twenty-third annual School of Missions will be held this Thursday and Friday, in St. Luke's Lutheran church, at the corner of Bedford and Columbia streets, under the auspices of the Cumberland Council of Church Women, an interdenominational organization.

The sessions will begin at 10 o'clock. Those attending will bring box lunches and the ladies of St. Luke's church will provide tea and coffee. The afternoon session will begin at 1:30 o'clock.

Miss Laura Parker, an experienced worker among the migrants will teach the home mission study book, "Uprooted Americans."

Mrs. Karl Beck, wife of a missionary to China, will teach the study book on foreign missions, "Uprooted Americans."

Mrs. Karl Beck, wife of a missionary to China, will teach the study book on foreign missions, "Dangerous Opportunity."

Local church women will lead the devotionals, and there will be special music at each session.

The young peoples banquet which was to have been held on Thursday evening has been postponed one week and will be held Thursday, September the nineteenth.

Marriage Announced

Mr. and Mrs. James W. Morris, Patterson avenue, announce the marriage of their daughter, Mary Elizabeth Morris, to Gordon W. Parker, son of Mrs. C. G. Parker and the late Mr. Parker, of Boston, Mass., on September the third at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Harry Dunlap, Wyngate, Md. The Rev. Albert Harkins, Alexandria, Va., performed the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Ida Mae Kellough Becomes Bride of John MacDonald Robb

At 12:30 o'clock Saturday, the First Presbyterian church, Washington street, was the scene of one of the most elaborate weddings of the fall season, when Miss Ida Mae Kellough, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. R. Kellough, 800 Washington street, became the bride of John MacDonald Robb, of Baltimore, son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Robb, Allegany Grove.

The Rev. William A. Eisenberger, pastor of the church, officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was gowned in the traditional bridal simplicity of white slipper satin made on princess lines, with long sleeves, sweetheart neckline and full sweeping train. She wore a long maline veil and a face veil, which were held in place by a tiera of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of gardenias and orchids against a background of an illusion of maline. She wore a pearl necklace which had belonged to her maternal great grandmother.

Mrs. F. C. Crawford, of Ashland, Ky., was matron of honor and wore a gown of royal gold silk jersey, and carried bronze chrysanthemums tied with gold ribbons.

The bridesmaids included; Miss Jean Leatherman, Rada, W. Va.; Miss Violet Cartee, Baltimore; Miss Naomi Enfield, this city; Miss Mary Lee Cramblitt, this city; Miss Helen Twigg, this city; and Miss Marguerite Woolcock, Logan, W. Va.,

Mrs. Crawford, Miss Leatherman and Miss Woolcock were classmates of the bride at Mary Baldwin College.

Miss Leatherman and Miss Cartee wore Cannes blue silk jersey gowns, with quaint basque, and sweetheart neck, and a full gathered skirt on the new long waistline, bracelet sleeves and gloves of the same jersey material, a Juliette cap with veil to match. Miss Enfield and Miss Cramblitt were attired in Lark's egg blue and Miss Twigg and Miss Woodcock were gowned in Delphenium blue. They carried yellow chrysanthemums tied with gold ribbons. The bride and her attendants wore gold slippers.

The bride's mother wore Boy Blue crepe with dubonnet accessories and a corsage of orchids.

The bridegroom's mother was attired in Aqua crepe and lace with black accessories and a corsage of gardenias.

Mr. Robb had as his ushers, Elmer R. Kellough, brother of the bride, George L. Williamson, William Carscaden, Richard M. Bruce, Edwin Filler, Baltimore, and Francis Webster.

Miss Jane Luman sang, "I Love You Truly" and "At Dawning."

Following the ceremony a wedding reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The house was decorated with white asters and Picardy.

The table was adorned with a three-tier wedding cake which held a minature bride and groom, at each end of the table stood double candles tied with bows of maline and satin.

Mrs. Robb's going away costume was a strictly sport Mezzobrown camelshair suit with moss green accessories.

After a wedding trip to Arkansas, New Orleans and Pensacola, Fla., Mr. and Mrs. Robb will reside in Baltimore at Cathedral Apartments 703 Cathedral street.

Miss Ida Mae Kellough Becomes Bride of John MacDonald Robb

At 12:30 o'clock Saturday, the First Presbyterian church, Washington street, was the scene of one of the most elaborate weddings of the fall season, when Miss Ida Mae Kellough, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. R. Kellough, 800 Washington street, became the bride of John MacDonald Robb, of Baltimore, son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Robb, Allegany Grove.

The Rev. William A. Eisenberger, pastor of the church, officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was gowned in the traditional bridal simplicity of white slipper satin made on princess lines, with long sleeves, sweetheart neckline and full sweeping train. She wore a long maline veil and a face veil, which were held in place by a tiera of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of gardenias and orchids against a background of an illusion of maline. She wore a pearl necklace which had belonged to her maternal great grandmother.

Mrs. F. C. Crawford, of Ashland, Ky., was matron of honor and wore a gown of royal gold silk jersey, and carried bronze chrysanthemums tied with gold ribbons.

The bridesmaids included: Miss Jean Leatherman, Rada, W. Va.; Miss Violet Cartee, Baltimore; Miss Naomi Enfield, this city; Miss Mary Lee Cramblitt, this city; Miss Helen Twigg, this city; and Miss Marguerite Woolcock, Logan, W. Va.

Mrs. Crawford, Miss Leatherman and Miss Woolcock were classmates of the bride at Mary Baldwin College.

Miss Leatherman and Miss Cartee wore Cannes blue silk jersey gowns, with quaint basque, and sweetheart neck, and a full gathered skirt on the new long waistline, bracelet sleeves and gloves of the same jersey material, a Juliette cap with veil to match. Miss Enfield and Miss Cramblitt were attired in Lark's egg blue and Miss Twigg and Miss Woodcock were gowned in Delphenium blue. They carried yellow chrysanthemums tied with gold ribbons. The bride and her attendants wore gold slippers.

The bride's mother wore Boy Blue crepe with dubonnet accessories and a corsage of orchids.

The bridegroom's mother was attired in Aqua crepe and lace with black accessories and a corsage of gardenias.

Mr. Robb had as his ushers, Elmer R. Kellough, brother of the bride, George L. Williamson, William Carscaden, Richard M. Bruce, Edwin Filler, Baltimore, and Francis Webster.

Miss Jane Luman sang, "I Love You Truly" and "At Dawning."

Following the ceremony a wedding reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The house was decorated with white asters and Picardy.

The table was adorned with a three-tier wedding cake which held a minature bride and groom, at each end of the table stood double candles tied with bows of maline and satin.

Mrs. Robb's going away costume was a strictly sport Mezzobrown camelshair suit with moss green accessories.

Married on Birthday

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Snyder, 408 Magruder street, announce the marriage of their daughter, Audrey Elizabeth, to Jack Weisly Ault, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ault, 717 Greene street.

The ceremony was performed on June 21, which was the bride's twenty-first birthday. The Rev. Vernon N. Ridgely, pastor of Center street Methodist church, officiated.

Miss Leona W. Oliver Married in Parsonage

Miss Leona W. Oliver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert R. Oliver, 14 North Lee Street, was married Thursday evening to Jacob McLaughlin, son of Mrs. May McLaughlin, 21 Offutt street, by the Rev. George E. Baughman at the parsonage of the First Methodist church, Bedford street.

The bride wore a gown of true blue with a sweetheart neckline and carried a bouquet of pink rosebuds and baby breath, and wore a halo of roses.

Miss Anna Belle McLaughlin, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid, and wore a gown of soldier blue and shoulder corsage of pink rose buds.

Herbert Brown was best man.

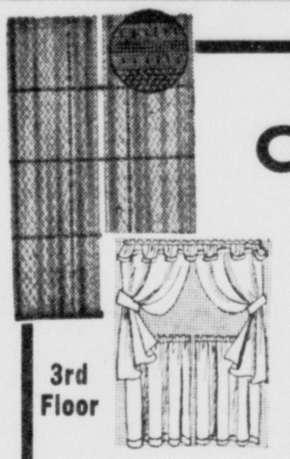

Marriage Announced

Miss Ellen F. Stewart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Stewart, 519 City View terrace, and Theodore F. Bolt, son of Mrs. Wilhelmina F. Bolt, of Eckhart, were married July 16 at a nuptial mass at SS. Peter and Paul church, Fayette street, by the Rev. Father Luke, O. F. M. Cap.

The attendants were Miss Martha Kabosky and Arthur Valenzano.

Good Manners

Theaters Today

Brunet Star Is In Garden Film

Nancy Kelly, brunet star, appears with Robert Cummings, Hugh Herbert and Roland Young in the Universal comedy, "Private Affairs," now showing at the Garden theater.

In her fifth year Nancy made her movie debut in "The Untamed Lady", starring Gloria Swanson. In all, she appeared in fifty-two pictures made on Long Island before she was chosen for the role of Gertrude Lawrence's daughter in the Broadway stage play, "Susan and God."

Nancy's part in the play won her a Hollywood film contract and in slightly more than a year in the film colony she was appearing in such pictures as "Stanley and Livingstone," "Jesse James," "He Married His Wife" and "Swanee River."

The co-feature at the Garden is "'Til We Meet Again", with George Brent, Pat O'Brien, Merle Oberon and Geraldine Fitzgerald.

Fighting Plentiful In Oil Field Drama

The old adage that "a man must fight" descended upon Clark Gable and Spencer Tracy with a vengeance and a purpose in their latest picture, "Boom Town", action drama of oil men now at the Maryland theater with Claudette Colbert and Hedy Lamarr playing feminine leads in the all-star cast.

Playing rough-and-ready, two-fisted, wildcatting oil men, the two male stars were called upon to engage in no less than five fist fights, two of which are played for considerable footage. In the first of these, the two stars become friends when, together, they whip three muggs. The last fight in the picture is between Gable and Tracy themselves, taking place in a swanky Mahattan office.

The men are not the only ones who fight in the picture. Feminine battling does not extend to Miss Colbert or Miss Lamarr, but Marion Martin and Carlotta Monte indulge in a biting, scratching, slapping and hair-pulling fracas.

Colman Is Attorney and Witness in Feature

Ronald Colman plays a sort of a dual role in "Lucky Partners," RKO Radio comedy romance co-starring Ginger Rogers, now showing at the New Liberty theater.

In a climactic courtroom sequence, Colman, Ginger and Jack Carson face the bar of justice on mix-ups growing out of a platonic honeymoon trip to a Niagara Falls hotel.

Colman, acting as his own counsel, requests permission of the judge to put himself on the stand and ask himself few questions.

Functioning in the two capacities of defense attorney and witness, he proceeds to ask himself questions and then answer them, merely changing physical positions to change the characters.

Two Features Are Offered by Embassy

Robert E. Sherwood's "Waterloo Bridge," made into a love story, starring Vivien Leigh and Robert Taylor is showing at the Embassy theater.

With its background of London of the war years, 1917 and 1940, the story is woven around a ballet dancer and an aristocratic young British officer, who meet on historic Waterloo Bridge during an air raid and seek shelter in the Waterloo underground. They realize that they are in love almost at first sight and their whirlwind courtship is telescoped into twenty-four happy hours. But before they can be married he is called back to the front.

Also showing at the Embassy is "Evils of the Road."

Crosby Picture Is Offered at Strand

Bing Crosby is at the Strand today for the last times in his latest starring vehicle entitled "Rhythm on The River." Supporting Bing are Mary Martin, Basil Rathbone, Oscar Shaw, Lillian Cornell and Oscar Lavant of the "Information Please" program.

There are seven new hit tunes in the picture, much comedy and a love story. It is said to be Bing's best picture to date.

The added features include the novelty "Popular Science" a Popeye cartoon and the Paramount and Fox new flashes.

Tomorrow one day only on the stage will be "Fat's Waller" and his famous orchestra. Lovers of hot rhythm and swing music will find this band one of the top notch entertaining ones of the season. This is one of the only engagements the band will play in Maryland before their engagement at the Strand theater in New York. See tomorrows paper for the title of the screen show.

READ THIS FIRST

Gun Cotton, famous Scotland Yard agent, becomes interested in a stranger, who calls himself Pullinger, and has an agent assigned to follow him, but the latter loses the trail. Gun's superior, known only as X, is interested also, but assigns Cotton to the case of a missing bomber. The agent goes to a new "hush-hush" station where new and secret types of military planes are tested. When Gun goes up with Squadron Leader Hazeldeane in a very closely-guarded plane, which supposedly contains important secrets of construction and equipment, but really does not, he gets a radio message to meet another plane, G.1313, which takes off to meet the R. A. F. mystery plane.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

"WE COULDN'T capture the men!" said X, impatiently. "They will have had their instructions."

The War Office interposed:

"You're right, of course! But at least we know something—a big, black plane, numbered G.1313 in red. I suppose you're acting on that?"

"I am doing all that is possible. Observers in all parts are looking out for it. But I am relying mostly on my man in X. O. O. I regard him as one of my best men!"

"Hazeldeane is a first-class man, too!" put in the Air Force official, evidently determined not to be outdone.

"And what," asked W. O., of X, "do you think their chances are of getting back to tell us anything?"

X shrugged.

"Oh, say about ten to one against!" he answered. He glanced at his watch. "We should be hearing something soon," he added. "It's near the dawn."

There came a rap at one of the doors, which opened to reveal the interior of a small, sound-proof closet. A man with earphones on addressed X.

"Another message just through, sir!"

He handed X a slip of flimsy paper, and X, having glanced at it, read it aloud to the others:

"G. calling X from plane X. O. O. We now are over Cape Clear. Flying at two thousand six hundred feet, over a dense cloud bank. In five minutes we set our course W. S. W. and start again. Tony."

"So far so good!" commented Air Force.

"And a ten to one chance against getting back, eh!" murmured the W. O. "Poor devils!"

X laughed, almost boyishly.

"I shouldn't waste any sympathy on them—or, at any rate, not on Cotton," he said. "It's the sort of thing he thoroughly enjoys. Besides, he's had his full share of everything that can happen to a man.

To the thoughtful earthling the breaking of day is a beautiful, and often an awe-inspiring sight at any time. To one who happens to be skimming the upper edge of a cloud bank at an altitude of over two thousand feet, the awesomeness of the phenomenon is considerably added to. Gun, sailing through the air in the golden pinkness of that particular dawn, might have felt himself a god sailing paradisical seas of ether—had it not been for what was impending. But it was the importance of his mission, and not the danger attached to it, that was impressing him.

Soon after the first streaks of light had broken the darkness above their little plane, another message had come through.

"X calling G. X calling G. Toni. Toni. Other plane will probably communicate on same wave-length. Send all future messages on wave-length 281.7 m., 1,112 k. c., and use personal code with same password. Acknowledge, and repeat wave-length."

To which Gun replied:

"Message received. Future messages wave-length 281.7 m., 1,112 k. c. Personal code and same password, Tony.

Gun repeated the message over the radio-phone to Tommy Hazeldeane, whose comment was:

"Smart lads. They think of everything!"

They flew on and on, at the same slow pace. The view was monotonous. Below them white clouds piled like drifting snow. Above them darker clouds, ominously heaped.

Then, presently, the cloud belt above broke, and the sun, warm and dazzling, shone on them. But only for a short while. Suddenly Gun became conscious of a shadow that fell across them and, looking quickly up, came near to catching his breath. For flying about three hundred feet above, on a parallel course to their own and directly over them, was a gigantic black plane of the bomber type!

Seen thus, the thing looked more than sinister, it looked almost incredibly menacing, like a gigantic bird of prey hovering over their small, defenseless plane. Nor did the scarlet numerals on the underside of the great sable wings—"G.1313"—do anything to set Gun's mind at rest. After all, the bomber had disappeared—and what better method of causing the total disappearance of a plane than to send it hurtling and blazing into the sea below.

The radio-phone blared suddenly at him, in the distorted voice of Tommy Hazeldeane:

"Here comes ours, Gun—sit tight, my lad, I'm away out of this!"

There came the added roar of the accelerated engine, and next moment Tommy had gone into a nose dive, so that they plunged headlong into the cold, damp obscurity of the clouds below them.

"That's better!" came Tommy's voice, in relief, as he flattened out again.

Then the radio sputtered, and commenced to toot out, in the War Office code A.3:

"X. C. O. . . . X. O. O. . . . G.1313 calling X. O. O. . . .!"

Gun answered, and another message immediately:

"X. O. O. . . . G.1313 calling X. O. O. What are you doing? Have you been instructed to follow our directions?"

"We won't seem to fall for it too easily!" thought Gun to himself, as he tapped out in reply:

"G.1313. . . . X. O. O. calling G.1313. Message received. The answer is in the affirmative. But who is that sending?"

And got reply:

"X. O. O. . . . G.1313 calling X. O. O. Message sent by squadron Leader Trent, P. Are you ready to follow our directions?"

"Hello, Tommy," said Gun, through the phone. "Ever heard of a Squadron Leader P. Trent?"

"Yes," came the answer. "Last I heard of him he was at Woolwich. What about him, anyway?"

"He's supposed to be in charge of that black plane, that's all!"

"I'm a bit of a liar myself!" said Tommy.

Gun tapped out:

". . . Thank you. Await your directions."

A pause. Then the answer:

"Rise clear of cloud bank. When you sight us, trail on about one mile in rear, and follow us until further instructions received."

To which Gun replied:

"Directions received. Am carrying out immediately."

As they began to climb he tapped out a message to X on the new wave length:

"Have sighted G.1313, and am instructed to follow it. Am complying. Any further instructions, please?"

The answer was:

"Follow plane as directed. Do exactly what they say up to reasonable point—then use own discretion. Report to me every half hour."

Out of the cloud bank and into the sunshine once more, they picked up the black plane, flying a little behind them. Tommy reversed this position, and presently they were following the sinister black plane, at about a mile to the rear and above it in altitude.

It became a sort of game of follow my leader, for the black plane started to twist and turn at intervals in the most eccentric manner. Sometimes she would fly for miles on a dead straight course, and then suddenly swing off to right angles. Then take a circle, and seem to double back on her tracks, and then shoot off again to left or right. Fly straight again for a time, and then more or less repeat the performance.

After about an hour and a half of this, Gun, who had already reported once to X in the interim, said through the phone:

"I say, Tommy, have you any idea where we are?"

And Tommy's answer came back:

"Wandering vaguely somewhere over the continent of Europe is about all I can say at the moment. But I'm keeping notes, and we'll be able to work it out later—if any. Meantime these quick changes have got me beaten!"

"Which, I imagine," remarked Gun, "is precisely what they are intended to do."

Another half-hour of these tactics, and then came the message:

"We shall now land. You will follow down, using all necessary precautions."

Gun acknowledged the message with a curt "O. K."

He passed instructions on to Tommy, and a few moments later the leading plane dropped into the cloud bank and disappeared. After waiting a short time, and as per instructions, "using all necessary precautions," Tommy followed suit. The cloud was considerable, and when they finally emerged below it the altimeter registered only seven hundred and fifty feet.

"Land-ho!" cried Tommy through the phone. "And a sail on the starboard bow!"

This was right enough. The black plane was about a mile away, and slightly to their right. There was terra firma below, and no sign of the sea from that height.

The land looked rugged and hilly, with a number of big, stark pine woods, and no sign of town or village in their vicinity, but away to the west there was some sort of a town, with factory chimneys sticking up.

"What do you make of it, Tommy?" Gun asked. "Where are we?"

"Ask me another!" was the answer. "But it looks like Germany to me. Sort of district where they keep their blooming schlosses, or whatever they call them!"

Over the radio there came further directions:

"You will now follow us. Shortly we shall land, so be prepared. You will follow us down!"

Again Gun sent back the brief "O. K." The black plane turned her nose to the southwest, and they were off once more.

They flew for perhaps a dozen miles, and then, in what looked like a sort of gigantic bird's nest amid the pine-strewed hilltops, Gun saw what was obviously an ideal natural landing ground. It struck him, too, that nature had been somewhat improved upon by a human touch or two—the clearing of trees and bushes, and so on.

The big plane descended, and finally made a skillful landing in the cup below, leaving maximum space for the smaller machine.

Tommy handled the plane with the utmost skill, and made a safe and easy landing, bringing the plane to a stop, as Gun noted with approval, in a position strategically good for a quick and safe take-off again if necessary.

There were three men in the other plane, and all of them had climbed down by the time Tommy had landed. Two stood by the plane. The third, a short distance away, had slipped out of his flying kit, revealing beneath it the uniform of a squadron leader in the British Air Force.

"Trying to establish confidence," was Gun's mental note.

As they both climbed out of the scout, the man turned toward them.

There was a queer silence in the place. The first sound that broke the stillness was the low murmur of voices as the two men standing by the big plane spoke together. Gun had good ears, and he could just catch a fragment or two of their conversation. They spoke in English—or, rather, American, but the American accent in its popularity has internationalized all languages, so that an American voice did not mean that it necessarily came from an American throat.

". . . we want, but who's the other guy, anyway?"

"Guess he's some sort of assistant, or partner. Might be pretty useful—sometimes the hired man'll talk easier than the boss, and maybe know darned near as much."

Gun was quick to catch the point, and whispered hastily to Tommy Hazeldeane:

"If any questions are asked, I'm your assistant—your confidential assistant. Don't forget!"

Good Manners

Theaters Today

Brunet Star Is In Garden Film

Nancy Kelly, brunet star, appears with Robert Cummings, Hugh Herbert and Roland Young in the Universal comedy, "Private Affairs," now showing at the Garden theater.

In her fifth year Nancy made her movie debut in "The Untamed Lady", starring Gloria Swanson. In all, she appeared in fifty-two pictures made on Long Island before she was chosen for the role of Gertrude Lawrence's daughter in the Broadway stage play, "Susan and God."

Nancy's part in the play won her a Hollywood film contract and in slightly more than a year in the film colony she was appearing in such pictures as "Stanley and Livingstone," "Jesse James," "He Married His Wife" and "Swance River."

The co-feature at the Garden is "'Til We Meet Again", with George Brent, Pat O'Brien, Merle Oberon and Geraldine Fitzgerald.

Fighting Plentiful In Oil Field Drama

The old adage that "a man must fight" descended upon Clark Gable and Spencer Tracy with a vengeance and a purpose in their latest picture, "Boom Town", action drama of oil men now at the Maryland theater with Claudette Colbert and Hedy Lamarr playing feminine leads in the all-star cast.

Playing rough-and-ready, two-fisted, wildcatting oil men, the two male stars were called upon to engage in no less than five fist fights, two of which are played for considerable footage. In the first of these, the two stars become friends when, together, they whip three muggs. The last fight in the picture is between Gable and Tracy themselves, taking place in a swanky Mahattan office.

The men are not the only ones who fight in the picture. Feminine battling does not extend to Miss Colbert or Miss Lamarr, but Marion Martin and Carlotta Monte indulge in a biting, scratching, slapping and hair-pulling fracas.

Colman Is Attorney and Witness in Feature

Ronald Colman plays a sort of a dual role in "Lucky Partners," RKO Radio comedy romance co-starring Ginger Rogers, now showing at the New Liberty theater.

In a climactic courtroom sequence, Colman, Ginger and Jack Carson face the bar of justice on mix-ups growing out of a platonic honeymoon trip to a Niagara Falls hotel.

Colman, acting as his own counsel, requests permission of the judge to put himself on the stand and ask himself few questions.

Functioning in the two capacities of defense attorney and witness, he proceeds to ask himself questions and then answer them, merely changing physical positions to change the characters.

Two Features Are Offered by Embassy

Robert E. Sherwood's "Waterloo Bridge," made into a love story, starring Vivien Leigh and Robert Taylor is showing at the Embassy theater.

With its background of London of the war years, 1917 and 1940, the story is woven around a ballet dancer and an aristocratic young British officer, who meet on historic Waterloo Bridge during an air raid and seek shelter in the Waterloo underground. They realize that they are in love almost at first sight and their whirlwind courtship is telescoped into twenty-four happy hours. But before they can be married he is called back to the front.

Also showing at the Embassy is "Evils of the Road."

Crosby Picture Is Offered at Strand

Bing Crosby is at the Strand today for the last times in his latest starring vehicle entitled "Rhythm on The River." Supporting Bing are Mary Martin, Basil Rathbone, Oscar Shaw, Lillian Cornell and Oscar Lavant of the "Information Please" program.

There are seven new hit tunes in the picture, much comedy and a love story. It is said to be Bing's best picture to date.

The added features include the novelty "Popular Science" a Popeye cartoon and the Paramount and Fox new flashes.

Tomorrow one day only on the stage will be "Fat's Waller" and his famous orchestra. Lovers of hot rhythm and swing music will find this band one of the top notch entertaining ones of the season. This is one of the only engagements the band will play in Maryland before their engagement at the Strand theater in New York. See tomorrows paper for the title of the screen show.

Gun Cotton, famous Scotland Yard agent, becomes interested in a stranger, who calls himself Pullinger, and has an agent assigned to follow him, but th. latter loses the trail. Gun's superior, known only as X, is interested also, but assigns Cotton to the case of a missing bomber. The agent goes to a new "hush-hush" station where new and secret types of military planes are tested. When Gun goes up with Squadron Leader Hazeldeane in a very closely-guarded plane, which supposedly contains important secrets of construction and equipment, but really does not, he gets a radio message to meet another plane, G.1313, which takes off to meet the R. A. F. mystery plane.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

"WE COULDN'T capture the men!" said X, impatiently. "They will have had their instructions."

The War Office interposed:

"You're right, of course! But at least we know something—a big, black plane, numbered G.1313 in red. I suppose you're acting on that?"

"I am doing all that is possible. Observers in all parts are looking out for it. But I am relying mostly on my man in X. O. O I regard him as one of my best men!"

"Hazeldeane is a first-class man, too!" put in the Air Force official, evidently determined not to be outdone.

"And what," asked W. O. of X, "do you think their chances are of getting back to tell us anything?"

X shrugged.

"Oh, say about ten to one against!" he answered. He glanced at his watch. "We should be hearing something soon," he added. "It's near the dawn."

There came a rap at one of the doors, which opened to reveal the interior of a small, sound-proof closet. A man with earphones on addressed X.

"Another message just through, sir!"

He handed X a slip of flimsy paper, and X, having glanced at it, read it aloud to the others:

"G. calling X from plane X. O. O. We now are over Cape Clear. Flying at two thousand six hundred feet, over a dense cloud bank. In five minutes we set our course W. S. W. and start again. Tony."

"So far so good!" commented Air Force.

"And a ten to one chance against getting back, eh!" murmured the W. O. "Poor devils!"

X laughed, almost boyishly.

"I shouldn't waste any sympathy on them—or, at any rate, not on Cotton," he said. "It's the sort of thing he thoroughly enjoys. Besides, he's had his full share of everything that can happen to a man.

"Directions received. Am carrying out immediately."

As they began to climb he tapped out a message to X on the new wave length:

"Have sighted G.1313, and am instructed to follow it. Am complying. Any further instructions, please?"

The answer was:

"Follow plane as directed. Do exactly what they say up to reasonable point—then use own discretion. Report to me every half hour."

Out of the cloud bank and into the sunshine once more, they picked up the black plane, flying a little behind them. Tommy reversed this position, and presently they were following the sinister black plane, at about a mile to the rear and above it in altitude.

It became a sort of game of follow my leader, for the black plane started to twist and turn at intervals in the most eccentric manner. Sometimes she would fly for miles on a dead straight course, and then suddenly swing off to right angles. Then take a circle, and seem to double back on her tracks, and then shoot off again to left or right. Fly straight again for a time, and then more or less repeat the performance.

After about an hour and a half of this, Gun, who had already reported once to X in the interim, said through the phone:

"I say, Tommy, have you any idea where we are?"

And Tommy's answer came back:

"Wandering vaguely somewhere over the continent of Europe is about all I can say at the moment. But I'm keeping notes, and we'll be able to work it out later—if any. Meantime these quick changes have got me beaten!"

"Which, I imagine," remarked Gun, "is precisely what they are intended to do."

Another half-hour of these tactics, and then came the message:

"We shall now land. You will follow down, using all necessary precautions."

Gun acknowledged the message with a curt "O. K."

He passed instructions on to Tommy, and a few moments later the leading plane dropped into the cloud bank and disappeared. After waiting a short time, and as per instructions, "using all necessary precautions," Tommy followed suit. The cloud was considerable, and when they finally emerged below it the altimeter registered only seven hundred and fifty feet.

"Land-ho!" cried Tommy through the phone. "And a sail on the starboard bow!"

This was right enough. The black plane was about a mile away, and slightly to their right. There was terra firma below, and no sign of the sea from that height.

The land looked rugged and hilly, with a number of big, stark pine woods, and no sign of town or village in their vicinity, but away to the west there was some sort of a town, with factory chimneys sticking up.

"What do you make of it, Tommy?" Gun asked. "Where are we?"

"Ask me another!" was the answer. "But it looks like Germany to me. Sort of district where they keep their blooming schlosses, or whatever they call them!"

Over the radio there came further directions:

"You will now follow us. Shortly we shall land, so be prepared. You will follow us down!"

Again Gun sent back the brief "O. K." The black plane turned her nose to the southwest, and they were off once more.

They flew for perhaps a dozen miles, and then, in what looked like a sort of gigantic bird's nest amid the pine-strewed hilltops, Gun saw what was obviously an ideal natural landing ground. It struck him, too, that nature had been somewhat improved upon by a human touch or two—the clearing of trees and bushes, and so on.

The big plane descended, and finally made a skillful landing in the cup below, leaving maximum space for the smaller machine.

Tommy handled the plane with the utmost skill, and made a safe and easy landing, bringing the plane to a stop, as Gun noted with approval, in a position strategically good for a quick and safe take-off again if necessary.

There were three men in the other plane, and all of them had climbed down by the time Tommy had landed. Two stood by the plane. The third, a short distance away, had slipped out of his flying kit, revealing beneath it the uniform of a squadron leader in the British Air Force.

"Trying to establish confidence," was Gun's mental note.

As they both climbed out of the scout, the man turned toward them.

There was a queer silence in the place. The first sound that broke the stillness was the low murmur of voices as the two men standing by the big plane spoke together. Gun had good ears, and he could just catch a fragment or two of their conversation. They spoke in English—or, rather, American, but the American accent in its popularity has internationalized all languages, so that an American voice did not mean that it necessarily came from an American throat.

". . . we want, but who's the other guy, anyway?"

"Guess he's some sort of assistant, or partner. Might be pretty useful—sometimes the hired man'll talk easier than the boss, and maybe know darned near as much."

Gun was quick to catch the point, and whispered hastily to Tommy Hazeldeane:

"If any questions are asked, I'm your assistant—your confidential assistant. Don't forget!"

Injury Seldom Causes Diabetes, Doctor States

It Can Be Produced by Fractured Skull or the Like

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Does an injury ever cause diabetes?

Theoretically, yes; practically, no. Diabetes can be produced in laboratory animals by injuring a certain spot on the brain. Medical reports frequently appear which claim that after a fractured skull, diabetes developed suddenly. But diabetes often develops suddenly anyway and there is little direct proof linking these accidents with the development of the disease. Dr. Elliot Joslin, of Boston, who has had an enormous experience, writes:

"So far as I can remember no definite case in which I considered injury a cause of diabetes has occurred among approximately 19,000 patients with diabetes who have consulted me. I know of no surgeon who has postponed an operation on a patient because of the possibility that injury would bring on diabetes."

Dr. Boch, of Harvard, writes: "So far as I can determine, no case of diabetes following injury has occurred among athletes at Harvard."

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Prunes and Acidity

Do prunes cause acidity?

Some weeks ago I wrote in this column in answer to a question asking for a list of acid-producing foods, that the only vegetables that are acid-producing are prunes and cranberries. I have received a protest from the California Prune Growers' Association, giving me specific data on the subject, and I am glad to make a correction here. Various food experts have analyzed prunes and their effect in the body and found that they affect the acid-base balance very little, and if at all they tend to produce slight alkalinity, not acidity, as was once thought.

This universal breakfast dish also has energy value, mineral and vitamin content. The laxative effect has long been recognized. Research has discovered that the laxative effect of prunes is not due entirely to bulk or roughage, but that prunes have a chemical incorporated in them which has cathartic properties similar to many drugs.

Dentifrices

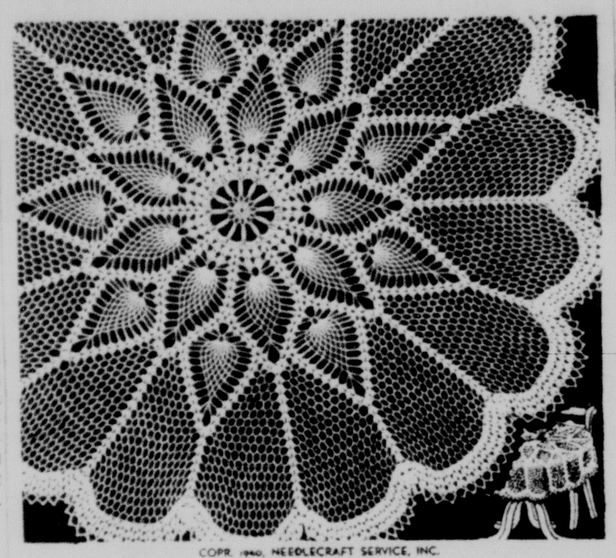

What is the best dentifrice?

Dentifrices are generally thought of by the average person as divided into powders, which have an abrasive action, and pastes, which are cleansing. But there is really not much difference between most of the powders and pastes. The basis of most dentifrices is soap. The abrasive materials are powdered chalk, pumice stone and orris root, although the American Dental Association's Council on Dental Therapeutics will not now approve of dentifrices with orris root, because many people are allegedly sensitive to it. They also disapprove of potassium chlorate, sodium perborate, which may give rise to burns of the mouth, and drugs related to carbolic acid.

The Council also frowns on dentifrices with markedly abrasive elements. Dentifrices are usually made alkaline, and flavored with oil of peppermint, or oil of cinnamon. A home-made dentifrice can be made by using hard soap in fine powder 50 parts, precipitated calcium carbonate 935 parts, oil of peppermint or oil of cinnamon, 2 parts, methylsalicylate 8 parts. The powder should be stirred while adding the flavoring oils a little at a time and then shaken vigorously in a Mason jar. But this is not likely to be cheaper than the many good dentifrices on the market.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. "The Authority on Authorities"

GET RID OF COMPLEXES

COMPLEXES of one kind or another are the bane of countless otherwise good players. We find complexes both for and against certain kinds of contracts. One player will be a No Trump hound, who seeks to get into those contracts whenever possible. Another will be afraid of No Trumps because somebody once ran a long suit against him. Still others are timid about trump suits containing only four cards, even when there are four trumps opposite. None of these pay. The one complex to keep, when you get rid of the others, is that which makes you strive for the contract which is most likely to pay the greatest profit.

(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

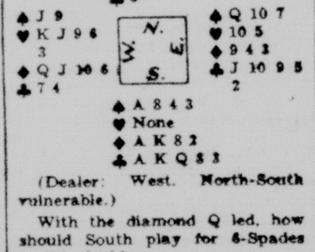

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♦	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT

As soon as North heard from his partner's diamonds, his No Trump complex gripped him by the throat, and he forgot all about the heart suit which he originally intended to bid on his second turn. So at 3-No Trumps he tried it against a club lead, but could eke out only eight tricks—one in clubs, two in diamonds, three in hearts and two in spades.

After South's 2-Diamonds, North's bid was properly 2-Hearts, which South would have taken to 3-Hearts and then North to 4 Hearts. Better still would have been a first round response of 2-Hearts by South to North's 1-Spade, so that the diamonds could have been bid safely on the next turn. North would, of course, have raised that, and the side would have reached a heart game. But when neither will bid his four-card major suit, the side surely can't reach the most desirable, usually, of all contracts. The heart game obviously is easy to make, with the loss of one trick each in trumps, clubs and diamonds, although both red suits are badly divided.

The Swiss Are Going Home

BERNE (AP)—Swiss citizens living in war countries have been pouring into Switzerland, driven from their homes by invasion.

Their compatriots at home have made a considerable financial effort to help these citizens to start life again in their native country.

Contributions have poured in from rich as well as poor and many workers have given up a day's pay to ease distress.

All officers of the Swiss General staff agreed to give up one day's pay and turned over 3,500 Swiss francs ($800) to the homecomers.

Street Project To Get Underway At Coney Today

Star Alley To Be Black-Topped as First Step in $3,500 Program

LONACONING, Sept. 8 — Lonaconing's street-paving project, which is to cost between $3,000 and $3,500, will start tomorrow (Monday) morning when work on Star Alley, one of three streets to be blacktopped, will get underway. The Cumberland Contracting Company will do the work.

Besides Star Alley, Douglas avenue and Jackson street will also be covered. The Alley at present has a black covering, but is in bad shape. On Douglas avenue, which now is brick, the black-top will be laid from the Main street intersection for approximately 800 feet, or to the properties now on the site of the Old Castle school grounds. On Jackson street, which is also brick, the portion to be covered will be from the Cumberland and Pennsylvania railroad tracks to the cross roads near the Jackson Street school.

Engagement Announced

Dr. and Mrs. George D. Campbell, East Main street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Eleanor J. Campbell, Wilmington, Del., to Dr. Marvin H. Hodgson, San Francisco, Calif., son of Dr. Henry M. Hodgson, of Lonaconing, and Mrs. Carl Perry, Laguna Beach, California.

Miss Campbell is a graduate of Central high school and Hood college, Frederick, and for the past several years has been a member of the advertising department of the Dupont Company in Wilmington. Dr. Hodgson is a graduate of Central high school and Stanford university, California, and is practicing medicine in San Francisco.

The wedding will take place here in November.

Treasurer Resigns

Miss Margaret Hepburn, treasurer of the Lonaconing unit of the American Red Cross, has resigned her post, it was disclosed today by Miss Nellie Sloan, head of the local organization. Miss Sarah Bradburn will take over her duties.

It was also announced that wool is now available for sweaters and those who would like to start knitting can get material to do so. Sewing material will also be on hand soon.

The George's Creek Homemakers Club recently donated $4.05 for the War Relief fund, it was announced.

Lonaconing Personals

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Hamilton, Church street, are vacationing in the White Mountains, N. H.

James Campbell, who has been vacationing in Bermuda, will return today.

Mr. and Mrs. David Darnley and Mr. and Mrs. William Dobson are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Byron McCann, Dundalk.

William Atkinson, Roanoke, Va., is visiting relatives.

Clara Jean Dick has returned from the Reeves clinic, Westernport.

Miss Esther Broderick has returned to Washington after spending a month with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Broderick, Water-ville street.

Miss Virginia Grindle, Detmold street has entered Memorial hospital, Cumberland, as a student nurse.

Mrs. Lloyd Durst and Mrs. Edna Lindoe, who have been spending the summer at Rehobeth Beach, returned Friday.

More Polio Cases

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 8 (AP) — County Health Officer A. J. Harper said a suspected case of infantile paralysis at Lumberport has been confirmed and another suspected case is under observation. The four county's first case of the malady, which has caused postponement of schools in fifteen West Virginia counties, was reported at Shippi yesterday by County Health Officer W. Scott Smith.

August Rainfall Only Inch above Normal

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 8 (AP) — Residents of the New and Kanawha river valleys who saw their homes inundated by a sudden flood in mid-August might find it difficult to believe, but the month's precipitation in West Virginia was just slightly more than one inch above normal.

The government weather bureau, basing a preliminary report on records of 87 of 120 reporting stations, said today August rainfall averaged 5.08 inches.

As might be expected, it was greatest in the southern section, 12 inches, the area which bore the brunt of the flood which caused hundreds of thousands of dollars damage to river shipping and industrial plants.

Extend All Material Aid to Britain, Moorefield Jurist Urges at Picnic

Judge Harlan M. Calhoun Hits Delay in Passing Draft Bill

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., Sept. 8—Passage of the conscription bill and extension of material aid to England were urged by Judge Harlan M. Calhoun, of Moorefield, in a talk yesterday at the fourth annual John Marshall highway picnic at Wardensville.

"Congress is the slowest group of people in America to wake up to the seriousness of America's need for immediate preparedness," Judge Calhoun said.

The jurist hit at what he called the inconsistency of Congress in appropriating fifteen billion dollars for defense and then hesitating to pass legislation calling for men to serve.

"America is the chief stumbling block to Hitler in his march toward world dominion," the speaker declared in urging that the United States aid England by making available to her needed war materials.

Judge Calhoun, of the Twenty-Second Judicial circuit, was the featured speaker at the picnic in the absence of Representative A. Willis Robertson, of the Seventh Virginia district, and Representative Jennings Randolph, of the Second West Virginia district, both of whom were detained in Washington to vote on the conscription bill.

The picnic is sponsored annually by the Capon Valley Board of Trade and the Strasburg, Va., Chamber of Commerce, who are trying to get the state road commissions of Virginia and West Virginia to complete the paving of the road between Wardensville, W. Va., and Strasburg, Va. The paving of this stretch of road will shorten the distance between Charleston, the state capitol, and the national capitol at Washington by fifty miles. The Virginia State Road Commission allocated $130,000 for the completion of the seventeen-mile road between Strasburg and the West Virginia state line provided West Virginia completes, or gives assurance of completing, the five-mile stretch in West Virginia. Virginia has already completed about six miles of its portion of the highway.

West Virginia state road officials have given no assurance of completing their part of the road, but Arthur Davidson, editor of the Northern Virginia Daily, and master of ceremonies at the celebration, pointed out that with a state road prison camp now located within ten miles of the proposed road, it was practical and proper to complete the highway.

State Senator Burr P. Harrison, Winchester, Va., spoke on the program and pledged his continued activity and support for the completion of the proposed road. Prosecuting Attorney Ralph J. Bean of Hardy county and spokesman for the Moorefield group, told of the efforts of the Hardy county organizations toward completing the negotiations for the work. He pledged further activity on the part of the Hardy county group.

Newton W. Borden, secretary of the Strasburg Chamber of Commerce, also addressed the group and gave a short history of progress of the inter-state organization.

The Northern Virginia Concert Band furnished the music. A crowd estimated at 1,200 from the two states was present.

Kindergarten Will Re-Open Next Week

Westernport Social Welfare Club To Sponsor Pre-School Classes

WESTERNPORT, Sept. 8—The kindergarten sponsored by the Social Welfare club will re-open Monday, September 16, when registration of children will be held.

Two Garrett County Men Held on Liquor Charges

Two Garrett county men were in the Allegany county jail here today to await hearings before United States Commissioner James Alfred Avirett on charges of violating the federal liquor laws.

The men, booked as Cecil Rosenberger and Frank Walsh, were arrested yesterday afternoon when federal alcohol tax unit agents raided a 40-gallon still they were allegedly operating in the woods near Finzel, five miles west of Frostburg.

ATU Agent Charles E. Cushaw, who made the raid along with Agent David H. Walter, said a little over a gallon of whiskey and 100 gallons of mash were confiscated.

Custodians Named For Frostburg's New High School

John D. Keller, John H. Goldsworthy and Roy Devore Appointed

FROSTBURG, Sept. 8—Announcement has been made by the Allegany county school board of the appointment of three well-known Frostburgers as custodians of Frostburg's new high school, which is expected to be ready for occupancy November 1. They are John D. Keller, 29 Beall Lane; John H. Goldsworthy, 25 Park avenue; and Roy Devore, West Loo street.

Mr. Keller, until recently a magistrate of the local police court, is a former city commissioner and also served the city as a chief of police. He is an active member of the Frostburg Fire Department.

Mr. Devore, a former employe of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, is a World war veteran, having served overseas with Company H, 313th Infantry B, 307 Engineers. He was honorably discharged from the U. S. army May 20, 1919.

Mr. Goldsworthy has been employed by the Consolidation Coal Company for many years and at the present time is working as a call inspector on the tipple at Eckhart Mines. He gained much prominence as a young man for his ability as a bicycle racer, defeating the late Hance Willison, Cumberland, in what many persons recall as the greatest bicycle race ever held in Allegany county.

Announcement has also been officially made of the selection of three Frostburg women as assistants in the cafateria of the new school. They are Mrs. Evelyn Pfeiffer Reed, Mrs. Nellie Thompson and Mrs. Emma Keller. They will work under the direction of Miss Bess Volk, dietician and member of the school faculty.

Old-Time Country Doctor Succumbs After Half-Century of Service

MAYSVILLE, Sept. 8.—Death today had closed the career of an old-time country doctor, who rode many miles on horseback to bring relief to the suffering in this section.

He was Dr. William Thomas Highberger, who died Friday at the age of 80. Ill health had forced him to retire three years ago after completing more than a half-century of service.

Dr. Highberger was born at Sharpsburg, Md., a son of the late Samuel and Helen Boyd Highberger. He received his pre-medical education at Shepherd college, graduating in 1879. Four years later he completed his medical course at the University of Maryland and opened his office here in October, 1883.

In addition to ministering to the sick, a task which made him known and loved by hundreds, Dr. Highberger was active in church and civic affairs. He organized the first Sunday school in Maysville fifty years ago and served as its superintendent until his death. He was a member of the Methodist church.

Surviving are two sisters, Misses Helen and Frances Highberger, of Sharpsburg, and a brother, Robert Highberger, of Maysville. His wife, the former Charlotte Vossler II, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Vossler, of Maysville, died thirteen years ago.

Frostburg State Teachers College Opens Today, with 225 Enrolled

Another 1940 Graduate Is Placed; Only Four without Positions

FROSTBURG, Sept. 8 — The thirty-ninth annual session of State Teachers College will open tomorrow (Monday) morning at 9 o'clock with an expected attendance of 225 students in the four professional classes.

President John L. Dunkle stated today that ninety freshmen have already enrolled and possibly a few additional new students will enter during the week. All members of the faculty returned to Frostburg last week and held a faculty conference Friday morning in preparation for the opening of the college.

Announcement was made Saturday of the appointment of Miss Helen Whitworth, Westernport, a 1940 graduate of the college, to a teaching position at the Seat Pleasant school, Prince Georges county, leaving only four graduates with the class of 1940 yet to be placed in positions. Miss Whitworth, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Smith Whitworth, is a graduate of Bruce high school, Westernport, in the class of 1936. During her college career she was active as a representative of the Day Council and the Y.W.C.A. She was a member of the Phi Omicrom Delta fraternity.

Davis Team Wins Tucker County Softball Crown

Championship Game Is Highlight as 25th Annual Fair Closes

PARSONS, W. Va., Sept. 8 — Softball games and contests marked the conclusion of the twenty-sixth annual Tucker County fair Saturday.

The softball finals for the championship of the county were played off by Thomas and Davis, with Davis easily winning. The model airplane contest, held at the Pulp Mill Botton field, was won by Gus Nutter, Coketon, whose rubber-band model stayed in the air for four minutes and fifteen seconds. Two crowning features of the fair, the Queen's Ball and the parade, took place on Friday.

The Queen's Ball, honoring Miss Hilda Wippel, Queen VII, Thomas, and the fair princesses was held Friday evening in the Parsons high school gymnasium. Music was by the Society Ramblers, featuring Bud Corneallius, Cumberland vocalist. An estimated 225 couples attended the dance.

The general parade, viewed by an estimated 3,000 persons, consisted of bands, firemen and floats. First place band honors went to Mickey's Band, Mt. Lake Park, Md., and second to the Accident Concert Band, Accident, Md. Awards for best drill teams went to the Westernport Fire Department, first, and the Terra Alta Fire Department, second.

Mt. Savage Votes To Continue School Strike

Midland Meeting Is Postponed; Mayor Ash To Confer with Kopp

MT. SAVAGE, Sept. 8—(Special)—Mt. Savage citizens tonight renewed their determination to win a new high school for their community by voting to keep their children out of classes until some definite action is taken by the Allegany county board of education toward this end.

At a mass meeting in the school auditorium, more than 500 citizens decided to continue their dramatic protest against the transfer of their high school department to Frostburg. Not only are nearly 100 high school students remaining out of classes, but more than 400 elementary and junior high pupils are also remaining home in a "sympathy" demonstration.

Despite the vote to continue the strike—which was opposed by only two persons—leaders urged each parent to make his own decision and promised that children whose parents want them to go to school may do so without molestation.

Ask to See Kopp

Meanwhile, Mayor Verl Ash of Midland announced the mass meeting scheduled at Midland tonight had been postponed pending the outcome of a conference tomorrow (Monday) afternoon with Charles L. Kopp, county superintendent of schools.

(Mayor Ash added, however, that children of eight communities in the Midland area whose elementary schools have been abolished or higher grades transferred to Frostburg will remain out of school again tomorrow. The number of pupils involved is in the neighborhood of 400).

One new development at the Mt. Savage meeting was protest against use of the word "strike" in referring to the stay-out-of-school program. James E. Crump, backed by other speakers, said the movement was a "protection program."

Crump, one of the leaders in the fight for a new high school, said the program was developed to protect Allegany county from "dictatorship," and more particularly, to protect Mt. Savage against loss of its high school.

A plea to make the battle one for the citizens, rather than the school children, was made by Harold Sweene, who suggested that the children stay at home and let their parents take any action that may be needed.

A former New York school teacher, about whom little could be learned tonight, gave fresh impetus to the fight in a talk which brought wild applause from the audience. She was Mrs. Verna Berry, who said that in more than a decade of teaching experience she had never seen a school building in worse condition than the one here.

Favors Small Schools

Mrs. Berry said she favored small schools, even though their equipment might be inferior to larger consolidated schools, because of the "individual interest" in a community school.

The citizens were urged to continue their battle by Charles M. See, a member of the House of Delegates, who declared that the board of education should be guided in its actions by the taxpayers who foot the bill.

Calling for election of the board of education, he told the citizens to "do away with this ring that is dictating to the people of Allegany county."

"If you permit the board of education to take your high school from you, the whole county will lose," See asserted.

Discusses Bus Transportation

See also criticized School Superintendent Kopp for his stand on an anti-bus-overcrowding measure passed by the last legislature. The House of Delegates member said that Kopp had written a letter opposing passage of the bill on the ground that the purchase of extra buses to relieve over crowding would raise transportation costs.

The bill passed, nevertheless, See said, stating that it provided that in a middle-aisle bus, only twenty-five per cent of the load can be standing; and in a bus with no middle-aisle, only ten per cent can be standing. This is the law, he added, advising citizens to report any violations.

Lester B. Reed, another member of the House of Delegates, took issue with Superintendent Kopp on the safety of bus transportation, citing instances of accidents in Maryland and other states.

Mrs. Isobel Adams, who presided, predicted that if citizens permit the

Street Project To Get Underway At Coney Today

Star Alley To Be Black-Topped as First Step in $3,500 Program

LONACONING, Sept. 8 — Lonaconing's street-paving project, which is to cost between $3,000 and $3,500, will start tomorrow (Monday) morning when work on Star Alley, one of three streets to be blacktopped, will get underway. The Cumberland Contracting Company will do the work.

Besides Star Alley, Douglas avenue and Jackson street will also be covered. The Alley at present has a black covering, but is in bad shape. On Douglas avenue, which now is brick, the black-top will be laid from the Main street intersection for approximately 800 feet, or to the properties now on the site of the Old Castle school grounds. On Jackson street, which is also brick, the portion to be covered will be from the Cumberland and Pennsylvania railroad tracks to the cross roads near the Jackson Street school.

Engagement Announced

Dr. and Mrs. George D. Campbell, East Main street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Eleanor L. Campbell, Wilmington, Del., to Dr. Marvin H. Hodgson, San Francisco, Calif., son of Dr. Henry M. Hodgson, of Lonaconing, and Mrs. Carl Perry, Laguna Beach, California.

Miss Campbell is a graduate of Central high school and Hood college, Frederick, and for the past several years has been a member of the advertising department of the Dupont Company in Wilmington. Dr. Hodgson is a graduate of Central high school and Stanford university, California, and is practicing medicine in San Francisco.

The wedding will take place here in November.

Treasurer Resigns

Miss Margaret Hepburn, treasurer of the Lonaconing unit of the American Red Cross, has resigned her post, it was disclosed today by Miss Nellie Sloan, head of the local organization. Miss Sarah Bradburn will take over her duties.

It was also announced that wool is now available for sweaters and those who would like to start knitting can get material to do so. Sewing material will also be on hand soon.

The George's Creek Homemakers club recently donated $4.05 for the War Relief fund, it was announced.

Lonaconing Personals

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Hamilton, Church street, are vacationing in the White Mountains, N. H.

James Campbell, who has been vacationing in Bermuda, will return today.

Mr. and Mrs. David Darnley and Mr. and Mrs. William Dobson are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Byron McCann, Dundalk.

William Atkinson, Roanoke, Va., is visiting relatives.

Clara Jean Dick has returned from the Reeves clinic, Westernport.

Mrs. Lloyd Durst and Mrs. Edna Rhodoe, who have been spending the summer at Rehobeth Beach, Del., reutrned Friday.

More Polio Cases

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 8 (AP)— County Health Officer A. J. Kemper said a suspected case of infantile paralysis at Lumberport has been confirmed and another suspected case is under observation. It is Harrison county's first case of the disease, which has caused postponement of schools in fifteen West Virginia counties, was reported at Bridgeport yesterday by County Health Officer W. Scott Smith.

August Rainfall Only Inch above Normal

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 8 (AP) — Residents of the Ohio and Kanawha river valleys who saw their homes inundated by a sudden flood in mid-August might find it difficult to believe, but the month's precipitation in West Virginia was just slightly more than one inch above normal.

The government weather bureau, basing a preliminary report on records of 87 of 120 reporting stations, said today August rainfall averaged 5.08 inches.

As might be expected, it was highest in the southern section, 12 inches, the area which bore the brunt of the flood which caused hundreds of thousands of dollars damage to river shipping and industrial plants.

Extend All Material Aid to Britain, Moorefield Jurist Urges at Picnic

Judge Harlan M. Calhoun Hits Delay in Passing Draft Bill

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., Sept. 8—Passage of the conscription bill and extension of material aid to England were urged by Judge Harlan M. Calhoun, of Moorefield, in a talk yesterday at the fourth annual John Marshall highway picnic at Wardensville.

"Congress is the slowest group of people in America to wake up to the seriousness of America's need for immediate preparedness," Judge Calhoun said.

The jurist hit at what he called the inconsistency of Congress in appropriating fifteen billion dollars for defense and then hesitating to pass legislation calling for men to serve.

"America is the chief stumbling block to Hitler in his march toward world dominion," the speaker declared in urging that the United States aid England by making available to her needed war materials.

Judge Calhoun, of the Twenty-Second Judicial circuit, was the featured speaker at the picnic in the absence of Representative A. Willis Robertson, of the Seventh Virginia district, and Representative Jennings Randolph, of the Second West Virginia district, both of whom were detained in Washington to vote on the conscription bill.

The picnic is sponsored annually by the Capon Valley Board of Trade and the Strasburg, Va., Chamber of Commerce, who are trying to get the state road commissions of Virginia and West Virginia to complete the paving of the road between Wardensville, W. Va., and Strasburg, Va. The paving of this stretch of road will shorten the distance between Charleston, the state capitol, and the national capitol at Washington by fifty miles. The Virginia State Road Commission allocated $130,000 for the completion of the seventeen-mile road between Strasburg and the West Virginia state line provided West Virginia completes, or gives assurance of completing, the five-mile stretch in West Virginia. Virginia has already completed about six miles of its portion of the highway.

West Virginia state road officials have given no assurance of completing their part of the road, but Arthur Davidson, editor of the Northern Virginia Daily, and master of ceremonies at the celebration, pointed out that with a state road prison camp now located within ten miles of the proposed road, it was practical and proper to complete the highway.

State Senator Burr P. Harrison, Winchester, Va., spoke on the program and pledged his continued activity and support for the completion of the proposed road. Prosecuting Attorney Ralph J. Bean of Hardy county and spokesman for the Moorefield group, told of the efforts of the Hardy county organizations toward completing the negotiations for the work. He pledged further activity on the part of the Hardy county group.

Newton W. Borden, secretary of the Strasburg Chamber of Commerce, also addressed the group and gave a short history of progress of the inter-state organization.

The Northern Virginia Concert Band furnished the music. A crowd estimated at 1,200 from the two states was present.

Two Garrett County Men Held on Liquor Charges

Two Garrett county men were in the Allegany county jail here today to await hearings before United States Commissioner James Alfred Avirett on charges of violating the federal liquor laws.

The men, booked as Cecil Rosenberger and Frank Walsh, were arrested yesterday afternoon when federal alcohol tax unit agents raided a 40-gallon still they were allegedly operating in the woods near Finzel, five miles west of Frostburg.

ATU Agent Charles E. Cushaw who made the raid along with Agent David H. Walter, said a little over a gallon of whiskey and 100 gallons of mash were confiscated.

Custodians Named For Frostburg's New High School

John D. Keller, John H. Goldsworthy and Roy Devore Appointed

FROSTBURG, Sept. 8—Announcement has been made by the Allegany county school board of the appointment of three well-known Frostburgers as custodians of Frostburg's new high school, which is expected to be ready for occupancy November 1. They are John D. Keller, 29 Beall Lane; John H. Goldsworthy, 25 Park avenue; and Roy Devore, West Loo street.

Mr. Keller, until recently a magistrate of the local police court, is a former city commissioner and also served the city as a chief of police. He is an active member of the Frostburg Fire Department.

Mr. Devore, a former employe of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, is a World war veteran, having served overseas with Company H, 313th Infantry B, 307 Engineers. He was honorably discharged from the U. S. army May 20, 1919.

Mr. Goldsworthy has been employed by the Consolidation Coal Company for many years and at the present time is working as a call inspector on the tipple at Eckhart Mines. He gained much prominence as a young man for his ability as a bicycle racer, defeating the late Hance Willison, Cumberland, in what many persons recall as the greatest bicycle race ever held in Allegany county.

Announcement has also been officially made of the selection of three Frostburg women as assistants in the cafateria of the new school. They are Mrs. Evelyn Pfeiffer Reed, Mrs. Nellie Thompson and Mrs. Emma Keller. They will work under the direction of Miss Bess Volk, dietician and member of the school faculty.

Old-Time Country Doctor Succumbs After Half-Century of Service

MAYSVILLE, Sept. 8.—Death today had closed the career of an old-time country doctor, who rode many miles on horseback to bring relief to the suffering in this section.

He was Dr. William Thomas Highberger, who died Friday at the age of 80. Ill health had forced him to retire three years ago after completing more than a half-century of service.

Dr. Highberger was born at Sharpsburg, Md., a son of the late Samuel and Helen Boyd Highberger. He received his pre-medical education at Shepherd college, graduating in 1879. Four years later he completed his medical course at the University of Maryland and opened his office here in October, 1883.

In addition to ministering to the sick, a task which made him known and loved by hundreds, Dr. Highberger was active in church and civic affairs. He organized the first Sunday school in Maysville fifty years ago and served as its superintendent until his death. He was a member of the Methodist church.

Surviving are two sisters, Misses Helen and Frances Highberger, of Sharpsburg, and a brother, Robert Highberger, of Maysville. His wife, the former Charlotte Vossler II, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Vossler, of Maysville, died thirteen years ago.

Frostburg State Teachers College Opens Today, with 225 Enrolled

Another 1940 Graduate Is Placed; Only Four without Positions

FROSTBURG, Sept. 8 — The thirty-ninth annual session of State Teachers College will open tomorrow (Monday) morning at 9 o'clock with an expected attendance of 225 students in the four professional classes.

President John L. Dunkle stated today that ninety freshmen have already enrolled and possibly a few additional new students will enter during the week. All members of the faculty returned to Frostburg last week and held a faculty conference Friday morning in preparation for the opening of the college.

Announcement was made Saturday of the appointment of Miss Helen Whitworth, Westernport, a 1940 graduate of the college, to a teaching position at the Seat Pleasant school, Prince Georges county, leaving only four graduates with the class of 1940 yet to be placed in positions. Miss Whitworth, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Smith Whitworth, is a graduate of Bruce high school, Westernport, in the class of 1936. During her college career she was active as a representative of the Day Council and the Y.W.C.A. She was a member of the Phi Omicrom Delta fraternity.

Davis Team Wins Tucker County Softball Crown

Championship Game Is Highlight as 25th Annual Fair Closes

PARSONS, W. Va., Sept. 8 — Softball games and contests marked the conclusion of the twenty-sixth annual Tucker County fair Saturday.

The softball finals for the championship of the county were played off by Thomas and Davis, with Davis easily winning. The model airplane contest, held at the Pulp Mill Botton field, was won by Gus Nutter, Coketon, whose rubber-band model stayed in the air for four minutes and fifteen seconds. Two crowning features of the fair, the Queen's Ball and the parade, took place on Friday.

The Queen's Ball, honoring Miss Hilda Wippel, Queen VII, Thomas, and the fair princesses was held Friday evening in the Parsons high school gymnasium. Music was by the Society Ramblers, featuring Bud Cornealius, Cumberland vocalist. An estimated 225 couples attended the dance.

The general parade, viewed by an estimated 3,000 persons, consisted of bands, firemen and floats. First place band honors went to Mickey's Band, Mt. Lake Park, Md., and second to the Accident Concert Band, Accident, Md. Awards for best drill teams went to the Westernport Fire Department, first, and the Terra Alta Fire Department, second.

Mt. Savage Votes To Continue School Strike

Midland Meeting Is Postponed; Mayor Ash To Confer with Kopp

MT. SAVAGE, Sept. 8—(Special)—Mt. Savage citizens tonight renewed their determination to win a new high school for their community by voting to keep their children out of classes until some definite action is taken by the Allegany county board of education toward this end.

At a mass meeting in the school auditorium, more than 500 citizens decided to continue their dramatic protest against the transfer of their high school department to Frostburg. Not only are nearly 100 high school students remaining out of classes, but more than 400 elementary and junior high pupils are also remaining home in a "sympathy" demonstration.

Despite the vote to continue the strike—which was opposed by only two persons—leaders urged each parent to make his own decision and promised that children whose parents want them to go to school may do so without molestation.

Ask to See Kopp

Meanwhile, Mayor Verl Ash of Midland announced the mass meeting scheduled at Midland tonight had been postponed pending the outcome of a conference tomorrow (Monday) afternoon with Charles L. Kopp, county superintendent of schools.

(Mayor Ash added, however, that children of eight communities in the Midland area whose elementary schools have been abolished or higher grades transferred to Frostburg will remain out of school again tomorrow. The number of pupils involved is in the neighborhood of 400).

One new development at the Mt. Savage meeting was protest against use of the word "strike" in referring to the stay-out-of-school program. James E. Crump, backed by other speakers, said the movement was a "protection program."

Crump, one of the leaders in the fight for a new high school, said the program was developed to protect Allegany county from "dictatorship," and more particularly, to protect Mt. Savage against loss of its high school.

A plea to make the battle one for the citizens, rather than the school children, was made by Harold Sweene, who suggested that the children stay at home and let their parents take any action that may be needed.

A former New York school teacher, about whom little could be learned tonight, gave fresh impetus to the fight in a talk which brought wild applause from the audience. She was Mrs. Verna Berry, who said that in more than a decade of teaching experience she had never seen a school building in worse condition than the one here.

Favors Small Schools

Mrs. Berry said she favored small schools, even though their equipment might be inferior to larger consolidated schools, because of the "individual interest" in a "community school."

The citizens were urged to continue their battle by Charles M. See, a member of the House of Delegates, who declared that the board of education should be guided in its actions by the taxpayers who foot the bill.

Calling for election of the board of education, he told the citizens to "do away with this ring that is dictating to the people of Allegany county."

"If you permit the board of education to take your high school from you, the whole county will lose," See asserted.

Discusses Bus Transportation

See also criticized School Superintendent Kopp for his stand on an anti-bus-overcrowding measure passed by the last legislature. The House of Delegates member said that Kopp had written a letter opposing passage of the bill on the ground that the purchase of extra buses to relieve over crowding would raise transportation costs.

The bill passed, nevertheless, See said, stating that it provided that in a middle-aisle bus, only twenty-five per cent of the load can be standing; and in a bus with no middle-aisle, only ten per cent can be standing. This is the law, he added, advising citizens to report any violations.

Lester B. Reed, another member of the House of Delegates, took issue with Superintendent Kopp on the safety of bus transportation, citing instances of accidents in Maryland and other states.

Mrs. Isobel Adams, who presided, predicted that if citizens permit the

PROCLAMATION OF THE GOVERNOR OF MARYLAND PROPOSING AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE

WHEREAS, at the January session of the General Assembly of Maryland, held in the year 1939, the following Acts were passed, providing for the submission of said amendments to the qualified voters of the State of Maryland for adoption or rejection;

Chapter 40 — proposing an amendment to Section 17 of Article 4 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, title "Judiciary Department," sub-title "Part 2—Court of Appeals," providing for appointment by the Court of Appeals of the Clerk of said Court;

Chapter 163 — proposing an amendment to Article IV of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, adding thereto two new sections, to be numbered 41-A and 41-B under a new sub-title "Part V-A—People's Courts," and to follow immediately after Section 41 of said Article, providing for the establishment of People's Courts;

Chapter 200 — proposing to amend Section 21 of Article 4, title "Judiciary Department," sub-title Part III—Circuit Courts," of the Constitution of this State, providing for an additional Judge in the Seventh Judicial Circuit of Maryland;

Chapter 247 — proposing an amendment to Section 15 of Article 3 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, title "Legislative Department," regulating the period that the General Assembly may continue its session and the compensation of the members thereof;

Chapter 371 — proposing to amend Section 21 of Article 4, title "Judicary Department," sub-title "Part III—Circuit Courts," of the Constitution of this State, providing for the residential qualification and method of selection of Associate Judges in the Third Judicial Circuit;

Chapter 381 — proposing an amendment to Section 1, Article II, title "Executive Department," of the State Constitution, to provide that a Governor shall not be eligible to succeed himself for the term directly following that for which he was elected;

Chapter 771 — proposing an amendment to Article III of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, adding thereto one new section, to be numbered 35A and to follow immediately after Section 35 of said Article, providing that nothing in the Constitution shall exempt the salary or compensation of any judge or other public officer from the imposition of a nondiscriminatory tax upon income; in words and figures as follows:

CHAPTER 40

AN ACT to propose an amendment to Section 17 of Article 4 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, title "Judiciary Department," sub-title "Part 2—Court of Appeals," providing for appointment by the Court of Appeals of the Clerk of said Court, and providing for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of the State of Maryland for adoption or rejection.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland (three-fifths of all the members of each of the two Houses concurring), That the following be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to Section 17 of Article 4 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, title "Judiciary Department," sub-title "Part 2—Court of Appeals," the same if adopted by the legally qualified voters of the State, as herein provided, to become Section 17 of Article 4 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland.

17. There shall be a Clerk of the Court of Appeals, who, after the expiration of the current term of the present incumbent, shall be appointed by and shall hold his office at the pleasure of said Court of Appeals.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That said aforegoing section, hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of this State, shall be, at the next general election to be held in this State in the year 1940, submitted to the legal and qualified voters of the State for adoption or rejection, in pursuance of the directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State, and at the said general election the vote on the said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot there shall be printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment" and "Against the Constitutional Amendment," as now provided by law, and immediately after said election due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment, as directed by said Fourteenth Article of the Constitution, and further proceedings had in accordance with said Article Fourteen.

Approved: March 10, 1939.

CHAPTER 163

AN ACT to propose an amendment to Article IV of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, adding thereto two new sections, to be numbered 41-A and 41-B under a new sub-title "Part V-A—People's Courts," and to follow immediately after Section 41 of said Article, providing for the establishment of People's Courts, and to provide for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of the State for adoption or rejection.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland (three-fifths of all the members of each of the two Houses concurring), That the following be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to Article IV of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, the same if adopted by the legally qualified voters of the State, as herein provided, to become a part of said Article IV of said Constitution and to be numbered and sub-titled as aforesaid.

PART V-A—PEOPLE'S COURTS

41-A. There is hereby created a People's Court of Baltimore City. Said Court shall consist originally of a Chief Judge and two Associate Judges; the number of such Judges may thereafter be increased or decreased by the General Assembly by law but no such decrease shall affect the term of any Judge then in office or his right to stand for election for further terms as hereinafter provided. The Judges of said Court shall have the qualifications prescribed by Section 2 of this Article and shall have practiced law in the City of Baltimore for a total period of at least five years. They shall hold office subject to the provisions of Sections 3 and 4 of this Article with regard to retirement and removal from office; and shall receive from the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore City such compensation as shall be fixed by law by the General Assembly, which shall not be diminished during continuance in office.

The Governor shall appoint to said Court, to take office on the first Monday of May, 1941, one Associate Judge for a term expiring December 31, 1942; one Associate Judge for a term expiring December 31, 1944; and a Chief Judge for a term expiring December 31, 1946; and, upon the creation of any additional office on said Court by increase in the number of Judges pursuant to this Section, shall appoint an Associate Judge for such term, not exceeding eight years and expiring on the thirty-first day of December immediately following a Congressional election, as the law creating such office shall prescribe. Any vacancy occurs during any such original term, the Governor shall appoint a successor to serve for the remainder of such term. After the expiration of said original terms, the terms of office of said Court shall be for eight years from the expiration of the preceding term, and shall be filled as follows:

(1) Any incumbent Judge of said Court shall be eligible, at the Congressional election immediately preceding the expiration of his period of appointment or term, for election or re-election to succeed himself in or for a further term of eight years, except as provided in (3) hereof; or (b) for the unexpired remainder of the current eight year term, if his appointment will expire before the end of such term. No person other than an incumbent Judge shall be eligible for election to said Court.

(2) Whenever a vacancy shall occur on said Court from any cause the Governor shall appoint to said Court a Judge who shall hold office under such appointment until the thirty-first day of December immediately following the first Congressional election occurring six months or more after the date of his appointment. No Judge of said Court, who has stood for election to succeed himself and not been elected, shall thereafter be appointed to said Court, and no Judge of said Court, who has failed to stand for election when eligible, shall be appointed to succeed himself.

(3) In order to qualify for election or re-election an incumbent Judge shall file with the Supervisors of Elections of Baltimore City not later than thirty days before the date of the applicable election a certificate signed and duly acknowledged, stating the basis of his eligibility and the term or remainder of term for which he is eligible for election. Thereupon, the name of such Judge, together with a statement of the term or remainder of term for which he is eligible, shall be placed upon the ballot to be used in said City in such election, with no party designation whatever and with no opposing candidate, with space provided to permit any voter to cast his vote for or against the continuance in office of such Judge; if the votes cast for the continuance in office of such Judge represent a majority of all the votes cast for or against his continuance in office, such Judge shall hold office for the unexpired remainder of the term or for the full term of eight years, as the case may be.

Unless his office shall have been abolished pursuant to this Section, each Judge of said Court shall continue to hold office after the expiration of his period of appointment or term until a successor shall qualify. As used in this Section, "Congressional election" means any of the biennial elections at which members of the House of Representatives are regularly chosen.

Said Court shall have such jurisdiction (which may be made exclusive as to any class or classes of civil cases in Baltimore City), with such right of appeal, therefrom, and the Chief Judge and Associate Judges thereof shall have such powers and duties, as the General Assembly shall prescribe from time to time by law. The Judges of said Court shall have the power to regulate by rules the administration, procedure and practice of said Court; such rules shall have the force of law until rescinded or modified by said Judges or the General Assembly. Unless otherwise provided by law, (1) all powers granted by this Section or by law to said Court or the Judges thereof as a body may be exercised by a majority of the Judges thereof, and (2) said Court shall not be a Court of Record.

There shall be a Chief Constable of said Court, who shall perform therein the duties prescribed for Clerks of Court by Section 10 of this Article and such other duties as shall be prescribed by law or by rule of said Court. Such Chief Constable shall be appointed, in the manner hereinafter prescribed, by the Judges of said Court, and such Chief Constable shall appoint, in the manner hereinafter prescribed, all original and subsequent and additional constables and clerks employed pursuant to this Section, and shall supervise and direct the work of all such constables and clerks. There shall be appointed originally fourteen such constables and sixteen such clerks; the number of either may, on the joint recommendation of said Court and said Chief Constable, be increased by the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore City; no vacancy in the position of any constable or clerk, however arising, shall be filled by said Chief Constable unless the Judges of said Court and said Chief Constable shall expressly find that the filling of such vacancy is necessary for the efficient operation of said Court. The positions of said Chief Constable and of all such constables and clerks shall be positions in the Classified City Service of Baltimore and the provisions of the Charter of said City with respect to said City Service are hereby expressly made applicable thereto, provided that, the Chief Constable at the time this amendment becomes effective shall continue and remain in said position and immediately become a member of said Classified City Service of Baltimore; all such positions shall be classified by the City Service Commission and all appointments, promotions, transfers, reinstatements, and removals with respect to such positions shall be made only in accordance with the provisions, rules and regulations of said Classified City Service in force from time to time. Such Chief Constable and all of such other constables and all such clerks shall receive from the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore City such compensation as said Mayor and City Council shall prescribe. Constables and clerks shall perform such duties as may now or hereafter be prescribed by law or rule of Court.

After adoption of this Section no constable shall be appointed by the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore City pursuant to Section 42 or Section 43 of this Article IV, but constables in office upon the adoption of this Section shall hold office for the remainder of their terms, and the constables first appointed under this Section shall hold office at the expiration of such terms.

41-B. The General Assembly shall have power by law to establish a People's Court in any county, or any part thereof, incorporated city or town in this State, except Baltimore City, and to prescribe and from time to time to alter (1) the number, qualifications, tenure, and method of selection of the Judges of any such Court, and their powers, duties and compensation, except that the term of office or compensation of any such Judge shall not be reduced during his continuance in office; (2) the jurisdiction of any such Court (which may be made exclusive as to any class or classes of civil cases in such county, or any part thereof, city or town) and the right of appeal therefrom; (3) the number, qualifications, tenure, method of selection, duties, and compensation of all constables, clerks or other employees for such Court; and (4) all other matters relating to such Court. After adoption of this Section the Governor shall not be required to appoint any particular number of Justices of the Peace in any county or in any of the several election districts of the counties as now provided in Section 42 of the Constitution.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the aforegoing sections hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Maryland shall, at the election to be held in November, 1940, be submitted to the legal and qualified voters of the State for their adoption or rejection in pursuance of the directions contained in Article XIV of the Constitution of the State of Maryland and at the said General Election the vote on the said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be by ballot and upon each ballot there shall be printed the following words for said amendment captioned as follows:

"CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT PROVIDING FOR PEOPLE'S COURTS"

"This amendment provides for establishing People's Court in this State by adding two new sections numbered 41-A and 41-B to Article IV of the Constitution. The first section (41-A) establishes a People's Court for Baltimore City and regulates or provides for regulating all matters relating to the Court, the Judges of the Court and the Constables and Clerks. The second section (41-B) authorizes the General Assembly to establish a People's Court in any other county, incorporated city or town of this State and to provide for all matters relating to said Court and the Judges, Constables, Clerks and Employees of said Court"; and below said synopsis shall be printed the words "For People's Courts Amendment," and "Against People's Courts Amendment," as now provided by law, and immediately after said election due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment as directed by Article XIV of the Constitution and further proceedings had in accordance with said Article Fourteen.

Approved: April 26, 1939.

AN ACT to amend Section 21 of Article 4, title "Judiciary Department," sub-title "Part III—Circuit Courts," of the Constitution of this State, and to provide for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of this State for adoption or rejection.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That three-fifths of all the members elected to each of the two houses concurring, that the following section be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to Section 21 of Article 4, title "Judiciary Department," sub-title "Part III—Circuit Courts," of the Constitution of this State, and if adopted by the legal and qualified voters thereof as herein provided, it shall supersede and stand in the place and stead of Section 21 of said Article 4.

21. For each of the said circuits, excepting the eighth, the second, the third (and) the sixth and the seventh, there shall be a chief judge and two associate judges, to be styled judges of the Circuit Court, to be selected or appointed as herein provided, and for the second circuit, the third circuit (and) the sixth circuit, and the seventh circuit, there shall be a chief judge and three associate judges to be styled judges of the Circuit Court, to be elected or appointed as herein provided. And no two of said associate judges, except the third and sixth and seventh circuits shall, at the time of their election or appointment or during the term for which they may have been elected or appointed, reside in the same county. If two or more persons shall be candidates for associate judge in the same county in any of the circuits, except the third and sixth and seventh circuits, that one only in said county shall be declared elected who has the highest number of votes in the circuit. In case any two candidates for associate judge in any of the circuits, except the third and sixth and seventh circuits, residing in the same county shall have an equal number of votes greater than any other candidates for associate judge in the circuit, it shall be the duty of the Governor to order a new election for one associate judge; but the person residing in any other county of the circuit and who has the highest number of votes shall be declared elected. The said judges shall hold not less than two terms of the Circuit Court in each of the counties composing their respective circuits, at such times as are now or may hereafter be prescribed to which jurors shall be summoned; and in those counties where only two such terms are held, two other and intermediate terms, to which jurors shall not be summoned; they may alter or fix the times for holding any or all terms, until otherwise prescribed, and shall adopt rules to the end that all business not requiring the interposition of the jury shall be, as far as practicable, disposed of at said intermediate terms. One judge in each of the above circuits, including the second, the third (and) sixth and seventh circuits, shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of any business; and the said judges or any of them may hold special terms of their courts, whenever in their discretion the business of the several counties renders such terms necessary. The additional associate judge for the third circuit elected in accordance with the terms of the Constitutional Amendment heretofore submitted and adopted shall be subject to the same constitutional provisions, hold his office for the same term of years, receive the same compensation and have the same powers as are herein provided for the other associate judges in the third circuit.

The additional associate judge for the second circuit herein provided for shall be a resident of Cecil County, shall be appointed by the Governor after the expiration of six (6) months after the adoption of this amendment and shall serve until the first general election for members of the General Assembly that shall be held in said circuit subsequent to the adoption of this amendment, at which election his successor shall be elected by the qualified voters of Cecil, Kent, Queen Anne's and Talbot Counties, constituting the second circuit. The judge so appointed shall be subject to the same constitutional provisions, receive the same compensation and have the same powers as are herein provided for the other associate judges in the second circuit, and the judge so elected shall be subject to the same constitutional provision, hold his office for the same term of years, receive the same compensation and have the same powers as are herein provided for the other associate judges in the second circuit.

The additional judge for the sixth circuit herein provided for and elected by the qualified voters of Frederick and Montgomery Counties at the 1938 election in accordance with the terms of the Constitutional Amendment heretofore submitted and adopted shall be subject to the same constitutional provisions, receive the same compensation and have the same powers as are herein provided for the other associate judges in the sixth circuit and his successors shall be appointed and/or elected in accordance with the constitutional provisions relating to judges. The Chief Judge may be elected from either Frederick or Montgomery Counties, but when the Chief Judge is elected from Frederick County one of the associate judges shall be a resident of said county and the two remaining judges shall be residents of Montgomery County and when the Chief Judge is elected from Montgomery County one of the associate judges shall be a resident of said Montgomery County and the remaining two associate judges residents of Frederick County. In case any candidate or candidates for associate judge at any judicial election held in the sixth judicial circuit shall receive sufficient votes to cause such candidate or candidates to be elected, but the election of such candidate or candidates would cause more associate judges than herein permitted to reside in any county of said circuit, then and in that event only that candidate or those candidates, as the case may be, residing in the other county, and not similarly disqualified, who shall have the next highest number of votes in said election shall be declared elected. If, by reason of such a condition or by reason of an equal vote for two or more candidates a sufficient number of associate judges duly qualified as to residence as above set out should not be elected at any election in said sixth judicial circuit, then it shall be the duty of the Governor to order a new election for such unfilled office or offices.

The additional associate judge for the seventh circuit herein provided for shall be appointed by the Governor immediately after the adoption of this amendment and shall serve until the first general election for members of the General Assembly that shall be held in said circuit subsequent to the adoption of this amendment, at which election his successor shall be elected by the qualified voters of Prince George's, Charles, Calvert and St. Mary's Counties. No member of the General Assembly of 1939, otherwise qualified, shall be ineligible for appointment or election as such associate judge by reason of his membership in the General Assembly. The judge so appointed shall be subject to the same constitutional provisions, receive the same compensation and have the same powers as are herein provided for the other associate judges in the seventh circuit, and the judge so elected and his successors shall be subject to the same constitutional provisions, hold office for the same term of years, receive the same compensation, and have the same powers as are herein provided for the other associate judges in the seventh circuit. No two of the associate judges for the seventh circuit shall at the time of their election or appointment or during the term for which they may have been elected or appointed reside in the same county, except in Prince George's County, in which county two of said associate judges for the said circuit shall reside at the time of their appointment or election and during the term for which they may have been appointed or elected unless the chief judge of said circuit shall already reside in said county, in which event only one of said associate judges shall reside in Prince George's County and Prince George's County shall at all times have two resident Judges and no more, such Judges to be either the Chief Judge of the Seventh Circuit and one associate Judge or two associate Judges of said Circuit. In case any candidate or candidates for associate judge at any judicial election held in the seventh judicial circuit shall receive sufficient votes to cause such candidate or candidates to be elected, but the election of such candidate or candidates would cause more associate judges than herein permitted to reside in any county of said circuit, then and in that event only that candidate or those candidates, as the case may be, residing in the other county, and not similarly disqualified, who shall have the next highest number of votes in said election shall be declared elected. If, by reason of such a condition or by reason of an equal vote for two or more candidates a sufficient number of associate judges duly qualified as to residence as above set out should not be elected at any election in said seventh judicial circuit, then it shall be the duty of the Governor to order a new election for such unfilled office or offices.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That the aforegoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of this State shall be, at the next general election to be held in this State in the year 1940, submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof for their adoption or rejection in pursuance of the directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State, and at the said general election the vote on the said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot there shall be printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment" and "Against the Constitutional Amendment," as now provided by law, and immediately after said election due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment, as directed by said Fourteenth Article of the Constitution, and further proceedings had in accordance with said Article Fourteen.

Approved: April 26, 1939.

CHAPTER 247

AN ACT to propose an amendment to Section 15 of Article 3 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, title "Legislative Department," regulating the period that the General Assembly may continue its session and the compensation of the members thereof, and to provide for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of the State of Maryland for adoption or rejection.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland (three-fifths of all the members of each of the two Houses concurring), That the following be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to Section 15 of Article 3 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, title "Legislative Department," the same if adopted by the legally qualified voters of the State, as herein provided, to become Section 15 of Article 3 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland.

15. The General Assembly may continue its session so long as in its judgment the public interest may require, for a period not longer than ninety days; and each member thereof shall receive a compensation of seven hundred and fifty dollars ($750) per annum, payable quarterly, with a deduction of ten dollars per diem for each day of unexcused absence from any session; and he shall also receive such mileage as may be allowed by law, not exceeding twenty cents per mile; and the presiding officer of each House shall receive an additional compensation of two hundred and fifty ($250) dollars per annum. When the General Assembly shall be convened by Proclamation of the Governor, the session shall not continue longer than thirty days, but no additional compensation other than mileage and other allowances provided by law shall be paid members of the General Assembly for Special Sessions.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That said aforegoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Maryland shall, at the next general election to be held in November, 1940, be submitted to the legal and qualified voters of the State, for their adoption or rejection, in pursuance of the directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, and at the said general election the vote on the said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot there shall be printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment" and "Against the Constitutional Amendment," as now provided by law, and immediately after said election due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment, as directed by said Fourteenth Article of the Constitution, and further proceedings had in accordance with said Article Fourteen.

CHAPTER 371

AN ACT to amend Section 21 of Article 4, title "Judiciary Department," sub-title "Part III—Circuit Courts," of the Constitution of this State, providing for the residential qualification and method of selection of Associate Judges in the Third Judicial Circuit and to provide for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of this State for adoption or rejection.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That three-fifths of all members elected to each of the two Houses concurring) the following section be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to Section 21 of Article 4, of the Constitution of Maryland, title "Judiciary Department," sub-title "Part III—Circuit Courts," the same, if adopted by the legal and qualified voters thereof as herein provided, to become Section 21 of Article 4 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland.

21. For each of the said circuits, excepting the eighth, the second, the third and the sixth, there shall be a chief judge and two associate judges, to be styled judges of the Circuit Court, to be selected or appointed as herein provided, and for the second circuit, the third circuit (and) the sixth circuit, and the seventh circuit, there shall be a chief judge and three associate judges to be styled judges of the Circuit Court, to be elected or appointed as herein provided. And no two of said associate judges, except the third and sixth and seventh circuits, shall, at the time of their election or appointment or during the term for which they may have been elected or appointed, reside in the same county. If two or more persons shall be candidates for associate judge in the same county in any of the circuits, except the third and sixth and seventh circuits, that one only in said county shall be declared elected who has the highest number of votes in the circuit. In case any two candidates for associate judge in any of the circuits, except the third and sixth and seventh circuits, residing in the same county shall have an equal number of votes greater than any other candidates for associate judge in the circuit, it shall be the duty of the Governor to order a new election for one associate judge; but the person residing in any other county of the circuit and who has the highest number of votes shall be declared elected. The said judges shall hold not less than two terms of the Circuit Court in each of the counties composing their respective circuits, at such times as are now or may hereafter be prescribed to which jurors shall be summoned; and in those counties where only two such terms are held, two other and intermediate terms, to which jurors shall not be summoned; they may alter or fix the times for holding any or all terms, until otherwise prescribed, and shall adopt rules to the end that all business not requiring the interposition of the jury shall be, as far as practicable, disposed of at said intermediate terms. One judge in each of the above circuits, including the second, the third and the sixth and seventh circuits, shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of any business; and the said judges or any of them may hold special terms of their courts, whenever in their discretion the business of the several counties renders such terms necessary.

In the Third Circuit, two of said Associate Judges shall at all times be bona fide residents of Baltimore County, and one of said Associate Judges or the Chief Judge be a bona fide resident of Harford County, and said Judges shall have been such residents six months prior to their appointment or election.

The additional associate judge for the second circuit herein provided for shall be a resident of Cecil County, shall be appointed by the Governor after the expiration of six (6) months after the adoption of this amendment and shall serve until the first general election for members of the General Assembly that shall be held in said circuit subsequent to the adoption of this amendment, at which election his successor shall be elected by the qualified voters of Caroline, Cecil, Kent, Queen Anne's and Talbot Counties, constituting the second circuit. The judge so appointed shall be subject to the same constitutional provisions, receive the same compensation and have the same powers as are herein provided for the other associate judges in the second circuit, and the judge so elected shall be subject to the same constitutional provision, hold his office for the same term of years, receive the same compensation, and have the same powers as are herein provided for the other associate judges in the second circuit.

The additional judge for the sixth circuit herein provided for and elected by the qualified voters of Frederick and Montgomery Counties at the 1938 election in accordance with the terms of the Constitutional Amendment heretofore submitted and adopted shall be subject to the same constitutional provisions, receive the same compensation and have the same powers as are herein provided for the other associate judges in the sixth circuit and his successor shall be appointed and/or elected in accordance with the constitutional provisions relating to judges. The Chief Judge may be elected from either Frederick or Montgomery Counties, but when the Chief Judge is elected from Frederick County one of the associate judges shall be a resident of said county and the two remaining associate judges shall be residents of Montgomery County and when the Chief Judge is elected from Montgomery County one of the associate judges shall be a resident of said Montgomery County and the remaining two associate judges residents of Frederick County. In case any candidate or candidates for associate judge at any judicial election held in the sixth and sixth judicial circuits shall receive sufficient votes to cause such candidate or candidates to be declared elected, but the election of such candidate or candidates would cause more associate judges than herein permitted to reside in any county of said circuits, then and in that event only that candidate or those candidates, as the case may be, residing in said county in the order of the votes received shall be declared elected whose election would provide the permitted number of associate judges from said county and the candidate or candidates, as the case may be, residing in some other county, and not similarly disqualified, who shall have the next highest number of votes in said election shall be declared elected. If, by reason of such a condition or by reason of an equal vote for two or more candidates a sufficient number of associate judges duly qualified as to residence as above set out should not be elected at any election in said sixth judicial circuit, then it shall be the duty of the Governor to order a new election for such unfilled office or offices.

The additional associate judge for the seventh circuit herein provided for shall be appointed by the Governor immediately after the adoption of this amendment and shall serve until the first general election for members of the General Assembly that shall be held in said circuit subsequent to the adoption of this amendment, at which election his successor shall be elected by the qualified voters of Prince George's, Charles, Calvert and St. Mary's Counties. No member of the General Assembly of 1939, otherwise qualified, shall be ineligible for appointment or election as such associate judge by reason of his membership in the General Assembly. The judge so appointed shall be subject to the same constitutional provisions, receive the same compensation and have the same powers as are herein provided for the other associate judges in the seventh circuit, and the judge so elected and his successors shall be subject to the same constitutional provisions, hold office for the same term of years, receive the same compensation, and have the same powers as are herein provided for the other associate judges in the seventh circuit. No two of the associate judges for the seventh circuit shall at the time of their election or appointment or during the term for which they may have been elected or appointed reside in the same county, except in Prince George's County, in which county two of said associate judges for the said circuit shall reside at the time of their appointment or election and during the term for which they may have been appointed or elected unless the chief judge of said circuit shall already reside in said county, in which event only one of said associate judges shall reside in Prince George's County and Prince George's County shall at all times have two resident Judges and no more, such Judges to be either the Chief Judge of the Seventh Circuit and one associate Judge or two associate Judges of said Circuit. In case any candidate or candidates for associate judge at any judicial election held in the seventh judicial circuit shall receive sufficient votes to cause such candidate or candidates to be elected, but the election of such candidate or candidates would cause more associate judges than herein permitted to reside in any county of said circuit, then and in that event only that candidate or those candidates, as the case may be, residing in the other county, and not similarly disqualified, who shall have the next highest number of votes in said election shall be declared elected. If, by reason of such a condition or by reason of an equal vote for two or more candidates a sufficient number of associate judges duly qualified as to residence as above set out should not be elected at any election in said seventh judicial circuit, then it shall be the duty of the Governor to order a new election for such unfilled office or offices.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That the aforegoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of this State shall be, at the next general election to be held in this State in the year 1940, submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof for their adoption or rejection in pursuance of the directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State, and at the said general election the vote on the said proposed amendment shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot there shall be printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment" and "Against the Constitutional Amendment," as now prescribed by law, and immediately after said election due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment as directed by said Article 14 of the Constitution.

Approved: April 26, 1939.

CHAPTER 381

AN ACT to propose an amendment to Section 1, of Article II, title "Executive Department," of the State Constitution, to provide that a Governor shall not be eligible to succeed himself for the term directly following that for which he was elected and to provide for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of this State for adoption or rejection.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland (three-fifths of all the members elected to each of the two Houses concurring), That Section 1 of Article II, title "Executive Department," of the State Constitution, be and the same is hereby repealed and re-enacted with amendments to read as follows:

Section 1. The executive power of the State shall be vested in a Governor, whose term of office shall commence on the second Wednesday of January next ensuing his election, and continue for four years, and until his successor shall have qualified; and he shall be ineligible to succeed himself as Governor for the term directly following that for which he was elected.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That the aforegoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Maryland shall, at the next general election to be held in this State in the year 1940, submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof for their adoption or rejection in pursuance of directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State, and at the said general election the vote on the said proposed amendment shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot there shall be printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment" and "Against the Constitutional Amendment," as now prescribed by law, and immediately after said election, due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment as directed by said Article 14 of the Constitution.

Approved: April 26, 1939.

AN ACT to propose an amendment to Article III of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, adding thereto one new section, to be numbered 35A and to follow immediately after Section 35 of said Article, providing that nothing in the Constitution shall exempt the salary or compensation of any judge or other public officer from the imposition of a nondiscriminatory tax upon income and providing for submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of the State for adoption or rejection.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland (three-fifths of all the members elected to each of the two Houses concurring), That Section 1 of Article III, title "Executive Department," of the State Constitution, be and the same is hereby repealed and re-enacted with amendments to read as follows:

Section 1. The executive power of the State shall be vested in a Governor, whose term of office shall commence on the second Wednesday of January next ensuing his election, and continue for four years, and until his successor shall have qualified; and he shall be ineligible to succeed himself as Governor for the term directly following that for which he was elected.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That the aforegoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of this State shall be, at the next general election to be held in this State in the year 1940, submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof for their adoption or rejection in pursuance of directions contained in Article XIV of the Constitution of this State, and at the said general election, the vote on the said proposed amendment, shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot there shall be printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment" and "Against the Constitutional Amendment," as now prescribed by law, and immediately after said election, due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment as directed by said Article XIV of the Constitution and further proceedings had in accordance with said Article XIV.

Approved: April 26, 1939.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, HERBERT R. O'CONOR, GOVERNOR OF THE STATE OF MARYLAND, in pursuance of the direction contained in Section 1 of Article 14 of the Constitution of Maryland, do hereby order and direct that this proclamation containing a full, true and correct copy of the text of said Chapters 40, 163, 200, 247, 371, 381 and 771 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland of 1939, be published in at least two newspapers in each of the counties of the State where so many may be published and where not more than one may be published then in that newspaper, and in three newspapers published in the City of Baltimore, one of which shall be published in the German language, once a week for at least three months next preceding the general election to be held in the State of Maryland on Tuesday, the 5th day of November, 1940, at which election the said proposed amendments to the Constitution shall be submitted in form and manner prescribed by the General Assembly, to the legal and qualified voters of the State for their adoption or rejection.

GIVEN UNDER MY HAND AND THE GREAT SEAL OF THE STATE OF MARYLAND, DONE AT THE CITY OF ANNAPOLIS, THIS 29TH DAY OF JULY, IN THE YEAR OF OUR LORD, ONE THOUSAND NINE HUNDRED AND FORTY.

HERBERT R. O'CONOR
By the Governor:

THE GREAT SEAL OF MARYLAND

FRANCIS PETROTT
Secretary of State.

1940

PROCLAMATION OF THE GOVERNOR OF MARYLAND STATE-WIDE REFERENDA

WHEREAS, at the January 1939 session of the General Assembly of Maryland, an Act was passed known as Chapter 353, providing for the creation of a commission of fisheries, and prescribing its powers and duties, and providing for the collection of the tax thereon; and

WHEREAS, at the January 1939 session of the General Assembly of Maryland, an Act was passed known as Chapter 732, to repeal and re-enact, with amendments, Sections 1, 2, 5, and 6 of Article 101 of the Annotated Code of Maryland (1935 Supplement), title "Workmen's Compensation," subtitle "State Industrial Accident Commission"; in words and figures as follows:

CHAPTER 353

AN ACT to repeal Sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12 of Article 19A of the Annotated Code of Maryland (1935 Supplement), title "Conservation of Natural Resources"; to repeal Sections 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47 and 48 of Article 72 of the Annotated Code of Maryland (1924 Edition), title "Oysters," sub-title "State Fishery Force"; to repeal Sections 80, 81, 84 and 87 of said Article 72, title "Oysters," sub-title "General Measurers and Inspectors"; to repeal Sections 99, 115, 155 and 155A of said Article 72, title "Oysters," sub-title "Oyster Culture"; to repeal Section 46 of Article 19 of said Code, title "State Auditor"; to repeal Chapter 165 of the Acts of 1906; to add a new sub-title and sixteen new sections to Article 19A of said Code, title "Conservation of Natural Resources," said new sub-title to be known as "Commission of Fisheries," and said new sections to be known as Sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 12A, 12B, 12C and 12D, providing for the creation of a commission of fisheries and prescribing its powers and duties; to repeal and re-enact, with amendments, Sections 9 and 11 of Article 72 of the Annotated Code of Maryland (1935 Supplement), title "Oysters," sub-title "Culling"; to add two new sections to Article 72 of the Annotated Code of Maryland (1935 Supplement), title "Oysters," sub-title "General Measurers and Inspectors," said new sections to be known as Sections 81 and 84, providing for the inspection of oysters and the collection of the tax thereon; to repeal and re-enact, with amendments, Section 129 of Article 72 of the Annotated Code of Maryland (1935 Supplement), title "Oysters," sub-title "Oyster Culture."

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12 of Article 19A of the Annotated Code of Maryland (1935 Supplement), title "Conservation of Natural Resources," be and the same are hereby repealed.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That Sections 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47 and 48 of Article 72 of the Annotated Code of Maryland (1924 Edition), title "Oysters," sub-title "State Fishery Force"; to repeal Sections 80, 81, 84 and 87 of said Article 72, title "Oysters," sub-title "General Measurers and Inspectors"; to repeal Sections 99, 115, 155 and 155A of said Article 72, title "Oysters," sub-title "Oyster Culture," and Section 46 of Article 19 of said Code, title "State Auditor," be and the same are hereby repealed.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That Chapter 165 of the Acts of 1906 be and the same is hereby repealed.

Sec. 4. And be it further enacted, That a new sub-title and sixteen new sections be and the same are hereby added to Article 19A of the Annotated Code of Maryland (1935 Supplement), title "Conservation of Natural Resources," said new sub-title to be known as "Commission of Fisheries," and said new sections to be known as Sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 12A, 12B, 12C and 12D, to follow immediately after said sub-title and to read as follows:

"COMMISSION OF FISHERIES"

1. The Commission of Fisheries of the State of Maryland is hereby created and established. The said Commission shall be composed of five members, citizens and residents of this State, all of whom shall have practical knowledge of the tidewater fisheries. One of the members of said Commission shall be designated as the Chairman and shall be known as the "Commissioner of Fisheries." The members of the Commission, including the Chairman thereof, shall be appointed by the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, for terms of two years, beginning on the first day of June succeeding their appointment, the terms of the first members of said Commission to be appointed under this Act to begin on June 1, 1939. One associate member shall be a resident of that section of the Eastern Shore north of the Chop-tank River, one associate member shall be a resident of that section of the Eastern Shore south of the Choptank River, one associate member shall be a resident of that section of the Western Shore outside the counties of St. Mary's, Calvert and Charles, one associate member shall be a resident of that section of the Western Shore comprising the counties of St. Mary's, Calvert and Charles. The Commissioner of Fisheries shall be chosen from the State at large. All vacancies among said members shall be filled by the Governor with the advice and consent of the Senate.

2. The Commissioner of Fisheries shall receive such salary not exceeding $4,500 per annum as may be fixed in the budget, and the associate members of the Commission shall each receive such salary not exceeding $2,400 per annum as may be fixed in the budget.

3. On June 1, 1939, all the rights, powers, duties and functions heretofore conferred upon or exercised by the Conservation Commission with respect to oysters, shellfish, the State Fishery Force or Oyster Navy and the Commander and personnel thereof, Chesapeake Bay and tidewater fish, fisheries, and hatcheries and the State Biological Laboratory shall be transferred to and hereafter be exercised and performed by the Comm

AN ACT to propose an amendment to Section 17 of Article 4 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, title "Judiciary Department," sub-title "Part 2—Court of Appeals," providing for appointment by the Court of Appeals of the Clerk of said Court, and providing for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of the State of Maryland for adoption or rejection.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, three-fifths of all the members of each of the two Houses concurring, That the following be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to Section 17 of Article 4 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, title "Judiciary Department," sub-title "Part 2—Court of Appeals," providing for the appointment by the Court of Appeals of the Clerk of said Court, and providing for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of the State of Maryland for adoption or rejection.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, three-fifths of all the members of each of the two Houses concurring, That the following be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to Section 17 of Article 4 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, title "Judiciary Department," sub-title "Part 2—Court of Appeals," providing for the appointment by the Court of Appeals of the Clerk of said Court, and providing for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of the State of Maryland for adoption or rejection.

17. There shall be a Clerk of the Court of Appeals, who, after the expiration of the current term of the present incumbent, shall be appointed by and shall hold his office at the pleasure of said Court of Appeals.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That said aforegoing section, hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of this State, shall be at the next general election to be held in this State in the year 1940, submitted to the legal and qualified voters of the State for adoption or rejection, in pursuance of the directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State, and at the said general election the vote on the said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot there shall be printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment" and "Against the Constitutional Amendment," as now provided by law, and immediately after said election due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment as directed by said Article 14 of the Constitution.

Approved: May 11, 1939.

CHAPTER 247

AN ACT to propose an amendment to Section 15 of Article 3 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, title "Legislative Department," regulating the period that the General Assembly may continue its session and the compensation of the members thereof, and to provide for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of the State of Maryland for adoption or rejection.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland (three-fifths of all the members of each of the two Houses concurring), That the following be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to Section 15 of Article 3 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, title "Legislative Department," the same, if adopted by the legal qualified voters of the State as herein provided, to become Section 15 of Article 3 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland.

15. The General Assembly may continue its session so long as in its judgment the public interest may require, for a period not longer than ninety days; and each member thereof shall receive a compensation of seven hundred and fifty dollars ($750) per annum, payable quarterly, and a deduction of ten dollars per diem for each day of unexcused absence from any session; and he shall also receive such mileage as may be allowed by law, not exceeding twenty cents per mile, and the presiding officer of each House shall receive an additional compensation of two hundred and fifty ($250) dollars per annum. When the General Assembly shall be convened by Proclamation of the Governor, the session shall not continue longer than thirty days, but no additional compensation other than mileage and other allowances provided by law shall be paid members of the General Assembly for Special Sessions.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That said aforegoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Maryland shall, at the next general election to be held in November, 1940, be submitted to the legal and qualified voters of the State, for their adoption or rejection, in pursuance of the directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, and at the said general election the vote on the said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot there shall be printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment" and "Against the Constitutional Amendment," as now provided by law, and immediately after said election due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment as directed by said Article 14 of the Constitution.

Approved: May 11, 1939.

CHAPTER 371

AN ACT to amend Section 21 of Article 4, title "Judiciary Department," sub-title "Part III—Circuit Courts," of the Constitution of this State, providing for the residential qualification and method of selection of Associate Judges in the Third Judicial Circuit and to provide for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of this State for adoption or rejection.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That (three-fifths of all members elected to each of the two Houses concurring) the following section be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to Section 21 of Article 4, of the Constitution of Maryland, title "Judiciary Department," sub-title "Part III—Circuit Courts," the same, if adopted by the legal and qualified voters thereof as herein provided, to become Section 21 of Article 4, Constitution of the State of Maryland.

21. For each of the said circuits excepting the eighth, the second, the third and the sixth, there shall be a chief judge and two associate judges, to be styled judges of the Circuit Court, to be selected or appointed as herein provided, and for the second circuit, the third circuit, (and) the sixth circuit, and the seventh circuit, there shall be a chief judge and three associate judges, to be styled judges of the Circuit Court, to be elected or appointed as herein provided. And no two of said associate judges, for any of the said circuits, except the third and sixth circuits shall, at the time of their election or appointment or during the term for which they may have been elected or appointed, reside in the same county. If two or more persons shall be candidates for associate judge in the same county in any of the circuits, except the third and sixth and seventh circuits, that one only in said county shall be declared elected who has the highest number of votes in the circuit. In case any two candidates for associate judge in any of the circuits, except the third and sixth and seventh circuits, residing in the same county shall have an equal number of votes greater than any other candidates for associate judge in the circuit, it shall be the duty of the Governor to order a new election for one associate judge; but the person residing in any other county of the circuit and who has the highest number of votes shall be declared elected. The said judges shall hold not less than two terms of the Circuit Court in each of the counties composing their respective circuits, at such times as are now or may hereafter be prescribed to which jurors shall be summoned; and in those counties where only two such terms are held, two other and intermediate terms, to which jurors shall not be summoned; they may alter or fix the times for holding any or all terms, until otherwise prescribed, and shall adopt rules to the end that all business not requiring the interposition of the jury shall be, as far as practicable, disposed of at said intermediate terms. One judge in each of the above circuits, including the second, the third (and) sixth and seventh circuits, shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of any business; and the said judges or any of them may hold special terms of their courts, whenever in their discretion the business of the several counties renders such terms necessary. The additional associate judge for the third circuit herein provided for shall be a resident of Cecil County, shall be appointed by the Governor after the expiration of six (6) months after the adoption of this amendment and shall serve until the first general election for members of the General Assembly that shall be held in said circuit subsequent to the adoption of this amendment, at which election his successor shall be elected by the qualified voters of Caroline, Cecil, Kent, Queen Anne's, and Talbot Counties, constituting the second circuit. The judge so appointed shall be subject to the same constitutional provisions, receive the same compensation and have the same powers as are herein provided for the other associate judges in the second circuit.

The additional associate judge for the second circuit herein provided for shall be a resident of Cecil County, shall be appointed by the Governor after the expiration of six (6) months after the adoption of this amendment and shall serve until the first general election for members of the General Assembly that shall be held in said circuit subsequent to the adoption of this amendment, at which election his successor shall be elected by the qualified voters of Caroline, Cecil, Kent, Queen Anne's, and Talbot Counties, constituting the second circuit. The judge so appointed shall be subject to the same constitutional provisions, receive the same compensation and have the same powers as are herein provided for the other associate judges in the second circuit, and the judge so elected shall be subject to the same constitutional provisions, hold his office for the same term of years, receive the same compensation and have the same powers as are herein provided for the other associate judges in the third

Parents Should Not Usurp the Teacher's Work

Cramming of Pre-School Child Is Held To Be Unwise

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Intelligent parents are eager to do something at home to prepare the child before he enters school to get on well with books after he begins school.

About the most important thing his parents can do for him is to cultivate good health habits in him, good routines, self-reliance and responsibility and skill at being happy with other children of his age.

Yet some parents think they must do more. A few, alas, will try to teach him to read, spell and do number work. I wish they wouldn't. All too soon he will have such formal teaching at school. We should remember, too, that his eyes are poorly coordinated. Why tax his tender nerves so early?

His parents should, however, if without undue stimulation, help him widen and enrich his experiences and keep alive his curiosity. They should answer all his questions and encourage him in free conversation and creative play. Also they should read and read to him, expose him to good music, and enjoy with him the beauties of Nature.

Learning at Play

If at play he learns some or all the letters of the alphabet and number symbols with their meaning up to ten, very well. If he likes to draw just for fun, he might even profit from printing very large a few of the letters and number symbols. Unfortunately, however, some parents will set the little tyke to do such things as tasks and to tax him with the making of small letters and figures. If he makes them at all before going to school, let it be for fun and let them be several inches in dimension. In case there is a typewriter in the home he might profit from making a few letters or figures at a sitting with it.

The danger, of course, is that the ambiticus parents will urge, even coerce, the little child and lose sight of his welfare to show him off. Then there are proud relatives to brag about him.

The wise, calm, gentle parent may properly help the tot before he enters school to gain number concepts at play, even to match some of the smaller digit symbols with meaning. One good way for him to learn simple number meaning is to amuse himself in his own way with dominoes as someone casually calls to his attention the dots on each block. Also a good way to help him grow familiar with the number and relative order of the number symbols up to nine inclusive is to play Flinch with him. I consider this a very valuable game for the child from four to eight or ten.

Really Don't Know

Parents who will study the tot of four or five will discover that his knowledge of the meaning of numbers is narrower than most suppose and that often this child will say a number without knowing what it means. Often the child in the first, second or third grade has vague concepts of numbers over five or six.

"Letting little children learn" is one of a series of 15 pamphlets I have written about the baby and young child, being simple presentation of university lectures I used to give to pre-school parents. A folder about the pamphlets may be had by writing me at 235 East 45th Street, N. Y. City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it; also a selected list of books from which to read to the baby and young child.

the administrative work of the Commission and its employees, except in the promulgation of rules and regulations wherein the Commission shall act as a body, and in the trial and determination of cases, as hereinafter provided. The other three members are hereby vested with authority to hear and determine any hearing, trial, inquiry or investigation which the Commission is authorized to hold or undertake; and any one of such other three members can preside alone at any such hearing, trial, inquiry and investigation, and every order and determination made by any one member shall be deemed to be the order or determination of the Commission. The Chairman shall only sit in the trial of cases when, in his judgment, it is necessary to expedite the trial work of the Commission.

5. The present employees of the Commission shall continue to serve in their present positions and shall retain all of their rights under Article 64A of the Annotated Code, title "Merit System." The Chairman of the Commission shall have the power to make any future appointments as are provided for in the Budget, which appointments must be made in accordance with the provisions of said Article 64A. The secretary and other assistants that may be employed shall be entitled to receive their actual necessary expenses while traveling on the business of the Commission. Such expenses shall be itemized and sworn to by the person who incurred the expense, and allowed by the Chairman of the Commission. The Chairman of the Commission shall keep and maintain its main office and such branch offices as he shall deem proper and necessary for the administration of this Article, and shall provide suitable rooms, necessary office furniture, supplies, books, periodicals and maps for the same. All necessary expenses shall be audited and paid out of the appropriation in the State Treasury provided for in this Article. The Commission shall provide itself with a seal for the authentication of its orders, awards and proceedings, upon which shall be inscribed the words "State Industrial Accident Commission, State of Maryland—Official Seal."

Each member of the Commission and each person appointed to office or employment by the Commission shall, before entering upon the duties of his office or employment, take and subscribe the constitutional oath of office.

The Secretary of the Commission shall keep and maintain a full and true record of all proceedings of the Commission, of all documents or papers ordered filed by the Commission or by its rules, of decisions or orders made by any member of the Commission and of all decisions or orders made by the Commission or approved and confirmed by it and ordered filed, and he shall be responsible to the Commission for the safe custody and preservation of all such documents at its office. He shall have the power to administer oaths in all parts of the State, so far as the exercise of such power is properly incident to the performance of his duty or that of the Commission. The Chairman of the Commission may designate, from time to time, one of the clerks of the office, appointed by him, to exercise the powers and duties of the Secretary during his absence.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, that this Act shall take effect June 1, 1939.

Approved: May 11, 1939.

WHEREAS, petitions to refer the aforesaid Acts of the General Assembly to the voters of the State of Maryland, for adoption or rejection, have been filed with the Secretary of State in conformity with the provisions of Article XVI of the Constitution of Maryland, entitled "The Referendum," and the said Acts of Assembly will be so submitted to the voters at the election to be held on November 5, 1940.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, HERBERT R. O'CONOR, GOVERNOR OF THE STATE OF MARYLAND, pursuant to the authority and direction contained in Section 5 (a) of Article 16 of the Constitution of Maryland, do hereby order and direct that this Proclamation containing a full, true and correct copy of Chapters 353 and 732 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland of 1939, be published in at least two newspapers in each of the Counties of the State where so many may be published and where not more than one may be published then in that newspaper, and in three newspapers published in the City of Baltimore, one of which shall be published in the German language, in such manner and for such time as is provided in Section 1 of Article 14 of the Constitution of Maryland.

GIVEN UNDER MY HAND AND THE GREAT SEAL OF THE STATE OF MARYLAND, DONE AT THE CITY OF ANNAPOLIS, THIS 29TH DAY OF JULY, IN THE YEAR OF OUR LORD, ONE THOUSAND NINE HUNDRED AND FORTY.

HERBERT R. O'CONOR
By the Governor:

FRANCIS PETROTT
Secretary of State.

WIFE PRESERVERS

Many a housewife wonders how she can cool a hot dish and at the same time protect it from insects and dust. A piece of cheesecloth between embroidery frames can be used as a cover, allowing the steam to escape and at the same time keeping dust, etc., out.

high school to be taken away, it will be followed in a few years by the junior high. Mt. Savage, as a community of home-owners and taxpayers, deserves a high school of its own, she said. She stressed the advantages of a community high school in building character and community spirit.

Admitting certain advantages may be derived from a consolidated school, Patrick A. Fannon said, however, that they were outweighed by the disadvantages, including inconvenience to children and parents and loss of community spirit.

Crump, taking the floor again, scored the school board for ignoring the condition of the Mt. Savage school and said the public should demand removal of the entire board.

Other speakers included Alexander Nicols and Russell Aldridge, of Ocean, and Ted Lewis, of Midlothian.

Grand Jury Meets Today at Oakland

OAKLAND, Md., Sept. 8—The September term of the Garrett County Circuit court will convene tomorrow when members of the grand jury will be required to report for service.

State's Attorney Neil C. Fraley, said he expected between thirty-five and forty indictments.

Petit jurors are not required to report for service until Monday, September 23.

Oakland Briefs

Dr. Thomas A. Gonder Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Gonder, of Oakland, has announced the opening of his office for the practice of medicine at 814 Park avenue, Baltimore. Dr. Gonder was graduated from the School of Medicine, Duke university, about three years ago and since that time has been in the Baltimore hospitals. At present he has a fellowship in Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Briner, Jr., Baltimore, will move to Oakland about September 15, when Mr. Briner will be placed in charge of the county unit of the Maryland Unemployment Compensation Division, with officers in the McIntyre building. They will reside in the Offutt cottage, at the north edge of town. Mrs. Briner is a daughter of Stuart F. Hamill, Oakland attorney.

The Rev. D. C. Trimble, rector of St. Matthew's Episcopal church, who is leaving soon to assume the rectorship of a parish near Baltimore is vacationing in Nova Scotia.

The equipment of the Western Union telegraph office in Oakland was moved last week from the Thayer property on Alder street to quarters in the Gonder building on Second street.

an enthusiastic although unofficial membership drive was soon in full swing.

Non-union members were stopped at the gates Saturday and some returned to their homes while others joined up.

Attitude Resented

The crux of reported infractions, in short, was the fact that unionists resented the attitude of non-unionists who stand to win any salary increases without paying dues to support the union.

There were one or two demonstrations reported, most of them apparently being conducted along good-natured lines. In one case, employes toted a big bag suspended on a standard marked "company profits." It was followed by another standard from which hung a five-cent size Bull-Durham tobacco sack. This was labeled "employees' profits."

Unionists, a tour of Ridgeley and Cumberland hangouts Friday night revealed, are generally satisfied with the most recent turn in the developments in the negotiations. However, most of the members questioned are emphatic in stating that they don't want to work without a contract for very long. Two men said that had been tried before unsuccessfully and had finally resulted in a strike after months of what was termed "collective arguing instead of collective bargaining."

Today's conference in Washington hinges solely on the salary question, it was reliably reported. The union has asked for a blanket increase in wages. The company has insisted on graduated increases.

Boy Is Injured in Truck Accident on Baltimore Street

Charles Eichelberger, eleven-year-old son of Mrs. Helen Eichelberger, of Flintstone, suffered a fractured right leg Saturday noon on Baltimore street when he was struck by a backing truck.

A rear wheel of the truck driven by J. H. Markwood, of Keyser, W. Va., passed over the boy's leg and narrowly missed his head when he was knocked down after stepping in back of the machine.

He was taken to Allegany hospital and admitted for observation, but was able to return home yesterday afternoon.

Officer Raymond R. Johnston, who investigated, termed the accident unavoidable and placed no charges against Markwood.

Charles Town Publisher Dies at Age of 64

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., Sept. 8 (AP) — C. L. Haines, 64, retired publisher of the Spirit of Jefferson, a weekly newspaper, and former member of the House of Delegates from Jefferson county, died today at his home.

Haines inherited the publication from his father, George W. Haines, and was the editor for many years.

Active in politics, he was a former mayor of Charles Town, and served out an unexpired term in the State Senate.

He is survived by his widow. Burial will be here Tuesday.

Two Friends Killed

MCCOMAS, W. Va., Sept. 8 (AP)—Joint burial will be conducted tomorrow for Carl Camerisi, 41, and Louis Funari, 32, killed in a slate fall at the American Coal Corporation's Pinnacle mine. The two men emigrated from their native Norcia, Italy, and had been lifelong friends.

Two "Runaway" Girls Will Be Returned to Follansbee, W. Va.

Two girls who gave their names as Elsie Krystguak and Thelma Hansel, both of Follansbee, W. Va., were held last night in the city jail as "runaways."

When questioned, the girls admitted stealing money in Follansbee, police said. Assistant Chief of Police John J. Trieber and Detective B. Frank Gaffney arrested them yesterday afternoon.

Police notified the sheriff of Brooke county, W. Va., and booked the girls as "runaways", pending the arrival of the sheriff to take them back to Follansbee.

Mystery Shrouds Case Of Man Found Injured On Highway

A man who gave his name as Henry Schmerer, 36, of 12 Marion street, was admitted to Allegany hospital early yesterday morning after being injured in an undetermined automobile accident in the Cumberland area.

Hospital attendants said Schmerer suffered lacerations about the face and an injured back, but were unable to give any information concerning the mishap.

Schmerer was taken to the hospital by Paul Bowman, of Flintstone, who reportedly told attendants "I found him along the road." He failed to say which road, attaches said.

State police last night reported that they investigated the accident, but were also unable to give any details. State Trooper B. C. Mason, who was called on the case, was off duty last night.

Schmerer's condition was described as "fair" last night.

Receivers Suit Settled Upon Payment of $4,500

Settlement of a claim against Frank Ort, as conservator of the First National Bank of Midland, was announced Saturday in Circuit Court by William C. Wash and Harry I. Stegmaier, attorneys for George S. Arnold, bank receiver, upon payment of $4,500.

The bank receiver brought the action against Ort and the National Surety Corporation, a bonding firm, on the contention that Ort failed to prosecute a claim on a $4,000 note given by William B. Phillips, a former director of the bank.

A verdict of $5,715 against Ort was returned during the April term and his appeal to the Court of Appeals was pending when the case was settled yesterday.

Associate Judge William A. Huster signed an order under which Arnold accepts the amount of $4,500 as payment in full on the claim. The appeal made by Ort from the verdict of the local court is dismissed.

Parents Should Not Usurp the Teacher's Work

Cramming of Pre-School Child Is Held To Be Unwise

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Intelligent parents are eager to do something at home to prepare the child before he enters school to get on well with books after he begins school.

About the most important thing his parents can do for him is to cultivate good health habits in him, good routines, self-reliance and responsibility and skill at being happy with other children of his age.

Yet some parents think they must do more. A few, alas, will try to teach him to read, spell and do number work. I wish they wouldn't. All too soon he will have such formal teaching at school. We should remember, too, that his eyes are poorly coordinated. Why tax his tender nerves so early?

His parents should, however, if without undue stimulation, help him widen and enrich his experiences and keep alive his curiosity. They should answer all his questions and encourage him in free conversation and creative play. Also they should read and read to him, expose him to good music, and enjoy with him the beauties of Nature.

Learning at Play

If at play he learns some or all the letters of the alphabet and number symbols with their meaning up to ten, very well. If he likes to draw just for fun, he might even profit from printing very large a few of the letters and number symbols. Unfortunately, however, some parents will set the little tyke to do such things as tasks and to tax him with the making of small letters and figures. If he makes them at all before going to school, let it be for fun and let them be several inches in dimension. In case there is a typewriter in the home he might profit from making a few letters or figures at a sitting with it.

The danger, of course, is that the ambiticus parents will urge, even coerce, the little child and lose sight of his welfare to show him off. Then there are proud relatives to brag about him.

The wise, calm, gentle parent may properly help the tot before he enters school to gain number concepts at play, even to match some of the smaller digit symbols with meaning. One good way for him to learn simple number meaning is to amuse himself in his own way with dominoes as someone casually calls to his attention the dots on each block. Also a good way to help him grow familiar with the number and relative order of the number symbols up to nine inclusive is to play Flinch with him. I consider this a very valuable game for the child from four to eight or ten.

Really Don't Know

Parents who will study the tot of four or five will discover that his knowledge of the meaning of numbers is narrower than most suppose and that often this child will say a number without knowing what it means. Often the child in the first, second or third grade has vague concepts of numbers over five or six.

"Letting little children learn" is one of a series of 15 pamphlets I have written about the baby and young child, being simple presentation of university lectures I used to give to pre-school parents. A folder about the pamphlets may be had by writing me at 235 East 45th Street, N. Y. City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it; also a selected list of books from which to read to the baby and young child.

WIFE PRESERVERS

Many a housewife wonders how she can cool a hot dish and at the same time protect it from insects and dust. A piece of cheesecloth between embroidery frames can be used as a cover, allowing the steam to escape and at the same time keeping dust, etc., out.

PROCLAMATION OF THE GOVERNOR OF MARYLAND PROPOSING AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTUCTION OF THE STATE

the administrative work of the Commission and its employees, except in the promulgation of rules and regulations wherein the Commission shall act as a body, and in the trial and determination of cases, as hereinafter provided. The other three members are hereby vested with authority to hear and determine any hearing, trial, inquiry or investigation which the Commission is authorized to hold or undertake; and any one of such other three members may preside alone at any such hearing. Each inquiry and investigation, and every order and determination made by any one member shall be deemed to be the order or determination of the Commission. The Chairman shall only sit in the trial of cases when, in his judgment, it is necessary to expedite the final work of the Commission.

The present employees of the Commission shall continue to serve in their present positions and shall retain all their rights under Article 64A of the Annotated Code, title "Merit System."

The Chairman of the Commission shall have the power to make any new appointments as are provided for in the Budget, which appointments must be made in accordance with the provisions of said Article 64A. The Secretary and other assistants that may be employed shall be entitled to receive their actual necessary expenses while traveling on the business of the Commission. Such expenses shall be itemized and sworn to by the person who incurred the expense, and allowed by the Chairman of the Commission.

The Chairman of the Commission shall keep and maintain its main office and such branch offices as he shall deem proper and necessary for the administration of this Article, and shall provide suitable rooms, necessary office furniture, supplies, books, periodicals and maps for the same. All necessary expenses shall be audited and paid out of the appropriation in the State Treasury provided for in this Article. The Commission shall provide itself with a seal for the authentication of its orders, awards and proceedings, upon which shall be inscribed the words "State Industrial Accident Commission, State of Maryland—Official Seal."

Each member of the Commission and each person appointed to office or employment by the Commission shall, before entering upon the duties of his office or employment, take and subscribe the constitutional oath of office.

The Secretary of the Commission shall keep and maintain a full and true record of all proceedings of the Commission, of all documents or papers ordered filed by the Commission or by its rules, of decisions or orders made by any member of the Commission and of all rules or orders made by the Commission or approved and confirmed by it and ordered filed, and he shall be responsible to the Commission for the safe custody and preservation of all such documents at its office. He shall have the power to administer oaths in all parts of the State, so far as the exercise of such power is properly incident to the performance of his duty or that of the Commission. The Chairman of the Commission may designate, from time to time, one of the clerks of the office, appointed by him, to exercise the powers and duties of the Secretary during his absence.

2. And be it further enacted, that this Act shall take effect June 1, 1939.

Approved: May 11, 1939.

WHEREAS, petitions to refer the aforesaid Acts of the General Assembly to the voters of the State of Maryland, for adoption or rejection, have been filed with the Secretary of State in conformity with the provisions of Article XVI of the Constitution of Maryland, entitled "The Referendum," and the said Acts of Assembly will be so submitted to the voters at the election to be held on November 5, 1940.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, HERBERT R. O'CONOR, GOVERNOR OF THE STATE OF MARYLAND, pursuant to the authority and direction contained in Section 5 (a) of Article 16 of the Constitution of Maryland, do hereby order and direct that this Proclamation containing a full, true and correct copy of Chapters 353 and 732 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland of 1939, be published in at least two newspapers in each of the Counties of the State where as many may be published and where not more than one may be published then in that newspaper, and in three newspapers published in the City of Baltimore, one of which shall be published in the German language, in such manner and for such time as is provided in Section 1 of Article 14 of the Constitution of Maryland.

GIVEN UNDER MY HAND AND THE GREAT SEAL OF THE STATE OF MARYLAND, DONE AT THE CITY OF ANNAPOLIS, THIS 29TH DAY OF JULY, IN THE YEAR OF OUR LORD, ONE THOUSAND NINE HUNDRED AND FORTY.

HERBERT R. O'CONOR
By the Governor:

FRANCIS PETROTT
Secretary of State.

Two "Runaway" Girls Will Be Returned to Follansbee, W. Va.

Two girls who gave their names as Elsie Krystguak and Thelma Hansel, both of Follansbee, W. Va., were held last night in the city jail as "runaways."

When questioned, the girls admitted stealing money in Follansbee, police said. Assistant Chief of Police John J. Trieber and Detective B. Frank Gaffney arrested them yesterday afternoon.

Police notified the sheriff of Brooke county, W. Va., and booked the girls as "runaways", pending the arrival of the sheriff to take them back to Follansbee.

Veteran Parsons Teacher Retires after 52 Years

PARSONS, W. Va., Sept. 8 (AP) —Seventy-year-old Jay Phillips of Parsons, who has spent fifty-two years teaching in West Virginia, is retiring this year.

He taught his first class at the school in Hannahsville, Locking district, at the age of 18.

Mystery Shrouds Case Of Man Found Injured On Highway

A man who gave his name as Henry Schmerer, 36, of 12 Marion street, was admitted to Allegany hospital early yesterday morning after being injured in an undetermined automobile accident in the Cumberland area.

Hospital attendants said Schmerer suffered lacerations about the face and an injured back, but were unable to give any information concerning the mishap.

Schmerer was taken to the hospital by Paul Bowman, of Flintstone, who reportedly told attendants "I found him along the road." He failed to say which road, attaches said.

State police last night reported that they investigated the accident, but were also unable to give any details. State Trooper B. C. Mason, who was called on the case, was off duty last night.

Schmerer's condition was described as "fair" last night.

Receivers Suit Settled Upon Payment of $4,500

Settlement of a claim against Frank Ort, as conservator of the First National Bank of Midland, was announced Saturday in Circuit Court by William C. Wash and Harry I. Stegmaier, attorneys for George S. Arnold, bank receiver, upon payment of $4,500.

The bank receiver brought the action against Ort and the National Surety Corporation, a bonding firm, on the contention that Ort failed to prosecute a claim on a $4,000 note given by William B. Phillips, a former director of the bank.

A verdict of $5,715 against Ort was returned during the April term and his appeal to the Court of Appeals was pending when the case was settled yesterday.

Associate Judge William A. Hunter signed an order under which Arnold accepts the amount of $4,500 as payment in full on the claim. The appeal made by Ort from the verdict of the local court is dismissed.

53,623 Fans See Dodgers Beat Giants Pair

Rivalry of Teams Lures Patrons to New York Stadium

Curt Davis Handcuffs Giants 7 to 2 in Opener

Casey's Relief Pitching Takes 11 Inning Night-cap 4-2

NEW YORK, Sept. 8 (AP) — The rivalry of the Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Giants lured 53,623 fans to the Polo Grounds today and the Dodgers cleaned up, 7 to 2 and 4 to 2 in 11 innings.

Curt Davis' six-hit hurling and three-run homer by Dolph Camilli in the fifth inning made Brooklyn's task easy in the first game. The Dodgers accumulated a dozen hits off four New York pitchers including Carl Hubbell, whom they routed in the fifth.

One-hit relief pitching for 5⅓ innings by Hugh Casey and timely hitting by Jim Wasdell decided the second game. Wasdell homered in the fourth and singled another run across in the 11th when he came to bat with two on. Pete Coscarart followed with another single and the fourth run.

The Giants got all their runs and drove Luke Hamlin from the mound by bunching four hits in the sixth.

U.S.L.T.A. Reinstates Wayne Sabin, Mako

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 8 (AP) —Gene Mako and Wayne Sabin, two of the country's ranking players, have been reinstated, it was announced by the United States Lawn Tennis Association Saturday.

Mako and Sabin will be eligible to play in U.S.L.T.A.—sanctioned tournaments on and after December 1, 1940.

The two men were suspended earlier this year for violation of the association's eight-week playing rule.

Here Is A Little Review Of the Week's Baseball

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

By JOHN LARDNER
North American Newspaper Alliance

NEW YORK, Sept. 8—Review of week's baseball, brought to you through the courtesy of Slumpkin's soap, the breakfast food of kings.

Detroit entertained a party from Cleveland with great discourtesy last week. The Detroit ball club knocked off the Indians, including the guest of honor, Robin Feller, while the Detroit fans brought lace handkerchiefs to the ball park and dabbed their eyes in a jeering fashion, suggestive of the fact that Cleveland is a team of cry-babies whose feelings are always being hurt by their ruffinaly manager, Oscar Vitt.

Detroit hospitality made a very bad impression on Mr. Alva Bradley, Cleveland owner.

"I am certainly not looking forward to another visit to that city of boors," said Mr. Bradley.

Considering the result of the first visit, Mr. Bradley seems to have spoken a mouthful.

Non-politeness reached its height when a couple of Detroit fans placed a baby's bottle of milk, complete with nipple, on top of the Cleveland dugout. Mr. Vitt later expressed himself as puzzled by the implications of this gesture.

"I wish to state," said the Indian manager, "that none of my boys has drunk from a bottle since Rollie Hemsley reformed."

This statement was backed by Mr. Hemsley, the temperance crusader.

"I have not had a bottle in my hands since July, 1938," announced the Cleveland catcher, "The whole thing is a foul, contemptible conspiracy, probably inspired by Red Russia."

Friends of Max Lanier, missing St. Louis Cardinal pitcher, were startled when the young Frenchman turned up in Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, Wednesday night and defeated the Chicago Cubs, 4 to 2. Lanier looked about the same as ever, and was quickly recognized by members of his family.

He had been in the bullpen ever since John Lardner picked him to be the rookie-of-the-year last spring.

Manager Stanley Harris, of Washington, announced that he may have to do something about George Washington Case, the league's leading base-stealer. Close association with Case has gone to the heads of many of his teammates, who are now suffering from what the medical profession calls "jackrabbit delusions."

"They all think they are Case, except for a few, who think they are Ty Cobb," explained Mr. Harris, "and they try to steal whenever they get on base, which has recently been seldom. This psychosis is very painful to me, for I know these boys in their lucid moments are sensible, rational fellows who know they cannot run any faster than the average middle-aged woman. It's just on the bases that this delusion comes over them."

Unwilling to part with Case, Mr. Harris feels it may be possible to work out some system of typing the feet of his base-runners until somebody hits one against the wall, or over it, and then have the coaches untie the boys and tell them to do the best they can.

All he needs now is somebody who can hit one against the wall, or over it.

Mr. Frank Frisch, of Pittsburgh, unable to win a ball game in Cincinnati since the season began and beaten twice by the Reds last week, decided that the Cincinnati management did not know the pennant race was over. Calling on Manager William McKechnie, he notified him that the Reds were eight games in front.

"It is all over, McKechnie," said Mr. Frisch coldly. "It is very poor taste to jump up and down on my boys in this hoggish manner. What are you after, a new record?"

Mr. McKechnie admitted he had not seen the newspapers, and tendered a handsome apology.

The following day the Reds beat the Pirates 6 to 3. Mr. Frisch's comment on this development was very interesting, but not printable.

Mize Sets Record But Bucs Defeat Cards in Twin Tilt

Hits Three Homers in One Game for Fourth Time in Career

But Pittsburgh Pounds Pill for 16-14 and 5-4 Wins

St. Louis, Sept. 8 (AP)—Big Johnny Mize set a new major league record today by hitting three home runs in one game for the fourth time in his career, but the Pittsburgh Pirates did a lot of fence busting of their own and moved into third place by walloping the St. Louis Cardinals twice, 16 to 14 and 5 to 4.

Mize's homers, increasing his season's total to 41, came on successive appearances at the plate in the marathon opened which extended over three hour and 17 minutes and forced the second game to be called at the end of the fifth when darkness overtook the weary athletes.

Prior to today Mize was tied with Lou Gehrig and Goose Goslin who had clouted a trio of homers in a game on three occasions.

Pittsburgh gathered 21 hits off six Cardinal flingers in the first game and ten in the abreviated second issue. Debs Garms had three hits in each game, while Maurice Van Robay's connected for four of the Bucs' blows, including a homer, in the opener.

Macks and Nats Split Twin Bill

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8 (AP) — Washington and Philadelphia split a double-header today, the Senators winning the first 7 to 6 while the Athletics took the five-inning nightcap 4 to 0 behind the three-hit hurling of Bill Beckman.

The Senators started seven rookies in the second game and sent Arnold Anderson to the mound. He held the Athletics scoreless until the fifth when Philadelphia rapped him for four hits, one of which was Wally Moses' double. Anderson also walked a man and let go a wild pitch.

The first game saw Sid Hudson pounded by the Athletics for 12 hits. Joe Krakauskas came to the rescue in the sixth with the score tied and saved the game.

Marchildon Reports To Athletics Sept. 15

TORANTO, Sept. 8 (AP) — Phil (Babe) Marchildon, right-handed pitcher of the Toronto Maple Leafs, purchased recently by Connie Mack, will join the Philadelphia club September 15, it was announced today.

Montreal officials said other Leafs to go to the Athletics include Pitcher Les McCrabb. Infielders Dario Lodigiani and Bill Lillard and Outfielder Eric Tipton.

Sam Snead Takes Anthracite Open Off Byron Nelson

Defeats PGA Tournament Conqueror by Two Stroke Lead

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 8 (AP) — Shaving four strokes off par, Sam Snead of Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., won the $5,000 Anthracite Open golf tournament today with a two-stroke lead over his PGA conqueror, Byron Nelson, Toledo, O.

Snead put together 68 and a par 70 on the last 36 holes for a 72-hole total of 276.

Nelson, who trimmed the former West Virginian earlier in the week in Professional Golfers Association match play, warmed up with a 70 on the morning round, then shot a sizzling 66 to gain second spot.

One stroke behind was Lawson Little, Bretton Woods, N. H., who took a 69 and 70 for a 279 total.

Snead, a trifle erratic on the Greens, offset this with booming tee shots and long woods.

The victory meant $1,200 for Snead, one of golfdom's ranking money-winners since he started on the golden circuit a few years ago.

Nelson won $750 for his second-place play, while $525 went to Little.

Tied for fourth with 281's were Ed Dudley, Philadelphia pro and Ed Oliver, Hornell, N. Y. They split $715. Oliver, tied with Snead for the lead at the half-way mark, slipped to a 74 during the morning round but shot a superb 69 during the afternoon to get back into the money. Dudley carded a record-equalling 65 and then took a 71.

Felix Serafin, the home pro who led the opening round with a 65, gained sixth and $250. His last two rounds were 71-72 for a 282 total.

Last Place Phils Beat Bees Twice

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 8 (AP)—The last-place Phils handed the Boston Bees a double-barreled setback today, going 12 innings to take the first game of a double-header 2-1 and winning the night-cap 3-1.

Pitcher Kirby Higbe took personal charge of the first game, limiting the Bees to six hits and scoring the winning run on Ham Schulte's single after he had hit safely to open the inning and had been sacrificed to second by Merrill May.

The third inning of the nightcap assured the Phils of victory. Singles by Si Johnson and Litwhiler and doubles by Merril May and Schulte accounted for the winning three runs.

County Loop Series Will Resume Today

The third contest of the five-game series for the championship of Allegany County Softball League between the LaVale A. A., first half winner, and Clary Club tossers, who walked off with home stretch honors, will be brought to a close today with the playing of the last two and one-third innings on the LaVale diamond starting at 5:45.

The contenders went into the third skirmish Friday evening at LaVale with one victory apiece and when the tilt was called on account of darkness in the last of the fifth with LaVale at bat, two out and a man on first, Clary Club was leading 9-8. Under a pre-series agreement, all playoff battles must be the full route of seven innings.

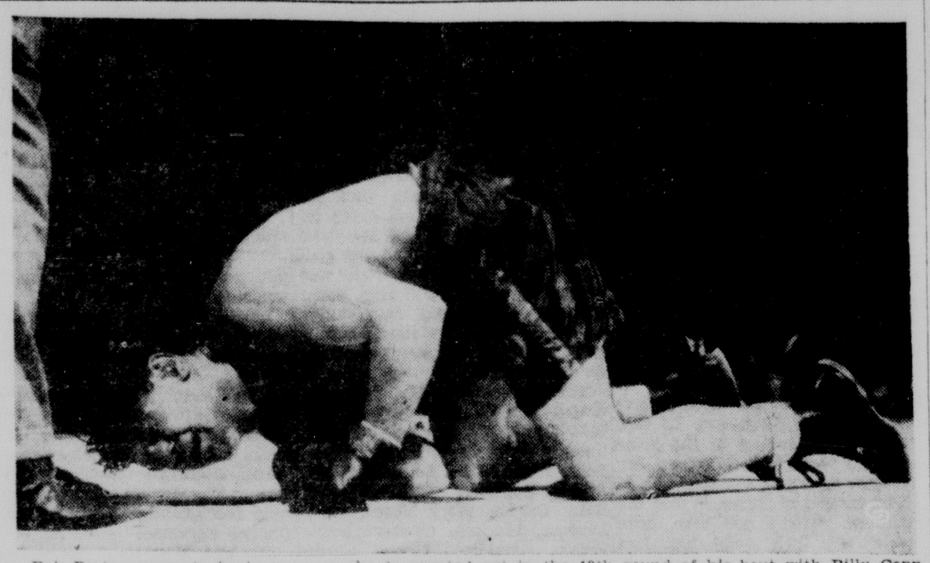

The contest will be resumed from the point where it was halted by the umpire-in-chief and the fourth tussle will be played Tuesday evening at 5:45 on Hoffman field, Clary Club's home diamond.

In Friday's game, Kammaut smashed a homer for LaVale with one aboard. Blank was on the peak for Clary Club while Paul Markwood started for LaVale but was relieved in the early innings by Leo Kisamore.

Rain Halts Series

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 8 (AP)—The second game of the Mid-Atlantic play-off series between Youngstown and Akron was postponed today because of wet grounds. The game is scheduled for Monday night.

PASTOR DOWN AND OUT IN AGONIZING DEFEAT

Bob Pastor seems to be in agony as he is counted out in the 13th round of his bout with Billy Conn, light heavyweight champ, in New York. A hook to the midriff followed by a left uppercut dumped Pastor on the canvas for the kayo. The crowd of 14,000 saw Conn score his first knockout over a major opponent in the non-title bout.

This photo of badly-beaten Pastor was taken shortly before he was put out of the heavyweight limelight by Conn. Pastor had been entertaining hopes of getting another crack at Joe Louis' heavyweight crown.

The Stampede Is On

WINGED FOOT G. C., MAMARONECK, N. Y. — The big stampede at Winged Foot is on again. It was here just eleven years ago that I saw Bobby Jones sink his 12-foot curling putt on the last green to tie Al Espinosa in the National Open and shut off complete disaster after Bob had dropped six strokes in the five preceding holes.

The big stampede is the battle for the amateur golf championship of the United States, where something like 150 survivors from over 700 starters leave a lone entry against the sky on Saturday afternoon.

There will be 64 medal play survivors by Tuesday night. There will be 48 matches at 18 holes on Wednesday which will eliminate all but 16. There will be 12 matches at 18 holes on Thursday and then the four semi-finalists, move into the 36-hole all-day swing on Friday. Saturday morning will see only the two finalists reporting at the first tee.

Here is the great roulette wheel of all sport, a wheel that carries over 100 numbers in place of 38.

Who Will Win?

Here is the group that must be planted in the favored bracket — Bud Ward, Spokane, defending champion; Ray Billows, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Art Doering, Chicago; Willie Turnesa, New York; Johnny Fischer, Cincinnati; Wilford Wehrle, Niles, Ill.; Bill Holt, Syracuse; Harold Mandly, Avon, Conn.; Dick Chapman, Greenwich, Conn.; Maurice McCarthy, Cincinnati.

I could add such names as Johnny Burke, Bruce McCormick, Harry Todd, Freddie Haas and others who can't be overlooked. But this isn't naming the winner.

A year ago I crawled out on the end of the limb for Bud Ward after his brilliant play in the National Open at Philadelphia. Ward won. Only a blazing putter saved him from the deadly accuracy of Art Doering, the Stanford-Chicago star who is straighter with a wood and iron than Dave Crockett or Dan Boone were with squirrel rifles.

Here is the order, in the way of chance, I'll slip you today —

Number one — Ray Billows, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Number two — Bud Ward, Spokane, Wash.

Number three — Wilford Wehrle, Niles, Ill.

Number four — Art Doering, Chicago, Ill.

Number five — Harold Mandly, Avon, Conn.

Number six — Johnny Fischer, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Number seven — Willie Turnesa, New York, N. Y.

About Ray Billows

I pick Ray Billows as the number one entry for several reasons.

1. Ray is a fine golfer, long enough and straight.

2. He is one of the coolest, smartest competitors I know in golf.

3. Winged Foot is one of his favorite courses. In a 72-hole championship test at Winged Foot he had 283, far below the U. S. Open score of 1929.

4. He was runner-up at Portland, Oregon, and runner-up last year in Chicago. He is about due. He is equipped both on the physical and mental side for hard, competitive golf.

5. He has had more chance to play golf this season and is playing extremely well.

Among the other six I have suggested, Ward, Fischer and Turnesa have already won. Wilford Wehrle has been one of our best amateurs for several years. Illness forced him out a year ago. He led all amateurs in the recent Open at Cleveland.

I am recommending Harold Mandly on the testimony of Francis Ouimet and Jimmy Thomson.

"He only slipped me a 66," Thomson says, "but beyond that he looked the part. You've got to look pretty good to look the part of a 66," Jimmy added.

"Mandly belongs close up." Ouimet said. "He is really one of our best amateurs, anywhere."

Ward is a fine golfer, a hard fighter, and a great putter. Art Doering will be the straightest hitter in the field. One of the best of the stylists. Willie Turnesa is always a rugged customer with a top-notch all-around game.

Winged Foot will suit Johnny Fischer's fine long game, either wood or iron, if silent Johnny can only locate a putting touch. Up to the green there is no finer amateur now playing.

Back to the Veterans

How many of the old-time champions will qualify? Here is another story from Winged Foot.

Here we have Francis Ouimet — Jess Sweetser — Jesse Guilford — Chick Evans — Max Marston — Johnny Goodman — George Dunlap — who carry us back along the old road from 1913 to later years," over "the long, long trail."

The showing made by Ouimet, Sweetser and Evans, if they start, will carry a nation-wide appeal.

Most of these have played little competitive golf. But I have seen more than one of these break 70 on hard courses lately, as good as ever for the shorter route. Give them all younger legs and most of the younger stars would get the shock of their careers.

It is quite possible that the six leaders we have mentioned may be out of action by Wednesday night. In golf, anything can happen. Such golfers as Bill Holt, Freddie Haas, Scotty Campbell, Bishop, Chapman, Gus Moreland, Sheehan, and Todd are good enough to upset any amateur at any given moment.

This six-day march at Winged Foot is just as much a test of youth and stamina as it is a test of golf. Even more so. Few can appreciate what an all-week grind on both the mental and physical side means in this game, where each and every shot may be the deciding factor.

Winged Foot is long and demanding. It calls for both distance and direction, with its smaller, well-trapped greens. It demands exceptionally straight iron play, since the green target is small and often fearfully guarded by deep, baffling abysses, heavy with trouble.

But the main answer is always on the mental, psychological side—meaning the ability to concentrate, to keep determined, to take the breaks — something that belongs only to the champions at heart.

Cubs Prize Rookie Defeats Reds 3-1

Vern Olsen Master All Way in Tourney in 11th Triumph

CHICAGO, Sept. 8 (AP) — Vern Olsen, prize rookie of the Chicago Cubs pitched his floundering teammates to a seven-hit, 3 to 1 victory over the league leading Cincinnati Reds today before 20,613 spectators.

The victory was Olsen's 11th of the season as against nine losses.

The Cubs hopped on Jim Turner for single runs in the first and fourth innings, getting a total of 10 hits off the former Tennessee milkman during his six innings on the mound. Whitey Moore yielded four in the last two frames. The Cubs, who left 10 men stranded on the bases, produced their final run off Moore in the eighth inning.

Olsen, aided by slick defensive work including three double plays, was complete master of the Reds except in the seventh when Lonnie Frey's single and Bill Myers' double robbed him of a shutout.

Allegany's Jayvee Gridders To Drill

Allegany High's junior varsity football squad will start practice this afternoon under the direction of Coach Walter L. "Bill" Bowers.

About 60 candidates attended a junior varsiety meeting Friday, but Coach Bowers will issue equipment to a selected 30 today. In most cases these togs will go to boys of known ability packing the most pounds. Others, if they desire to be on the squad, will be required to report in equipment of their own as the 30 outfits will exhaust Allegany's supply of football duds.

Allegany's jayvees, organized for the first time last fall, will engage in home-and-home games with Fort Hill High and LaSalle High.

Bill Catherman Is Medalist in CCC Fall Golf Turney

Fifty-one To Compete in Three Flights of Match Play

Play will begin this week in the annual fall tournament at the Cumberland Country Club with fifty-one golfers competing in three flights of sixteen players.

Medalist honors for the tournament went to C. S. Catherman, Jr., with a score of 73, while Albert Carlson's 78 took runner-up honors. Edward Mattingly, 1940 spring tournament winner, posted a 79, as did Morgan C. Harris. Scores of 80 by George Werkmeister and Elmer Elbin were next.

All first-round matches must be played by next Sunday, September 15, with one match a week scheduled thereafter until tournament is completed. Those defeated in first round matches in all flights will play in a consolation round.

A new cup will be offered in competition this fall, with three wins necessary for permanent possession. The Cumberland Brewing Company donated a trophy this past spring after Werkmeister' had retired the Celanese Cup after three wins. Catherman retired the fall trophy, the Camille F. Dreyfuss Cup, after winning three full tournaments.

Pairings are as follows, with qualifying scores in parenthesis follow the names:

FIRST FLIGHT—C. S. Catherman, Jr. (73), vs Dr. J. E. McLean (83; Elmer Elbin (80) vs C. E. France (86); Morgan C. Harris (79) vs John Creegan (84); Frank Blaul (81) vs R. M. Hudak (87); A. Carlson (78) vs Dr. K. P. Heintz (83); George Werkmeister (80) vs George Schwarzenbach (86; Edward Mattingly (79) vs C. S. Catherman, Sr. (84); James W. Beacham (82) vs Joseph Miller (89).

SECOND FLIGHT—B. H. McCrackin (89) vs John Manley (93); F. W. Eiler (91) vs E. R. Allan (94); R. S. Stallings (90) vs M. D. Tenney (94); P. D. Collins (92) vs W. D. 53,623 Fans See Dodgers Beat Giants Pair

Rivalry of Teams Lures Patrons to New York Stadium

Casey's Relief Pitching Takes 11 Inning Night-cap 4-2

NEW YORK, Sept. 8 (AP) — The rivalry of the Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Giants lured 53,623 fans to the Polo Grounds today and the Dodgers cleaned up, 7 to 2 and 4 to 2 in 11 innings.

Curt Davis' six-hit hurling and three-run homer by Dolph Camilli in the fifth inning made Brooklyn's task easy in the first game. The Dodgers accumulated a dozen hits off four New York pitchers including Carl Hubbell, whom they routed in the fifth.

One-hit relief pitching for 5⅓ innings by Hugh Casey and timely hitting by Jim Wasdell decided the second game. Wasdell homered in the fourth and singled another run across in the 11th when he came to bat with two on. Pete Coscarart followed with another single and the fourth run.

The Giants got all their runs and drove Luke Hamlin from the mound by bunching four hits in the sixth.

U.S.L.T.A. Reinstates Wayne Sabin, Mako

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 8 (AP) —Gene Mako and Wayne Sabin, two of the country's ranking players, have been reinstated, it was announced by the United States Lawn Tennis Association Saturday.

Mako and Sabin will be eligible to play in U.S.L.T.A.—sanctioned tournaments on and after December 1, 1940.

The two men were suspended earlier this year for violation of the association's eight-week playing rule.

Here Is A Little Review Of the Week's Baseball

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

By JOHN LARDNER
North American Newspaper Alliance

NEW YORK, Sept. 8—Review of week's baseball, brought to you through the courtesy of Slumpkin's soap, the breakfast food of kings.

Detroit entertained a party from Cleveland with great discourtesy last week. The Detroit ball club knocked off the Indians, including the guest of honor, Robin Feller, while the Detroit fans brought lace handkerchiefs to the ball park and dabbed their eyes in a jeering fashion, suggestive of the fact that Cleveland is a team of cry-babies whose feelings are always being hurt by their ruffinaly manager, Oscar Vitt.

Detroit hospitality made a very bad impression on Mr. Alva Bradley, Cleveland owner.

"I am certainly not looking forward to another visit to that city of boors," said Mr. Bradley.

Considering the result of the first visit, Mr. Bradley seems to have spoken a mouthful.

Non-politeness reached its height when a couple of Detroit fans placed a baby's bottle of milk, complete with nipple, on top of the Cleveland dugout. Mr. Vitt later expressed himself as puzzled by the implications of this gesture.

"I wish to state," said the Indian manager, "that none of my boys has drunk from a bottle since Rollie Hemsley reformed."

This statement was backed by Mr. Hemsley, the temperance crusader.

"I have not had a bottle in my hands since July, 1938," announced the Cleveland catcher, "The whole thing is a foul, contemptible conspiracy, probably inspired by Red Russia."

Friends of Max Lanier, missing St. Louis Cardinal pitcher, were startled when the young Frenchman turned up in Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, Wednesday night and defeated the Chicago Cubs, 4 to 2. Lanier looked about the same as ever, and was quickly recognized by members of his family.

He had been in the bullpen ever since John Lardner picked him to be the rookie-of-the-year last spring.

Manager Stanley Harris, of Washington, announced that he may have to do something about George Washington Case, the league's leading base-stealer. Close association with Case has gone to the heads of many of his teammates, who are now suffering from what the medical profession calls "jackrabbit delusions."

"They all think they are Case, except for a few, who think they are Ty Cobb," explained Mr. Harris, "and they try to steal whenever they get on base, which has recently been seldom. This psychosis is very painful to me, for I know these boys in their lucid moments are sensible, rational fellows who know they cannot run any faster than the average middle-aged woman. It's just on the bases that this delusion comes over them."

Unwilling to part with Case, Mr. Harris feels it may be possible to work out some system of typing the feet of his base-runners until somebody hits one against the wall, or over it, and then have the coaches untie the boys and tell them to do the best they can.

All he needs now is somebody who can hit one against the wall, or over it.

Mr. Frank Frisch, of Pittsburgh, unable to win a ball game in Cincinnati since the season began and beaten twice by the Reds last week, decided that the Cincinnati management did not know the pennant race was over. Calling on Manager William McKechnie, he notified him that the Reds were eight games in front.

"It is all over, McKechnie," said Mr. Frisch coldly. "It is very poor taste to jump up and down on my boys in this hoggish manner. What are you after, a new record?"

Mr. McKechnie admitted he had not seen the newspapers, and tendered a handsome apology.

The following day the Reds beat the Pirates 6 to 3. Mr. Frisch's comment on this development was very interesting, but not printable.

Mize Sets Record But Bucs Defeat Cards in Twin Tilt

Hits Three Homers in One Game for Fourth Time in Career

But Pittsburgh Pounds Pill for 16-14 and 5-4 Wins

St. Louis, Sept. 8 (AP)—Big Johnny Mize set a new major league record today by hitting three home runs in one game for the fourth time in his career, but the Pittsburgh Pirates did a lot of fence busting of their own and moved into third place by walloping the St. Louis Cardinals twice, 16 to 14 and 5 to 4.

Mize's homers, increasing his season's total to 41, came on successive appearances at the plate in the marathon opened which extended over three hour and 17 minutes and forced the second game to be called at the end of the fifth when darkness overtook the weary athletes.

Prior to today Mize was tied with Lou Gehrig and Goose Goslin who had clouted a trio of homers in a game on three occasions.

Pittsburgh gathered 21 hits off six Cardinal flingers in the first game and ten in the abreviated second issue. Debs Garms had three hits in each game, while Maurice Van Robay's connected for four of the Bucs' blows, including a homer, in the opener.

Macks and Nats Split Twin Bill

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8 (AP) — Washington and Philadelphia split a double-header today, the Senators winning the first 7 to 6 while the Athletics took the five-inning nightcap 4 to 0 behind the three-hit hurling of Bill Beckman.

The Senators started seven rookies in the second game and sent Arnold Anderson to the mound. He held the Athletics scoreless until the fifth when Philadelphia rapped him for four hits, one of which was Wally Moses' double. Anderson also walked a man and let go a wild pitch.

The first game saw Sid Hudson pounded by the Athletics for 12 hits. Joe Krakauskas came to the rescue in the sixth with the score tied and saved the game.

Marchildon Reports To Athletics Sept. 15

TORANTO, Sept. 8 (AP) — Phil (Babe) Marchildon, right-handed pitcher of the Toronto Maple Leafs, purchased recently by Connie Mack, will join the Philadelphia club September 15, it was announced today.

Montreal officials said other Leafs to go to the Athletics include Pitcher Les McCrabb. Infielders Dario Lodigiani and Bill Lillard and Outfielder Eric Tipton.

Sam Snead Takes Anthracite Open Off Byron Nelson

Defeats PGA Tournament Conqueror by Two Stroke Lead

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 8 (AP) — Shaving four strokes off par, Sam Snead of Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., won the $5,000 Anthracite Open golf tournament today with a two-stroke lead over his PGA conqueror, Byron Nelson, Toledo, O.

Snead put together 68 and a par 70 on the last 36 holes for a 72-hole total of 276.

Nelson, who trimmed the former West Virginian earlier in the week in Professional Golfers Association match play, warmed up with a 70 on the morning round, then shot a sizzling 66 to gain second spot.

One stroke behind was Lawson Little, Bretton Woods, N. H., who took a 69 and 70 for a 279 total.

Snead, a trifle erratic on the Greens, offset this with booming tee shots and long woods.

The victory meant $1,200 for Snead, one of golfdom's ranking money-winners since he started on the golden circuit a few years ago.

Nelson won $750 for his second-place play, while $525 went to Little.

Tied for fourth with 281's were Ed Dudley, Philadelphia pro and Ed Oliver, Hornell, N. Y. They split $715. Oliver, tied with Snead for the lead at the half-way mark, slipped to a 74 during the morning round but shot a superb 69 during the afternoon to get back into the money. Dudley carded a record-equalling 65 and then took a 71.

Felix Serafin, the home pro who led the opening round with a 65, gained sixth and $250. His last two rounds were 71-72 for a 282 total.

Last Place Phils Beat Bees Twice

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 8 (AP)—The last-place Phils handed the Boston Bees a double-barreled setback today, going 12 innings to take the first game of a double-header 2-1 and winning the night-cap 3-1.

Pitcher Kirby Higbe took personal charge of the first game, limiting the Bees to six hits and scoring the winning run on Ham Schulte's single after he had hit safely to open the inning and had been sacrificed to second by Merrill May.

The third inning of the nightcap assured the Phils of victory. Singles by Si Johnson and Litwhiler and doubles by Merril May and Schulte accounted for the winning three runs.

County Loop Series Will Resume Today

The third contest of the five-game series for the championship of Allegany County Softball League between the LaVale A. A., first half winner, and Clary Club tossers, who walked off with home stretch honors, will be brought to a close today with the playing of the last two and one-third innings on the LaVale diamond starting at 5:45.

The contenders went into the third skirmish Friday evening at LaVale with one victory apiece and when the tilt was called on account of darkness in the last of the fifth with LaVale at bat, two out and a man on first, Clary Club was leading 9-8. Under a pre-series agreement, all playoff battles must be the full route of seven innings.

The contest will be resumed from the point where it was halted by the umpire-in-chief and the fourth tussle will be played Tuesday evening at 5:45 on Hoffman field, Clary Club's home diamond.

In Friday's game, Kammauf smashed a homer for LaVale with one aboard. Blank was on the peak for Clary Club while Paul Markwood started for LaVale but was relieved in the early innings by Leo Kisamore.

Rain Halts Series

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 8 (AP)—The second game of the Mid-Atlantic play-off series between Youngstown and Akron was postponed today because of wet grounds. The game is scheduled for Monday night.

PASTOR DOWN AND OUT IN AGONIZING DEFEAT

Bob Pastor seems to be in agony as he is counted out in the 13th round of his bout with Billy Conn, light heavyweight champ, in New York. A hook to the midriff followed by a left uppercut dumped Pastor on the canvas for the kayo. The crowd of 14,000 saw Conn score his first knockout over a major opponent in the non-title bout.

This photo of badly-beaten Pastor was taken shortly before he was put out of the heavyweight limelight by Conn. Pastor had been entertaining hopes of getting another crack at Joe Louis' heavyweight crown.

The Stampede Is On

WINGED FOOT G. C., MAMARONECK, N. Y. — The big stampede at Winged Foot is on again. It was here just eleven years ago that I saw Bobby Jones sink his 12-foot curling putt on the last green to tie Al Espinosa in the National Open and shut off complete disaster after Bob had dropped six strokes in the five preceding holes.

The big stampede is the battle for the amateur golf championship of the United States, where something like 150 survivors from over 700 starters leave a lone entry against the sky on Saturday afternoon.

There will be 64 medal play survivors by Tuesday night. There will be 48 matches at 18 holes on Wednesday which will eliminate all but 16. There will be 12 matches at 18 holes on Thursday and then the four semi-finalists, move into the 36-hole all-day swing on Friday. Saturday morning will see only the two finalists reporting at the first tee.

Here is the great roulette wheel of all sport, a wheel that carries over 100 numbers in place of 38.

Who Will Win?

Here is the group that must be planted in the favored bracket — Bud Ward, Spokane, defending champion; Ray Billows, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Art Doering, Chicago; Willie Turnesa, New York; Johnny Fischer, Cincinnati; Wilford Wehrle, Niles, Ill.; Bill Holt, Syracuse; Harold Mandly, Avon, Conn.; Dick Chapman, Greenwich, Conn.; Maurice McCarthy, Cincinnati.

I could add such names as Johnny Burke, Bruce McCormick, Harry Todd, Freddie Haas and others who can't be overlooked. But this isn't naming the winner.

A year ago I crawled out on the end of the limb for Bud Ward after his brilliant play in the National Open at Philadelphia. Ward won. Only a blazing putter saved him from the deadly accuracy of Art Doering, the Stanford-Chicago star who is straighter with a wood and iron than Dave Crockett or Dan Boone were with squirrel rifles.

Number one — Ray Billows, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Number two — Bud Ward, Spokane, Wash.

Number three — Wilford Wehrle, Niles, Ill.

Number four — Art Doering, Chicago, Ill.

Number five — Harold Mandly, Avon, Conn.

Number six — Johnny Fischer, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Number seven — Willie Turnesa, New York, N. Y.

About Ray Billows

I pick Ray Billows as the number one entry for several reasons.

1. Ray is a fine golfer, long enough and straight.

2. He is one of the coolest, smartest competitors I know in golf.

3. Winged Foot is one of his favorite courses. In a 72-hole championship test at Winged Foot he had 283, far below the U. S. Open score of 1929.

4. He was runner-up at Portland, Oregon, and runner-up last year in Chicago. He is about due. He is equipped both on the physical and mental side for hard, competitive golf.

5. He has had more chance to play golf this season and is playing extremely well.

Among the other six I have suggested, Ward, Fischer and Turnesa have already won. Wilford Wehrle has been one of our best amateurs for several years. Illness forced him out a year ago. He led all amateurs in the recent Open at Cleveland.

I am recommending Harold Mandly on the testimony of Francis Ouimet and Jimmy Thomson.

"He only slipped me a 66," Thomson says, "but beyond that he looked the part. You've got to look pretty good to look the part of a 66," Jimmy added.

"Mandly belongs close up." Ouimet said. "He is really one of our best amateurs, anywhere."

Ward is a fine golfer, a hard fighter, and a great putter. Art Doering will be the straightest hitter in the field. One of the best of the stylists. Willie Turnesa is always a rugged customer with a top-notch all-around game.

Winged Foot will suit Johnny Fischer's fine long game, either wood or iron, if silent Johnny can only locate a putting touch. Up to the green there is no finer amateur now playing.

Back to the Veterans

How many of the old-time champions will qualify? Here is another story from Winged Foot.

Here we have Francis Ouimet — Jess Sweetser — Jesse Guilford — Chick Evans — Max Marston — Johnny Goodman — George Dunlap — who carry us back along the old road from 1913 to later years," over "the long, long trail."

The showing made by Ouimet, Sweetser and Evans, if they start, will carry a nation-wide appeal.

Most of these have played little competitive golf. But I have seen more than one of these break 70 on hard courses lately, as good as ever for the shorter route. Give them all younger legs and most of the younger stars would get the shock of their careers.

It is quite possible that the six leaders we have mentioned may be out of action by Wednesday night. In golf, anything can happen. Such golfers as Bill Holt, Freddie Haas, Scotty Campbell, Bishop, Chapman, Gus Moreland, Sheehan, and Todd are good enough to upset any amateur at any given moment.

This six-day march at Winged Foot is just as much a test of youth and stamina as it is a test of golf. Even more so. Few can appreciate what an all-week grind on both the mental and physical side means in this game, where each and every shot may be the deciding factor.

Winged Foot is long and demanding. It calls for both distance and direction, with its smaller, well-trapped greens. It demands exceptionally straight iron play, since the green target is small and often fearfully guarded by deep, baffling abysses, heavy with trouble.

But the main answer is always on the mental, psychological side—meaning the ability to concentrate, to keep determined, to take the breaks — something that belongs only to the champions at heart.

Cubs Prize Rookie Defeats Reds 3-1

Vern Olsen Master All Way in Tourney in 11th Triumph

CHICAGO, Sept. 8 (AP) — Vern Olsen, prize rookie of the Chicago Cubs pitched his floundering teammates to a seven-hit, 3 to 1 victory over the league leading Cincinnati Reds today before 20,613 spectators.

The victory was Olsen's 11th of the season as against nine losses.

The Cubs hopped on Jim Turner for single runs in the first and fourth innings, getting a total of 10 hits off the former Tennessee milkman during his six innings on the mound. Whitey Moore yielded four in the last two frames. The Cubs, who left 10 men stranded on the bases, produced their final run off Moore in the eighth inning.

Olsen, aided by slick defensive work including three double plays, was complete master of the Reds except in the seventh when Lonnie Frey's single and Bill Myers' double robbed him of a shutout.

Allegany's Jayvee Gridders To Drill

Allegany High's junior varsity football squad will start practice this afternoon under the direction of Coach Walter L. "Bill" Bowers.

About 60 candidates attended a junior varsiety meeting Friday, but Coach Bowers will issue equipment to a selected 30 today. In most cases these togs will go to boys of known ability packing the most pounds. Others, if they desire to be on the squad, will be required to report in equipment of their own as the 30 outfits will exhaust Allegany's supply of football duds.

Allegany's jayvees, organized for the first time last fall, will engage in home-and-home games with Fort Hill High and LaSalle High.

Bill Catherman Is Medalist in CCC Fall Golf Turney

Fifty-one To Compete in Three Flights of Match Play

Play will begin this week in the annual fall tournament at the Cumberland Country Club with fifty-one golfers competing in three flights of sixteen players.

Medalist honors for the tournament went to C. S. Catherman, Jr., with a score of 73, while Albert Carlson's 78 took runner-up honors. Edward Mattingly, 1940 spring tournament winner, posted a 79, as did Morgan C. Harris. Scores of 80 by George Werkmeister and Elmer Elbin were next.

All first-round matches must be played by next Sunday, September 15, with one match a week scheduled thereafter until tournament is completed. Those defeated in first round matches in all flights will play in a consolation round.

A new cup will be offered in competition this fall, with three wins necessary for permanent possession. The Cumberland Brewing Company donated a trophy this past spring after Werkmeister had retired the Celanese Cup after three wins. Catherman retired the fall trophy, the Camille F. Dreyfuss Cup, after winning three full tournaments.

Pairings are as follows, with qualifying scores in parenthesis follow the names:

FIRST FLIGHT—C. S. Catherman, Jr. (73), vs Dr. J. E. McLean (83); Elmer Elbin (80) vs C. E. France (86); Morgan C. Harris (79) vs John Creegan (84); Frank Blaul (81) vs R. M. Hudak (87); A. Carlson (78) vs Dr. K. P. Heintz (83); George Werkmeister (80) vs George Schwarzenbach (86; Edward Mattingly (79) vs C. S. Catherman, Sr. (84); James W. Beacham (82) vs Joseph Miller (89).

SECOND FLIGHT—B. H. McCrackin (89) vs John Manley (93); F. W. Eller (91) vs E. R. Allan (94); R. S. Stallings (90) vs M. D. Tenney (94); P. D. Collins (92) vs W. D. Smith (94); William Douglas (89) vs Dr. H. B. Wood (93); Harry E. Nelson (91) vs William Jenkins (94); H. B. Idleman (90) vs George Millenson (94); Fred W. Mills (93) vs G. W. Bibby (95).

Feller Rescues Cleveland to End Rout, 5-4

Detroit and New York Also Win To Keep on Indians' Trail

Young Fireballer Puts Clamp on White Sox To Win 24th

CLEVELAND, Sept. 8. (AP)—Bobby Feller, coming in as a relief pitcher for Al Milnar in the ninth inning with the score tied four-all, won his 24th victory of the year as the Cleveland Indians defeated the Chicago White Sox 5 to 4 in 10 innings. The victory enabled the Indians to maintain a slight mathematical advantage over Detroit in the tie for first place.

Ray Mack drove in the winning run after Jeff Heath led off with a double and took third base on a passed ball.

In the two innings Feller worked, he allowed one hit, one base on balls and struck out three. Milnar, who has not won a game since Aug. 4 allowed nine hits before he was pulled. Ted Lyons gave up 14 hits.

Cleveland's big inning was the fourth—three runs. Jeff Heath singled and Ken Keltner followed with his 14th home run of the year. Rollie Hemsley was safe on Jimmy Webb's error and advanced to third on Milnar's single. Lou Boudreau produced a double to score Hemsley.

The Indians added one in the fifth on singles by Ben Chapman and Beau Bell, Chapman scoring on an infield out.

Chicago scored their first run in the second with doubles by Julius Solters and Mike Tresh. In the sixth Joe Kuhel bunted and when Milnar threw wild to first he moved to third. Luke Appling then tripled, scoring Kuhel.

In the eighth Kreevich beat out a hit to deep short and Solters hit a home run.

Outfielder Roy Weatherly, one of the Indians' best hitters, pulled a muscle in yesterday's game and will be out of the lineup for the next several days. Campbell replaced him.

Riggs and McNeill To Play for Title

NEW YORK, Sept. 8. (AP)—The 59th annual national singles tennis championships followed form perfectly so Bobby Riggs, the national champion will meet Don McNeill, the Oklahoma City bomber for the championship tomorrow just after Alice Marble and Helen Jacobs play for the women's title.

Without a hitch in the proceedings, the four came through semi-final matches today.

The only real thrills for a crowd of about 12,000 came in the match in which McNeill out-punched the youthful Kramer, co-holder of the national doubles title. McNeill was the better sharp-shooter and he won, after a shaky start, 6-1, 5-7, 6-4, 6-3.

That sent the husky Kramer, who had been the chief giant killer, out of the tourney and gave Riggs, who outlasted Midshipman Joe Hunt in a tedious five-set match, a worthy foe for the finals.

Riggs, far from being at his peak and far from offering any excitement, merely outsteadied the erratic Hunt, 4-6, 6-3, 5-7, 6-3, 6-4. The match dragged through two hours and 35 minutes of actual playing time.

The women's matches offered nothing that wasn't strictly according to Hoyle. Miss Jacobs, after a slow start, dropped England's second best woman player, Mary Hardwick, by 2-6, 6-1, 6-4.

Miss Marble, in turning back Valerie Scott, another English girl, 6-3, 6-3, got a pretty good workout.

Yankees Wash Up Red Sox Pennant Hopes on 9-4 Win

Champs Enhance Chances as Joe Gordon Hits in Streak

BOSTON, Sept. 8 (AP) — The surging New York Yankees just about washed up Boston Red Sox pennant hopes and enhanced their own considerably today with a 9-4 triumph, which swept the two-game series between the clubs.

"Spud" Chandler held the Sox to eight scattered hits while his mates were splattering a parade of five Boston twirlers for 12 hits and 11 bases on balls. "Flash" Gordon hit for the cycle for the Yankees and collected a pair of walks for a perfect day at bat.

Leadoff man Gordon opened the hostilities today with his 25th home run of the season, belting one of Bill Fleming's offering into the left field screen. Bobby Doerr duplicated in the second to tie up the game. Gordon connected for his single in the Yankee second but was left stranded.

The champs picked up two more in the third.

The Sox equalized in the same inning when Cramer singled and came home on a Jimmy Foxx double, the Sox catcher counting on Doerr's single. The Yanks went ahead for good in the fourth when Gordon tripled and scored on Red Rolfe's double, George Selkirk singled to send Rolfe home. Gordon completed his cycle with a fifth inning double.

In the eighth, the Sox pitching came apart at the seams and the Yankees picked up four tallies on only two hits.

35 Given Football Gear at Berkeley

BERKELEY SPRINGS, W. Va., Sept. 8—Football equipment was issued to nearly 35 boys reporting last week to Coach Paul "Moose" Hodges at Berkeley Springs High school.

The Indians will open their season September 27 against an opponent yet to be scheduled. With many posts to be filled and only a few experienced men on hand, Coach Hodges has quite a task on his hands. To make it worse, the Berkeley card includes such tough foes as Martinsburg, Charles Town, Ridgeley and Harpers Ferry.

As his eleven will be lighter than the 1939 crew, Coach Hodges hopes to make up for this handicap by speed. In the backfield, Fred Waugh, a lettermen, is expected to hold down one position but the other ball-toting jobs are wide open. The same is true on the line with Harry Crowe, senior center and also a letterman, the only one certain of a berth.

Short on halfbacks and ends, it is possible that Crowe may be shifted to a wing if a suitable center can be found. Other returning lettermen are Fred Forney and Benton Michael, both seniors, and Emitt Alabaugh, a junior, all backs, and Lewis Dyche, tackle; Bill Rankin and Earsel Everett, guards, and Bill Harmison, end. Dyche, Rankin and Everett are juniors and Harmison a sophomore.

Newcomers are Charles Braithwaite and Bill Largent, seniors; Dwight Yost and Gilbert Youngblood, juniors; Hunter Phillips, Foster Miller, Charles Webster and Alpheus Barney, sophomores, and Donald Chambers and Joseph Wise, freshmen. The schedule:

Sept. 27—Open.
Oct. 5—Martinsburg, away.
Oct. 12—St. Mary's of Hagerstown, home.
Oct. 18—Shepherdstown, away.
Oct. 24—Charles Town, away.
Nov. 1—Ridgeley, away.
Nov. 8—Harpers Ferry, away.
Nov. 15—Romney, home.

Frostburg Wins over Dayton in Tourney 2-1

Frostburg's American Legion nine won its second game in the National Amateur Baseball Federation tourney at Birmingham, Ala., yesterday, defeating Dayton, Ohio, 2 to 1. Dayton was reputed a strong contender for the title and the Frostburgers' triumph attracted the spotlight to them.

Stetz fanned ten Dayton batters. Joe McGinn slashed a triple for the winners, which was said to be the longest blow ever hit in the tourney, but the pay-off blow for Frostburg was a triple with two aboard by "Jaggers" Drew, which sewed up the game.

Frostburg plays Pittsburg today at 1 p. m.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Sept. 8 (AP) — The national amateur tournament, which opens at Winged Foot tomorrow, almost annually offers a mad scramble that only could be matched if Bob Feller were suddenly declared a free agent.

Since Bobby Jones slammed out of the picture in 1930 there have been few years in which any one contender could be pointed out as the most likely to succeed. Johnny Goodman in 1933, Lawson Little in 1934 and 1935, and Bud Ward last year were in the favored class.

Little and Ward came through, and so did Goodman, although he was four years behind schedule. But otherwise the eventual winners were just another oat in the bin when the tournaments started.

Nobody expected already well-matured Francis Ouimet to win in 1931, or the dour Canadian, C. Ross Somerville, in 1932. George Dunlap was rated just another mild threat in 1933, and the same was true of Johnny Fischer in 1936.

Goodman had lost his favorite status by the time he came through in 1937, and Willie Turnesa was just one of the pack in 1938.

Under the circumstances a man would have to be at least slightly on the balmy side to come out with a choice for the title. Therefore, we give you:

Johnny Goodman, to win, place, or at least show plenty.

That isn't a shot in the dark, and neither is it inspired by sentiment because we were a resident of Omaha when Johnny was zooming to fame. It's simply that since Jones quit the scene the plump Nebraskan has been the most consistent performer in the event.

In the last nine years he has won once, been runnerup once, a semi-finalist twice, a quarterfinalist once, and reached the third round once. When he did fade from the picture early, there was no fooling around about it. He went out in the first or second round.

Goodman hasn't been playing tournament golf much of late, but we understood he still can make the eagle scream when he wants to, and he has an incentive to want to. The 1941 amateur will be played on his own course, the Omaha field club, and it would be pretty nice to weld the title of host to that of defending champion.

Another reason why we see his chances through rose-colored specs: The Winged Foot course is made to order for good iron players, and Goodman can take a niblick and drop the ball into a teacup at 75 paces.

We aren't forgetting that there are some other fair-to-middling golfers in the tournament. We have unqualified respect for the defending champion, Bud Ward of Spokane. Art Doering is given the nod by more than one expert as the boy who has what it takes. He's another of those men of iron, or irons. When he's pitching for the pin the gallery doesn't have to dive into bunkers for protection.

In fact, the field is blossoming with good players who might go far, particularly in the string of 18-hole matches where a torrid spell often is more valuable than consistency over a long stretch.

It's really putting your neck out to put the finger on any one man, but on his record, Goodman should be right up there. Anyway, we picked him last year and if we keep it up the law of averages should take care of us eventually, if old age doesn't get Johnny first.

Maryland Softball Champs Eliminated

DETROIT, Sept. 8—The Bethlehem Steel team, representing Maryland in the National Softball championships, was defeated in the second round by the late rally of Connecticut, 5 to 4.

The Steelmen had earlier licked Tennessee and led the second-round opponent, 4 to 0, going into the seventh inning.

Then Pitcher Joe Boggio, who had hurled the Marylanders to their first victory, tired. He was relieved by Jack Friedman, but the rally could not be stopped. Connecticut pushed over five runs to win the game.

Chicago Sub Back Sparks Cards To Tie with Steelers

Beryl Clark Stars before 22,000 Fans at Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 8 (AP) — Sparked by Beryl Clark, substitute halfback making his debut in the professional ranks, the Chicago Cardinals came from behind to tie the Pittsburgh steelers 7-7 in the National Pro Football League opener before 22,000 at Forbes Field today.

The 22-year old ex-Oklahoma University star, who replaced the vaunted Marshall Goldberg, flipped a pass to John Hall in the third quarter to put Chicago back in the game after trailing since early in the second period. Hal galloped 35 yards to score. A moment later Clark booted the tying point from placement.

Clark, who led the Big Six conference in scoring last year, was sent into the game late in the first period when Goldberg, former all-America at Pitt, was benched because of a bad leg. Clark promptly led the Cardinals on the longest advance of the game, a 66-yard drive that the Steelers rallied to stop on their 27-yard stripe.

Stopped Momentarily

The Oklahoma boy was momentarily stopped early in the second period when he was twice tackled behind his line — Pittsburgh winning the ball on downs and forging ahead for its score.

Those two pretty tackles by Wilbur Sortet and Boyd Brumbaugh forced the Cardinals back 10 yards to the Pittsburgh 37-yard line.

Then Billy Patterson, dodging and spinning, slanted off right end for 12 yards and a first down. Boyd Brumbaugh plunged for six and the Cardinal reserves came in in a vain attempt to halt the Pittsburgh advance.

From the Chicago 45-yeard line Patterson heaved a beautiful 27-yard spiral to George Platukis, who was practically in the clear and easily galloped the remaining 18 yards for a goal. Armand Niccolai's place-kick was good for the point.

Field Goal Try Short

In the final period both teams zig-zagged back and forth although with one minute to go, Niccolai made a bold attempt to break the deadlock with a field goal from the 49-yard mark. The kick was short.

The Cards rang up nine first downs to the Steelers' three and completed nine of 21 passes attempted for 128 yards against Pittsburgh's 64 yards from four completed passes out of 13 tries.

Merlyn Condit, flashy backfield star who was the hero of the College All-Stars game in New York last week, didn't get into the clash today because of the heavy bruising he received from the New York Giants.

Score by periods.

STEELERS	0	7	0	0—7
CARDINALS	0	0	7	0—7

Pittsburgh scoring: Touchdown—Platukis. Point after touchdown—Niccolai (placement). Chicago scoring: Touchdown—Hall. Point after touchdown—Clark (placement).

Ward Warns Foes In Amateur Golf

MAMARONECK, N. Y., Sept. 8 (AP) — Marvin (Bud) Ward, defending title-holder in the National Amateur Golf championship, tossed a bit of psychology as well as a lot of golf shots at his rivals today by shooting a four-under-par 68 in his final practice round over the Winged Foot G. C. West course.

This round, on which he holed out every putt, not only was equal to the competitive course record but also served due and definite notice that he's ready to lay his title on the line against any man who tries to take it away from him.

Ward, playing in a match with another golfer from Spokane—Bing Crosby—finally got rolling on Winged Foot's back nine. He went out in 37, one over regulation, but he started back 3-3-3-2, tacked on five straight 4's, for a five-under-par 31 for the homeward journey.

Ward, teamed with Billy Bob Coffey of Fort Wirth, Texas, against Crosby and Craig Wood, the Winged Foot pro, was an incidental attraction when the foursome started out. The crowd was there chiefly to see Crosby.

But by the time Bing had shot the first nine in 43 and started out not much better on the back nine, the spotlight shifted. Ward's score for those holes was only one shot over the sensational 30 which Bobby Jones had for his 69 that led the first round of the 1929 U. S. open here, and which set what then was the course record.

Tomorrow's first 18-hole qualifying round will start at 7 a. m., (E. S. T.) From then until 12.57 p. m., the 150 entrants will be teeing off in threesomes. There will be another 18-hole round Tuesday, and the 64 low scorers then go into match play, starting Wednesday and Thursday with two 18-hole rounds each day. They shift to the 36-hole route for the semi-finals Friday and final Saturday.

Feller Rescues Cleveland to End Rout, 5-4

Comes To Aid of Milnar To Check Chicago in Ninth

Detroit and New York Also Win To Keep on Indians' Trail

Young Fireballer Puts Clamp on White Sox To Win 24th

CLEVELAND, Sept. 8. (AP)—Bobby Feller, coming in as a relief pitcher for Al Milnar in the ninth inning with the score tied four-all, won his 24th victory of the year as the Cleveland Indians defeated the Chicago White Sox 5 to 4 in 10 innings. The victory enabled the Indians to maintain a slight mathematical advantage over Detroit in the tie for first place.

Ray Mack drove in the winning run after Jeff Heath led off with a double and took third base on a passed ball.

In the two innings Feller worked, he allowed one hit, one base on balls and struck out three. Milnar, who has not won a game since Aug. 4 allowed nine hits before he was pulled. Ted Lyons gave up 14 hits.

Cleveland's big inning was the fourth—three runs. Jeff Heath singled and Ken Keltner followed with his 14th home run of the year. Rollie Hemsley was safe on Jimmy Webb's error and advanced to third on Milnar's single. Lou Boudreau produced a double to score Hemsley.

The Indians added one in the fifth on singles by Ben Chapman and Beau Bell, Chapman scoring on an infield out.

Chicago scored their first run in the second with doubles by Julius Solters and Mike Tresh. In the sixth Joe Kuhel bunted and when Milnar threw wild to first he moved to third. Luke Appling then tripled, scoring Kuhel.

In the eighth Kreevich beat out a hit to deep short and Solters hit a home run.

Outfielder Roy Weatherly, one of the Indians' best hitters, pulled a muscle in yesterday's game and will be out of the lineup for the next several days. Campbell replaced him.

Riggs and McNeill To Play for Title

NEW YORK, Sept. 8. (AP)—The 59th annual national singles tennis championships followed form perfectly so Bobby Riggs, the national champion will meet Don McNeill, the Oklahoma City bomber for the championship tomorrow. Just after Alice Marble and Helen Jacobs play for the women's title.

Without a hitch in the proceedings, the four came through semi-final matches today.

The only real thrills for a crowd of about 12,000 came in the match in which McNeill out-punched the youthful Kramer, co-holder of the national doubles title. McNeill was the better sharp-shooter and he won, after a shaky start, 6-1, 5-7, 6-4, 6-3.

That sent the husky Kramer, who had been the chief giant killer out of the tourney and gave Riggs, who outlasted Midshipman Joe Hunt in a tedious five-set match, a worthy foe for the finals.

Riggs, far from being at his peak and far from offering any excitement, merely outsteadied the erratic Hunt, 4-6, 6-3, 5-7, 6-3, 6-4. The match dragged through two hours and 35 minutes of actual playing time.

The women's matches offered nothing that wasn't strictly according to Hoyle. Miss Jacobs, after a slow start, dropped England's second best woman player, Mary Hardwick, by 2-6, 6-1, 6-4.

Miss Marble, in turning back Valerie Scott, another English girl, 6-3, 6-3, got a pretty good workout.

Watson M. Washburn of New York, a former Davis Cup doubles player who at 46 is a mere stripling in his division, won the veterans' singles title by defeating S. Parvis Adams, Jr., an unseeded player from Port Washington, N. Y., 6-4, 6-2.

Yankees Wash Up Red Sox Pennant Hopes on 9-4 Win

Champs Enhance Chances as Joe Gordon Hits in Streak

BOSTON, Sept. 8 (AP) — The surging New York Yankees just about washed up Boston Red Sox pennant hopes and enhanced their own considerably today with a 9-4 triumph, which swept the two-game series between the clubs.

"Spud" Chandler held the Sox to eight scattered hits while his mates were splattering a parade of five Boston twirlers for 12 hits and 11 bases on balls. "Flash" Gordon hit for the cycle for the Yankees and collected a pair of walks for a perfect day at bat.

Leadoff man Gordon opened the hostilities today with his 25th home run of the season, belting one of Bill Fleming's offering into the left field screen. Bobby Doerr duplicated in the second to tie up the game. Gordon connected for his single in the Yankee second but was left stranded.

The champs picked up two more in the third.

The Sox equalized in the same inning when Cramer singled and came home on a Jimmy Foxx double, the Sox catcher counting on Doerr's single. The Yanks went ahead for good in the fourth when Gordon tripled and scored on Red Rolfe's double. George Selkirk singled to send Rolfe home. Gordon completed his cycle with a fifth inning double.

In the eighth, the Sox pitching came apart at the seams and the Yankees picked up four tallies on only two hits.

35 Given Football Gear at Berkeley

BERKELEY SPRINGS, W. Va., Sept. 8—Football equipment was issued to nearly 35 boys reporting last week to Coach Paul "Moose" Hodges at Berkeley Springs High school.

The Indians will open their season September 27 against an opponent yet to be scheduled. With many posts to be filled and only a few experienced men on hand, Coach Hodges has quite a task on his hands. To make it worse, the Berkeley card includes such tough foes as Martinsburg, Charles Town, Ridgeley and Harpers Ferry.

As his eleven will be lighter than the 1939 crew, Coach Hodges hopes to make up for this handicap by speed. In the backfield, Fred Waugh, a lettermen, is expected to hold down one position but the other ball-toting jobs are wide open. The same is true on the line with Harry Crowe, senior center and also a letterman, the only one certain of a berth.

Short on halfbacks and ends, it is possible that Crowe may be shifted to a wing if a suitable center can be found. Other returning lettermen are Fred Forney and Benton Michael, both seniors, and Emitt Alabaugh, a junior, all backs, and Lewis Dyche, tackle; Bill Rankin and Earsel Everett, guards, and Bill Harmison, end. Dyche, Rankin and Everett are juniors and Harmison a sophomore.

Newcomers are Charles Braithwaite and Bill Largent, seniors; Dwight Yost and Gilbert Youngblood, juniors; Hunter Phillips, Foster Miller, Charles Webster and Alpheus Barney, sophomores, and Donald Chambers and Joseph Wise, freshmen. The schedule:

Sept. 27—Open.
Oct. 5—Martinsburg, away.
Oct. 12—St. Mary's of Hagerstown, home.
Oct. 18—Shepherdstown, away.
Oct. 24—Charles Town, away.
Nov. 1—Ridgeley, away.
Nov. 8—Harpers Ferry, away.
Nov. 15—Romney, home.

Colts Will Drill For Bi-State Series

The Cumberland Colts will practice today for the Bi-State Baseball League Shaughnessy playoff series, scheduled to start Saturday of this week, at Community Park. They will drill also Wednesday and Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Frostburg Wins over Dayton in Tourney 2-1

Frostburg's American Legion nine won its second game in the National Amateur Baseball Federation tourney at Birmingham, Ala., yesterday, defeating Dayton, Ohio, 2 to 1. Dayton was reputed a strong contender for the title and the Frostburgers' triumph attracted the spotlight to them.

Stetz fanned ten Dayton batters. Joe McGinn slashed a triple for the winners, which was said to be the longest blow ever hit in the tourney, but the pay-off blow for Frostburg was a triple with two aboard by "Jaggers" Drew, which sewed up the game.

Frostburg plays Pittsburg today at 1 p. m.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Sept. 8 (AP) — The national amateur tournament, which opens at Winged Foot tomorrow, almost annually offers a mad scramble that only could be matched if Bob Feller were suddenly declared a free agent.

Since Bobby Jones slammed out of the picture in 1930 there have been few years in which any one contender could be pointed out as the most likely to succeed. Johnny Goodman in 1933, Lawson Little in 1934 and 1935, and Bud Ward last year were in the favored class.

Little and Ward came through, and so did Goodman, although he was four years behind schedule. But otherwise the eventual winners were just another oat in the bin when the tournaments started.

Nobody expected already well-matured Francis Ouimet to win in 1931, or the dour Canadian, C. Ross Somerville, in 1932. George Dunlap was rated just another mild threat in 1933, and the same was true of Johnny Fischer in 1936.

Goodman had lost his favorite status by the time he came through in 1937, and Willie Turnesa was just one of the pack in 1938.

Under the circumstances a man would have to be at least slightly on the balmy side to come out with a choice for the title. Therefore, we give you:

Johnny Goodman, to win, place, or at least show plenty.

That isn't a shot in the dark, and neither is it inspired by sentiment because we were a resident of Omaha when Johnny was zooming to fame. It's simply that since Jones quit the scene the plump Nebraskan has been the most consistent performer in the event.

In the last nine years he has won once, been runnerup once, a semi-finalist twice, a quarterfinalist once, and reached the third round once. When he did fade from the picture early, there was no fooling around about it. He went out in the first or second round.

Goodman hasn't been playing tournament golf much of late, but we understood he still can make the eagle scream when he wants to, and he has an incentive to want to. The 1941 amateur will be played on his own course, the Omaha field club, and it would be pretty nice to weld the title of host to that of defending champion.

Another reason why we see his chances through rose-colored specs: The Winged Foot course is made to order for good iron players, and Goodman can take a niblick and drop the ball into a teacup at 75 paces.

We aren't forgetting that there are some other fair-to-middling golfers in the tournament. We have unqualified respect for the defending champion, Bud Ward of Spokane. Art Doering is given the nod by more than one expert as the boy who has what it takes. He's another of those men of iron, or irons. When he's pitching for the pin the gallery doesn't have to dive into bunkers for protection.

In fact, the field is blossoming with good players who might go far, particularly in the string of 18-hole matches where a torrid spell often is more valuable than consistency over a long stretch.

It's really putting your neck out to put the finger on any one man, but on his record, Goodman should be right up there. Anyway, we picked him last year and if we keep it up the law of averages should take care of us eventually, if old age doesn't get Johnny first.

Maryland Softball Champs Eliminated

DETROIT, Sept. 8—The Bethlehem Steel team, representing Maryland in the National Softball championships, was defeated in the second round by the late rally of Connecticut, 5 to 4.

The Steelmen had earlier licked Tennessee and led the second-round opponent, 4 to 0, going into the seventh inning.

Then Pitcher Joe Boggio, who had hurled the Marylanders to their first victory, tired. He was relieved by Jack Friedman, but the rally could not be stopped. Connecticut pushed over five runs to win the game.

Chicago Sub Back Sparks Cards To Tie with Steelers

Beryl Clark Stars before 22,000 Fans at Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 8 (AP) — Sparked by Beryl Clark, substitute halfback making his debut in the professional ranks, the Chicago Cardinals came from behind to tie the Pittsburgh steelers 7-7 in the National Pro Football League opener before 22,000 at Forbes Field today.

The 22-year old ex-Oklahoma University star, who replaced the vaunted Marshall Goldberg, flipped a pass to John Hall in the third quarter to put Chicago back in the game after trailing since early in the second period. Hal galloped 35 yards to score. A moment later Clark booted the tying point from placement.

Clark, who led the Big Six conference in scoring last year, was sent into the game late in the first period when Goldberg, former all-America at Pitt, was benched because of a bad leg. Clark promptly led the Cardinals on the longest advance of the game, a 66-yard drive that the Steelers rallied to stop on their 27-yard stripe.

Stopped Momentarily

The Oklahoma boy was momentarily stopped early in the second period when he was twice tackled behind his line — Pittsburgh winning the ball on downs and forging ahead for its score.

Those two pretty tackles by Wilbur Sortet and Boyd Brumbaugh forced the Cardinals back 10 yards to the Pittsburgh 37-yard line.

Then Billy Patterson, dodging and spinning, slanted off right end for 12 yards and a first down. Boyd Brumbaugh plunged for six and the Cardinal reserves came in in a vain attempt to halt the Pittsburgh advance.

From the Chicago 45-yeard line Patterson heaved a beautiful 27-yard spiral to George Platukis, who was practically in the clear and easily galloped the remaining 18 yards for a goal. Armand Niccolai's place-kick was good for the point.

Field Goal Try Short

In the final period both teams zig-zagged back and forth although with one minute to go, Niccolai made a bold attempt to break the deadlock with a field goal from the 49-yard mark. The kick was short.

The Cards rang up nine first downs to the Steelers' three and completed nine of 21 passes attempted for 128 yards against Pittsburgh's 64 yards from four completed passes out of 13 tries.

Merlyn Condit, flashy backfield star who was the hero of the College All-Stars game in New York last week, didn't get into the clash today because of the heavy bruising he received from the New York Giants.

Score by periods.

STEELERS	0	7	0	0—7
CARDINALS	0	0	7	0—7

Pittsburgh scoring: Touchdown—Platukis. Point after touchdown—Niccolai (placement). Chicago scoring: Touchdown—Hall. Point after touchdown—Clark (placement).

Ward Warns Foes In Amateur Golf

MAMARONECK, N. Y., Sept. 8 (AP) — Marvin (Bud) Ward, defending title-holder in the National Amateur Golf championship, tossed a bit of psychology as well as a lot of golf shots at his rivals today by shooting a four-under-par 68 in his final practice round over the Winged Foot G. C. West course.

This round, on which he holed out every putt, not only was equal to the competitive course record but also served due and definite notice that he's ready to lay his title on the line against any man who tries to take it away from him.

Ward, playing in a match with another golfer from Spokane—Bing Crosby—finally got rolling on Winged Foot's back nine. He went out in 37, one over regulation, but he started back 3-3-3-2, tacked on five straight 4's, for a five-under-par 31 for the homeward journey.

Ward, teamed with Billy Bob Coffey of Fort Wirth, Texas, against Crosby and Craig Wood, the Winged Foot pro, was an incidental attraction when the foursome started out. The crowd was there chiefly to see Crosby.

But by the time Bing had shot the first nine in 43 and started out not much better on the back nine, the spotlight shifted. Ward's score for those holes was only one shot over the sensational 30 which Bobby Jones had for his 69 that led the first round of the 1929 U. S. open here, and which set what then was the course record.

Tomorrow's first 18-hole qualifying round will start at 7 a. m., (E. S. T.) From then until 12.57 p. m., the 150 entrants will be teeing off in threesomes. There will be another 18-hole round Tuesday, and the 64 low scorers then go into match play, starting Wednesday and Thursday with two 18-hole rounds each day. They shift to the 36-hole route for the semi-finals Friday and final Saturday.

J. William Ginevan, 35, Is Critically Injured On Virginia Highway

Suffers Loss of Right Eye When Car Turns Over; Three Others Hurt near Winchester

Four employes of a Cumberland plumbing concern, enroute to Washington, D. C., were injured yesterday at 10:30 a. m., when the car in which they were riding skidded on the slippery highway between Paris and Upperville, Va., about a mile from Winchester, and turned over, pinning the occupants beneath it.

Those hurt and the extent of their injuries are:

J. William Ginevan, 35, of 1,000 Lexington avenue, injured about the face and suffered loss of right eye.

John C. Osbourne, 39, of 116 South Smallwood street, lacerations of the chin and injuries to both jaws.

The four men were taken to Memorial hospital, Winchester, where all were treated for their injuries. Hering and Osbourne returned to their homes yesterday afternoon while Thompson was dismissed from the hospital at 6:30 o'clock last evening.

Hospital attaches late last night reported that Ginevan's condition is regarded as critical and that everything in their power is being done to save his left eye.

Upon their arrival in Cumberland, Hering and Osbourne were taken to Allegany hospital for observation but later returned to their homes. They expect to return to the hospital today to have X-rays taken of their injured jaws and foot.

Osbourne was the driver of the machine when it skidded on the highway which had been made slippery from the heavy rain and turned over.

State Trooper Miller, of the Virginia State Police, investigated the accident.

The four injured men are employes of the H. and S. Heating and Plumbing company, 128 Polk street.

Nicholas Haz May Give Course Here

Camera Club Will Make Decision at Meeting Here Tonight

A discussion relative to securing Nicholas Haz, F. R. P. S., noted teacher, lecturer and photographer, to come to Cumberland at an early date to give his course entitled, "Picture Vizualization and Analysis," will feature the regular monthly meeting of the Cumberland Miniature Camera Club this evening at the Knights of Malta hall, Prospect Square, at 7:30 o'clock.

The course of twelve lessons over a period of two weeks is similar to the course which Nicholas Haz teaches at his school in New York city.

At this evening's sessions the club will hold its monthly point competition with cash prizes going to the winners. The traveling salon of the Mobile (Ala.) Camera club will be placed on display.

All persons desiring to join the Cumberland Miniature Camera Club are urged to attend this evening's meeting.

It was announced last evening that the local club's traveling print show is in Lima, Ohio, for two weeks, and will go from there to Mobile, Ala. The show visited Akron, O., and Kalamazoo, Mich., prior to going to Lima.

Four Persons Treated At Allegany Hospital For Arm Injuries

Four persons, including a widow, were treated Saturday at Allegany hospital after injuring their left arms in falls.

Mrs. Melissa M. Moore, 52, of 404 Central avenue, was injured Saturday noon when she fell in the bathroom at home.

Two boys, Robert Phillips, 11, of Hyndman, Pa., and Harley Brant, 13, of RFD 4, Williams road, were hurt Saturday night when they fell while playing.

Frank Wineland, 29, of Narrows Park, suffered an injured arm Saturday night in a fall from a truck.

All four were discharged from the hospital after being treated.

Legion To Pay Tribute to AEF Leader Thursday

Will Observe Pershing's Birthday with Concert and Ox Roast

Members of Fort Cumberland Post, American Legion, will celebrate General John J. Pershing's birthday Thursday night with a band concert in Constitution park at 8 o'clock followed by an ox roast at the clubrooms. The Legion band will play under the direction of Joseph Fradiska.

General Pershing's birthday comes this week Friday, but many posts throughout the country will observe it Thursday night. As the commander of the American Expeditionary Force in France the general was the outstanding soldier of the war and today he is the best known and respected of the many who served in France.

Robert C. Bowers, past commander, will be the toastmaster at the ox roast and Col. George Henderson will be the principal speaker. There will be a number of other speakers.

Mrs. Clark's Biography Appears in "Principal Women of America"

Mrs. J. B. Clark, (Irene Woodbridge Clark) mother of the Rev. David C. Clark, rector of Emmanuel Episcopal church, 29 North Prospect square, is one of the eminent women of the United States to have her detailed biography included in "Principal Women of America," Volume III, 1940, just published by the Mitre Press, London, England.

This important social directory is available at most public and institution libraries throughout the United States and Canada, as well as being at all libraries in Great Britain, Australia and South Africa.

That the importance of this directory is recognized officially is acknowledged by the fact that despite the paper shortage in England, the government of that country granted a special license for the supply of the sixty-five tons of paper requisite to the production of the third volume just published.

The H. W. Wilson Company, New York city, will handle the distribution of the directory in America.

Fails To Appear when Summoned, Cruthers Is Released under Bond

William Cruthers, 245 Virginia avenue, was arrested Saturday afternoon on a charge of failing to appear in police court when duly summoned. He was released under $5 bond, pending a hearing today.

Cruthers was summoned to appear in court Saturday morning to testify in a drunk-disorderly conduct case. The defendant, W. F. Pittman, 515 East First street, was fined $5 on the two charges, preferred by Officer R. M. Nuse.

Personal Items

Charles E. Brode, 307 Franklin street, an employe of the Times & Alleganian Company, last night entered Allegany hospital to undergo an operation this morning.

Bert E. Browne, Police Sergeant, Is Discharged

Dismissed on Charge of Conduct Unbecoming to an Officer

Dismissal of Sergt. Bert B. Browne as a member of the Cumberland Police department on a charge of conduct unbecoming to an officer was announced yesterday by John J. Treiber, acting chief of police.

Treiber, who is acting chief of the department in the absence of Chief Oscar A. Eyerman from the city, preferred charges against Browne after the latter had been caught in a Columbia street apartment with a married woman early Sunday morning, police said.

According to police, the husband of the married woman came home unexpectedly and when unable to open the door which was locked from the inside, he notified headquarters of his predicament, adding that the apartment was occupied because he could hear a man and woman talking.

Police went to the apartment and succeeded in having Browne open the door.

It was announced at police headquarters that Browne, 37, became a member of the department in 1932, and was promoted to the rank of sergeant in 1935. He has a wife and three children and lives at 420 Williams street.

Sergt. Browne yesterday was ordered to turn in his uniform and equipment.

The husband of the woman whom Browne was said to have been visiting told police that he has one child.

Police Commissioner Orr last night announced that James E. Kelley will take over the post of desk sergeant temporarily on the 8 a. m. to 4 p. m. turn, replacing Browne. Officer James Condon will be transferred to the Centre street beat in place of Officer H. P. Kennard who is being changed to Mechanic street. Changes are only temporary, Orr said.

Automobile Breaks Down; Two Young Couples Held Until Funds Arrive

An automobile breakdown near Cumberland last night resulted in two young Pennsylvania couples being held at police headquarters, pending the arrival of money for transportation back home or their parents today.

They gave their names as James F. Butler, 18, Richard E. Trank, 19,, and Jane Stroup, 18, all of Coudersport, Pa., and Yvonne McCracken, 17, of Ulysses, Pa.

Police contacted the parents of the girls. The father of the McCracken girl said to hold his daughter until he arrived here, and the Stroup girl's parents said they would wire money today, police reported.

The young men's parents could not be located up till midnight.

Police would not say if the young couples, who walked into headquarters, came here for the purpose of getting married. They said they did not question them thoroughly.

The four will probably be released today.

Two Motorists Arrested Following Collision

Two drivers were arrested Saturday afternoon on Wineow street following a minor collision.

They were Robert Lee Liller, 130 Wineow street, and Joseph N. Price, 6 Arch street. Both were charged with careless driving and cited to appear Friday in police court for a hearing.

Officers James J. Condon and James E. Kelley investigated.

William Race, of Frostburg, was apprehended early Saturday night on Maryland avenue on a charge of failing to stop at a stop sign. He was released under $1 bond, pending a hearing today in police court.

Lieut James E. Van and Officer Kelley made the arrest.

Defense Group Seeks Information On Industry and Labor Conditions

Request Referred to State Committee of Which Henry W. Price Is Member

Industry in Cumberland, as well as in other communities in the state, is affected by a request for information received by the Maryland Council of Defense and Resources from the Advisory Council of the National Defense Commission.

In addition to asking for general information concerning industrial and labor conditions, and idle production capacity, request is made for certain specific information, as follows:

1. A bibliography of published and private analyses of industrial and labor conditions;

2. Detailed data on idle or inactive plants not connected with any going concern;

3. A list of branch or subsidiary plants of mining or manufacturing companies.

W. Frank Roberts, chairman of the state council, immediately referred the request to the committee on Industrial Resources and Production, of which Robert O. Bonnell is chairman, and Henry W. Price, of this city; Stewart J. Cort and Glenn L. Martin as members.

"As this inquiry may mean much to Maryland industry," Bonnell stated, "we shall immediately proceed to assemble the information desired and I have every hope that we can complete the work in a minimum of time. Most of the information desired is recorded with Public or Quasi-Public agencies such as the State Planning Board, Association of of Commerce and the like, so that we shall not find necessary to institute new surveys at the present time, and hence can avoid the delays that always accompany such detailed studies. Later, if new surveys are needed we shall institute them promptly."

Roberts expressed satisfaction at the receipt of the communication. "Quite evidently," he said, "the division of State and Local Co-operation is now well past the organization phase and has passed into the action stage. We have been ready here for several weeks and have contributed something toward alien registration and other matters but up to today had received no request that made it necessary to call any specific committee into action.

"Now that this great work of co-ordination has been given an impetus, we shall look forward to new opportunities for service."

Patriotic Talks Mark Junior Order Rally

National Councilor Speaks at Park; 1,000 Persons Hear Concert by Band from Orphans' Home

Talks by Ralph Morris, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., national councilor of the organization, E. Willis Lamoreau, a member of the board of directors of the Orphans' Home, Tiffin, Ohio, and Mayor Harry Irvine and a concert by the Junior Order Orphans Home Band featured the patriotic rally and picnic of the county councils of the Junior Order United American Mechanics yesterday in Constitution park.

The rally, sponsored by the Boosters Association of Allegany county, attracted 1,000 persons to the city park despite rain in the morning and threatening weather early in the afternoon.

National Officer Talks

National Councilor Morris, in his talk, said that Constitution park was an appropriate place for such a patriotic gathering and declared that what this country needs today is more good propaganda and less bad propaganda. In dwelling on the subject of dissatisfied groups, particularly the Communists, he said that if those people believe Russia is a better place in which to live his advice was for them to go back to Russia.

Morris said America's biggest job is fighting the foe from within and not without, referring particularly to those who would substitute some other "ism" for Americanism.

He stressed the fact that for eighty-seven years the Junior Order has stood by Old Glory and everything that the American flag stands for. Pointing out the Boys Band as an example of the good work that the order is doing, Morris added that 3,000 others are receiving a chance to make life worthwhile at the Ohio institution.

Morris urged parents not to let their children affiliate with any youth congress or any other organization of the kind, declaring that there is no reason for any other "ism" in America but Americanism.

In conclusion Morris said that "after all the best weapon of the American people is the ballot." He urged the people to vote for a man who has the courage of his convictions.

Lamoreau Tells of Home

E. Willis Lamoreau, member of the board of directors of the Orphans' Home, Tiffin, Ohio, told of the model village in Ohio where orphans of deceased Junior Order members are given a chance to make good in the world.

Lamoreau told of the playground, two schools, hospitals, nursery and $200,000 stone church which was built in the village from funds supplied by Junior Order councils in the Buckeye state. He told of the auditorium which seats 1,000 people and large gymnasium and gave an idea of the farm life enjoyed by the boys and girls by saying that there are 156 head of cattle and 150 hogs on the property. The model town in Ohio comprises fifty-one buildings, he said.

The address of welcome was given by Mayor Irvine, who praised the good work the Junior Order is doing and said he was glad to see that there were so many red-blooded Americans still active in Allegany county.

Colin Bowers, of Mt. Savage, chairman of the Boosters' Association, presided, and introduced the speaker.

Band Plays Eleven Numbers

Warren R. Walworth directed the twenty-nine piece band which gave a concert. Junior Bowling, 15, of Tennessee, was cornet soloist of the band which played eleven numbers, namely, Maryland, My Maryland, Gaiety Polka, Night in June, Fraternity March, Best Loved Southern Melodies, Invergargill, Admiral Overture, God Bless America, Star Spangled Banner, Men of Ohio, National Emblem March and Evening Zephyr March.

Among the honor guests was James A. Young, clerk of the Maryland Court of Appeals, and past state councilor of the order.

Fred Sine, of Cumberland had charge of arrangements, and Sylvester Schilling, of Cumberland, made arrangements to have members of the band make an overnight stay at homes of members.

Among the up and coming Cumberland social organizations is the Dopey club, an outfit of boys and girls, most of whom are from ten to twelve years of age. The clubhouse is located in the rear of the Morehead grocery store on Green street.

Now this club is different. Dues are only five cents a month and as soon as they reach enough for ten bottles of pop for the ten members—oh well, you know what happens then.

Bill Morehead is the president of the outfit. The boys and girls had to confer that honor upon Bill for the simple reason that Bill built and owns the clubhouse, a one story affair about 12 by 12. And the tar-paper roof doesn't leak, well, anyhow, not much.

A girl named Shirley is the treasurer, is not under bond and can be depended upon to notify the members when there is enough cash on hand to put on a party.

Rules of the club are few. One provides that there shall be no kissing of the girls by the boys except that the boys may kiss their girl friends good night.

The clubhouse is lighted with a coal oil lamp and has no heat, although on the chillier nights a fire is built in a tin bucket. This is really not so good on account of the smoke, but the members get along and hope to get a stove before long.

Maryland will be represented at an important regional conference of leading Republican women to be held Tuesday and Wednesday in New York city by Mrs. Lula E. Powell, of Baltimore, national committeewoman of the party for the state; Mrs. Helen A. Stauffer, vice chairman of the state comittee, and Mrs. William H. Chase, state Republican Women's Club president.

The region will include women of the eastern territory. Pennsylvania will be represented by Mrs. Worthington Scranton, of Scranton, national committeewoman; Mrs. Joseph Y. Huber, vice chairman of the state committee, and Mrs. Humbert B. Powell, state club president. West Virginia will have Mrs. Cara L. Ebert, of Parkersburg, national committeewoman; Miss Madalyn Bazzle, state vice chairman, and Mrs. Ann Scott Wilson, state club president.

Organizational activities, discussing important factors in mobilizing the women's vote and other means of effecting successful campaigning to help support the Willkie-McNary ticket will be stressed at the conference.

The conference will be conducted by Miss Marion E. Martin, assistant chairman of the Republican National Committee and director of all women's activities. Miss Martin has been identified with the national committee since June of 1936, when she was elected national committeewoman by the state of Maine. She was appointed assistant chairman in October 1937.

Aiding Miss Martin in conducting the various sessions will be her assistants, Miss Sybil H. Holmes, and Mrs. Grace B. Reynolds, of Indiana, director of women's national committee vice chairman.

Miss Holmes is a former assistant attorney general of Massachusetts, and has the distinction of being the only woman ever elected to the Massachusetts state Senate.

Mrs. Reynolds, national committeewoman, is one of Indiana's leading Republican workers, and was twice elected state treasurer of Indiana. Mrs. FitzSimons began her political work in 1924, and has been a member of the national committee since 1930.

Other well-known political speakers who will feature in the conference will be Mrs. Ruth Baker Pratt, national committeewoman from New York, and Miss Jane Todd, vice chairman of the New York State Central Committee; Mrs. Worthington Scranton, of Scranton, Pa., and Mrs. Dolly Gann of Washington, D. C., president of League of Republican Women, Washington, D. C.

Samuel F. Pryor, of Connecticut, vice chairman of the Republican National Committee and campaign manager of the Eastern division; Clarence Budington Kelland, national committee member from Arizona, and Sinclair Weeks, of Massachusetts, chairman of the Executive committee of the Republican National Committee, will speak on the correlation of current organizational aspects at some of the sessions. Other leading speakers will include Mrs. FitzSimons, Miss Martin, and Miss Holmes.

Celanese Negotiations Move to Washington; Officials Optimistic

Two Cumberland Beekeepers Win Timonium Awards

John H. Lindner and Peter Klavuhn Capture $59 in Cash Premiums

Amateur beekeepers of Cumberland captured five premiums amounting to $59 at the annual Maryland State Fair which was held last week at Timonium.

The most successful exhibitor from Allegany county was John H. Lindner, of Bedford road, who took two out of a possible six blue ribbons offered as top prizes and in addition $38 in cash awards.

Lindner, winner of first prize for the best all-around display in the Beeculture Exhibit at the Cumberland Fair, won second place with his display of honey and beeswax at Timonium, which entitled him to a red ribbon and a cash prize of $25. He also won first prize and blue ribbons for showing the best twenty-four one-pound jars of light amber honey and the best beeswax in the show. The honey display carried a cash award of $8 while the beeswax netted the exhibitor $5 in cash.

Peter Klavuhn, of Yale street, took fourth prize of $15 in the competition for the best exhibit. He also finished second and won a $6 prize in the contest for the best twenty-four one-pound jars of light amber honey.

Lindner's exhibit at Timonium comprised four hundred pounds of honey.

Competition was unusually keen this year at the State Fair in view of the fact that many commercial beekeepers were in the running for premiums.

Lindner and Klavuhn plan to compete for premiums at fairs of Hagerstown and Frederick and also in the Sweepstakes, scheduled for January in the Lord Baltimore hotel, Baltimore.

Damage Suit Filed Just in Time

Telegrapher Barely Slips Under 3-Year Law of Limitations Deadline

A telegraph operator barely got under the wire Saturday in filing a $2,950 damage suit which is the out growth of an auto crash nearly three years ago.

The suit was docketed by James S. Stickley, of Garrett county, who contends the American Stores Company is responsible for injuries received by himself in the accident on the outskirts of Cumberland, Sept. 13, 1937.

In filling his suit, the telegraph operator just got under the wire by one week since the Maryland statute of limitations states that such petitions must be filed within three years following the accident.

Stickley, represented by Attorneys William A. Gunter and Walter W. Dawson, said he was riding with Harry V. Reeves on Sept. 13, 1937, when a delivery truck owned by the chain store firm and operated by Charles A. Daum collided with his machine on the Dingle hill.

Negligence by the truck driver is alleged by Stickley who claims he received neck, shoulder and spine injuries that prevented him from following his regular vocation and resulted in his spending large sums of money for medical care.

Cumberland Business Concerns Co-operate in Cooking School

Offer Many Fine Awards; School Will Open at 9:15 a. m., Tuesday

Cumberland business firms are co-operating and will give many useful awards at the annual Times-News cooking school which will open at 9:15 a. m., tomorrow in the Strand theater.

The school will be directed by Miss Emily Conklin, whose articles on food and cooking are published by leading newspapers and magazines. Miss Edalene Stohr will act as assistant.

Doors of the Strand theater will be opened at 8:45 a. m., and there will be an increased force of ushers and aides to assist in the school. Cook books and other housekeeping literature will be given to all who attend.

Girls from the Lee Winter studio, attired in colorful red, white and blue costumes, will be on hand to show the food at the end of each day's session.

Features to Watch For

The Old-Fashioned Baked Beans, cooked with salt pork in the true New England style.

Sausage Links and Fried Apples. Always a favorite blend of flavors.

Cowpunchers' Chili, based on a recipe from Texas. It is a super-special chili con carne and is served with rice.

Cape Cod Pot-Roast. Old New England favorite.

Butterscotch Banana Pie. When you want something very fine in the dessert line.

Orange Sherbet. It is good either as a dessert or as an accompaniment for the meat course.

Snappy Biscuit Rolls with Dried Beef. Here is a new and different way to serve that perennial favorite, died beef.

Spareribs Special. Everyone likes spareribs. Here's a tasty way to prepare them. Meat and vegetables are cooked together, with soup to enhance the flavor.

Stuffed Cushion of Lamb. Lamb shoulder with celery dressing. An economy roast and a very fine dish.

Carnival Cake. It is as festive looking as its name, and very delicious, too.

List of Grand Prizes

The following business concerns are co-operating in the school and will give the awards listed:

Conference Starts Today at 2 p. m.; Plant Reported 'About Back to Normal' by Manager Small

Representatives of the Celanese management and Local 1874, TWUA, were genuinely optimistic yesterday as they prepared to leave for Washington where the negotiations are to be resumed today at 2 p. m.

Fred T. Small, plant manager, said that in his judgment the prospects for making a mutually satisfactory agreement are "very good."

Small, who has been optimistic regarding a satisfactory agreement throughout the series of conferences, yesterday repeated his conviction that "actually, we've never been very far apart."

Herbert Payne, vice-president of TWUA, was also optimistic yesterday when asked for information. He said he thought that continuing the talks in the office of Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins would "have a helpful influence".

Change May Help

Commenting on the labor head's eleventh hour invitation to come to Washington, Payne said that "changing the locale of the conferences sometimes proves a help."

President James M. Dundon, in accordance with his policy of never venturing predictions on the outcome of negotiation talks, declined to comment. Dundon said he was going down, take part in the conference and hope for the best.

Dundon, Payne and the negotiating committee for Local 1874 will leave for Washington this morning. Small could not say definitely last night whether he would attend today's conference. However, the New York officials of the plant will be present, he said.

Meanwhile, operations at the plant are "about back to normal." Small said adding that President Dundon and Payne "had been helpful" in helping to restore the situation to normalcy.

Problems Ironed Out

Both Dundon and Payne were asked to assist in this matter Saturday morning, Small said. They did so. Both men have gone in with each shift since that time, have endeavored to keep what was termed the "more enthusiastic" employes in line.

Infractions were, of course, reported following the expiration of the contract Thursday night. Prior to the 11 p. m., shift change the word had been flashed through the big plant that they were coming out.

Then came Secretary Perkins's invitation and proposal and the entire picture quickly changed. As the employes came out at 11 p. m., some with their tools, they were met by President Dundon who acquainted them with the situation.

Asked why he had asked spinners and CA department workers to congregate at the administration building Thursday night, Dundon said it had been merely a precautionary measure to insure the fact that there would be enough workers to man those departments throughout the night.

In accordance with Mrs. Perkins's proposal, many employes went to work on the 11 p. m. Thursday night shift with the salary increases offered by the company. Union members, enthusiastic over this gain plus the possibility of a successful settlement in Washington, immediately turned their attention to non-union members.

Some Infractions

Of the infractions reported, one was the case of a woman employe, a self-styled "100 percenter," who has been working along side a non-union woman employe. The union woman claimed her fellow worker had joked about the fact she was going to get a salary increase without paying any dues. This annoyed the union woman and a row ensued. This was the sort of situation that Payne and Dundon endeavored to iron out.

During and following Thursday night, zealous unionists started buttonholing non-union workers and

Tax Research Group To Hear Organizer

Speaker from Taxpayers Foundation in New York City

Members of the Allegany County Taxpayers Research Association will hear an address by John L. Hougardy, of the Taxpayers Foundation, Inc., of New York, tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. at the Central Y.M.C.A.

Mr. Hougardy, an organizer of groups interested in studying local, county and state taxes, will speak on the topic, "Taxpayers Organizations," Frank E. Smith, general chairman, announced.

Of late, Hougardy has been working in Maryland cities and towns. Announcement of the meeting states:

"We are faced with tremendous increases in national taxation to take care of the defense program, of which we all approve. It is, therefore, important that we utilize our efforts intelligently and soundly to hold taxes in other fields to a reasonable ba[illegible]

J. William Ginevan, 35, Is Critically Injured On Virginia Highway

Suffers Loss of Right Eye When Car Turns Over; Three Others Hurt near Winchester

Four employes of a Cumberland plumbing concern, enroute to Washington, D. C., were injured yesterday at 10:30 a. m., when the car in which they were riding skidded on the slippery highway between Paris and Upperville, Va., about a mile from Winchester, and turned over, pinning the occupants beneath it.

Those hurt and the extent of their injuries are:

J. William Ginevan, 35, of 1,000 Lexington avenue, injured about the face and suffered loss of right eye.

Raymond E. Thompson, 48, of 214 Pulaski street, compound fracture of the right leg.

John C. Osbourne, 39, of 116 South Smallwood street, lacerations of the chin and injuries to both jaws.

The four men were taken to Memorial hospital, Winchester, where all were treated for their injuries. Hering and Osbourne returned to their homes yesterday afternoon while Thompson was dismissed from the hospital at 6:30 o'clock last evening.

Hospital attaches late last night reported that Ginevan's condition is regarded as critical and that everything in their power is being done to save his left eye.

Upon their arrival in Cumberland, Hering and Osbourne were taken to Allegany hospital for observation but later returned to their homes. They expect to return to the hospital today to have X-rays taken of their injured jaws and foot.

Osbourne was the driver of the machine when it skidded on the highway which had been made slippery from the heavy rain and turned over.

State Trooper Miller, of the Virginia State Police, investigated the accident.

The four injured men are employes of the H. and S. Heating and Plumbing company, 128 Polk street.

Nicholas Haz May Give Course Here

Camera Club Will Make Decision at Meeting Here Tonight

A discussion relative to securing Nicholas Haz, F. R. P. S., noted teacher, lecturer and photographer, to come to Cumberland at an early date to give his course entitled, "Picture Vizualization and Analysis," will feature the regular monthly meeting of the Cumberland Miniature Camera Club this evening at the Knights of Malta hall, Prospect Square, at 7:30 o'clock.

The course of twelve lessons over a period of two weeks is similar to the course which Nicholas Haz teaches at his school in New York city.

At this evening's sessions the club will hold its monthly point competition with cash prizes going to the winners. The traveling salon of the Mobile (Ala.) Camera club will be placed on display.

All persons desiring to join the Cumberland Miniature Camera Club are urged to attend this evening's meeting.

It was announced last evening that the local club's traveling print show is in Lima, Ohio, for two weeks, and will go from there to Mobile, Ala. The show visited Akron, O., and Kalamazoo, Mich., prior to going to Lima.

Four Persons Treated At Allegany Hospital For Arm Injuries

Four persons, including a widow, were treated Saturday at Allegany hospital after injuring their left arms in falls.

Mrs. Melissa M. Moore, 52, of 404 Central avenue, was injured Saturday noon when she fell in the bathroom at home.

Two boys, Robert Phillips, 11, of Hyndman, Pa., and Harley Brant, 13, of RFD 4, Williams road, were hurt Saturday night when they fell while playing.

Frank Wineland, 29, of Narrows Park, suffered an injured arm Saturday night in a fall from a truck.

All four were discharged from the hospital after being treated.

Legion To Pay Tribute to AEF Leader Thursday

Will Observe Pershing's Birthday with Concert and Ox Roast

Members of Fort Cumberland Post, American Legion, will celebrate General John J. Pershing's birthday Thursday night with a band concert in Constitution park at 8 o'clock followed by an ox roast at the clubrooms. The Legion band will play under the direction of Joseph Fradiska.

General Pershing's birthday comes this week Friday, but many posts throughout the country will observe it Thursday night. As the commander of the American Expeditionary Force in France the general was the outstanding soldier of the war and today he is the best known and respected of the many who served in France.

Robert C. Bowers, past commander, will be the toastmaster at the ox roast and Col. George Henderson will be the principal speaker. There will be a number of other speakers.

Mrs. Clark's Biography Appears in "Principal Women of America"

Mrs. J. B. Clark, (Irene Woodbridge Clark) mother of the Rev. David C. Clark, rector of Emmanuel Episcopal church, 29 North Prospect square, is one of the eminent women of the United States to have her detailed biography included in "Principal Women of America," Volume III, 1940, just published by the Mitre Press, London, England.

This important social directory is available at most public and institution libraries throughout the United States and Canada, as well as being at all libraries in Great Britain, Australia and South Africa.

That the importance of this directory is recognized officially is acknowledged by the fact that despite the paper shortage in England, the government of that country granted a special license for the supply of the sixty-five tons of paper requisite to the production of the third volume just published.

The H. W. Wilson Company, New York city, will handle the distribution of the directory in America.

Fails To Appear when Summoned, Cruthers Is Released under Bond

William Cruthers, 245 Virginia avenue, was arrested Saturday afternoon on a charge of failing to appear in police court when duly summoned. He was released under $5 bond, pending a hearing today.

Cruthers was summoned to appear in court Saturday morning to testify in a drunk-disorderly conduct case. The defendant, W. F. Pittman, 515 East First street, was fined $5 on the two charges, preferred by Officer R. M. Nuse.

Charles E. Brode, 307 Franklin street, an employe of the Times & Alleganian Company, last night entered Allegany hospital to undergo an operation this morning.

Bert E. Browne, Police Sergeant, Is Discharged

Dismissed on Charge of Conduct Unbecoming to an Officer

Dismissal of Sergt. Bert B. Browne as a member of the Cumberland Police department on a charge of conduct unbecoming to an officer was announced yesterday by John J. Treiber, acting chief of police.

Treiber, who is acting chief of the department in the absence of Chief Oscar A. Eyerman from the city, preferred charges against Browne after the latter had been caught in a Columbia street apartment with a married woman early Sunday morning, police said.

According to police, the husband of the married woman came home unexpectedly and when unable to open the door which was locked from the inside, he notified headquarters of his predicament, adding that the apartment was occupied because he could hear a man and woman talking.

Police went to the apartment and succeeded in having Browne open the door.

It was announced at police headquarters that Browne, 37, became a member of the department in 1932, and was promoted to the rank of sergeant in 1935. He has a wife and three children and lives at 420 Williams street.

Sergt. Browne yesterday was ordered to turn in his uniform and equipment.

The husband of the woman whom Browne was said to have been visiting told police that he has one child.

Police Commissioner Orr last night announced that James E. Kelley will take over the post of desk sergeant temporarily on the 8 a. m. to 4 p. m. turn, replacing Browne. Officer James Condon will be transferred to the Centre street beat in place of Officer H. P. Kennard who is being changed to Mechanic street. Changes are only temporary, Orr said.

Automobile Breaks Down; Two Young Couples Held Until Funds Arrive

An automobile breakdown near Cumberland last night resulted in two young Pennsylvania couples being held at police headquarters, pending the arrival of money for transportation back home or their parents today.

They gave their names as James F. Butler, 18, Richard E. Trank, 19, and Jane Stroup, 18, all of Coudersport, Pa., and Yvonne McCracken, 17, of Ulysses, Pa.

Police contacted the parents of the girls. The father of the McCracken girl said to hold his daughter until he arrived here, and the Stroup girl's parents said they would wire money today, police reported.

The young men's parents could not be located up till midnight.

Police would not say if the young couples, who walked into headquarters, came here for the purpose of getting married. They said they did not question them thoroughly.

The four will probably be released today.

Two Motorists Arrested Following Collision

Two drivers were arrested Saturday afternoon on Wineow street following a minor collision.

They were Robert Lee Liller, 130 Wineow street, and Joseph N. Price, 6 Arch street. Both were charged with careless driving and cited to appear Friday in police court for a hearing.

Officers James J. Condon and James E. Kelley investigated.

William Race, of Frostburg, was apprehended early Saturday night on Maryland avenue on a charge of failing to stop at a stop sign. He was released under $1 bond, pending a hearing today in police court.

Lieut. James E. Van and Officer Kelley made the arrest.

Defense Group Seeks Information On Industry and Labor Conditions

Request Referred to State Committee of Which Henry W. Price Is Member

Industry in Cumberland, as well as in other communities in the state, is affected by a request for information received by the Maryland Council of Defense and Resources from the Advisory Council of the National Defense Commission.

In addition to asking for general information concerning industrial and labor conditions, and idle production capacity, request is made for certain specific information, as follows:

1. A bibliography of published and private analyses of industrial and labor conditions;

2. Detailed data on idle or inactive plants not connected with any going concern;

3. A list of branch or subsidiary plants of mining or manufacturing companies.

W. Frank Roberts, chairman of the state council, immediately referred the request to the committee on Industrial Resources and Production, of which Robert O. Bonnell is chairman, and Henry W. Price, of this city; Stewart J. Cort and Glenn L. Martin as members.

"As this inquiry may mean much to Maryland industry," Bonnell stated, "we shall immediately proceed to assemble the information desired and I have every hope that we can complete the work in a minimum of time. Most of the information desired is recorded with Public or Quasi-Public agencies such as the State Planning Board, Association of of Commerce and the like, so that we shall not find necessary to institute new surveys at the present time, and hence can avoid the delays that always accompany such detailed studies. Later, if new surveys are needed we shall institute them promptly."

Roberts expressed satisfaction at the receipt of the communication. "Quite evidently," he said, "the division of State and Local Co-operation is now well past the organization phase and has passed into the action stage. We have been ready here for several weeks and have contributed something toward allen registration and other matters but up to today had received no request that made it necessary to call any specific committee into action.

"Now that this great work of coordination has been given an impetus, we shall look forward to new opportunities for service."

Patriotic Talks Mark Junior Order Rally

National Councilor Speaks at Park; 1,000 Persons Hear Concert by Band from Orphans' Home

Talks by Ralph Morris, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., national councilor of the organization, E. Willis Lamoreau, a member of the board of directors of the Orphans' Home, Tiffin, Ohio, and Mayor Harry Irvine and a concert by the Junior Order Orphans Home Band featured the patriotic rally and picnic of the county councils of the Junior Order United American Mechanics yesterday in Constitution park.

The rally, sponsored by the Boosters Association of Allegany county, attracted 1,000 persons to the city park despite rain in the morning and threatening weather early in the afternoon.

National Officer Talks

National Councilor Morris, in his talk, said that Constitution park was an appropriate place for such a patriotic gathering and declared that what this country needs today is more good propaganda and less bad propaganda. In dwelling on the subject of dissatisfied groups, particularly the Communists, he said that if those people believe Russia is a better place in which to live his advice was for them to go back to Russia.

Morris said America's biggest job is fighting the foe from within and not without, referring particularly to those who would substitute some other "ism" for Americanism.

He stressed the fact that for eighty-seven years the Junior Order has stood by Old Glory and everything that the American flag stands for. Pointing out the Boys Band as an example of the good work that the order is doing, Morris added that 3,000 others are receiving a chance to make life worthwhile at the Ohio Institution.

Morris urged parents not to let their children affiliate with any youth congress or any other organization of the kind, declaring that there is no reason for any other "ism" in America but Americanism.

In conclusion Morris said that "after all the best weapon of the American people is the ballot." He urged the people to vote for a man who has the courage of his convictions.

Lamoreau Tells of Home

E. Willis Lamoreau, member of the board of directors of the Orphans' Home, Tiffin, Ohio, told of the model village in Ohio where orphans of deceased Junior Order members are given a chance to make good in the world.

Lamoreau told of the playground, two schools, hospitals, nursery and $200,000 stone church which was built in the village from funds supplied by Junior Order councils in the Buckeye state. He told of the auditorium which seats 1,000 people and large gymnasium and gave an idea of the farm life enjoyed by the boys and girls by saying that there are 156 head of cattle and 150 hogs on the property. The model town in Ohio comprises fifty-one buildings, he said.

The address of welcome was given by Mayor Irvine, who praised the good work the Junior Order is doing and said he was glad to see that there were so many red-blooded Americans still active in Allegany county.

Colin Bowers, of Mt. Savage, chairman of the Boosters' Association, presided, and introduced the speaker.

Band Plays Eleven Numbers

Warren R. Walworth directed the twenty-nine piece band which gave a concert. Junior Bowling, 15, of Tennessee, was cornet soloist of the band which played eleven numbers, namely, Maryland, My Maryland, Gaiety Polka, Night in June, Fraternity March, Best Loved Southern Melodies, Invergargill, Admiral Overture, God Bless America, Star Spangled Banner, Men of Ohio, National Emblem March and Evening Zephyr March.

Among the honor guests was James A. Young, clerk of the Maryland Court of Appeals, and past state councilor of the order.

Fred Sine, of Cumberland had charge of arrangements, and Sylvester Schilling, of Cumberland, made arrangements to have members of the band make an overnight stay at homes of members.

Among the up and coming Cumberland social organizations is the Dopey club, an outfit of boys and girls, most of whom are from ten to twelve years of age. The clubhouse is located in the rear of the Morehead grocery store on Green street.

Now this club is different. Dues are only five cents a month and as soon as they reach enough for ten bottles of pop for the ten members—oh well, you know what happens then.

Bill Morehead is the president of the outfit. The boys and girls had to confer that honor upon Bill for the simple reason that Bill built and owns the clubhouse, a one story affair about 12 by 12. And the tar-paper roof doesn't leak, well, anyhow, not much.

A girl named Shirley is the treasurer, is not under bond and can be depended upon to notify the members when there is enough cash on hand to put on a party.

Rules of the club are few. One provides that there shall be no kissing of the girls by the boys except that the boys may kiss their girl friends good night.

The clubhouse is lighted with a coal oil lamp and has no heat, although on the chillier nights a fire is built in a tin bucket. This is really not so good on account of the smoke, but the members get along and hope to get a stove before long.

Maryland will be represented at an important regional conference of leading Republican women to be held Tuesday and Wednesday in New York city by Mrs. Lula E. Powell, of Baltimore, national committeewoman of the party for the state; Mrs. Helen A. Stauffer, vice chairman of the state comittee, and Mrs. William H. Chase, state Republican Women's Club president.

The region will include women of the eastern territory. Pennsylvania will be represented by Mrs. Worthington Scranton, of Scranton, national committeewoman; Mrs. Joseph Y. Huber, vice chairman of the state committee, and Mrs. Humbert B. Powell, state club president. West Virginia will have Mrs. Cara L. Ebert, of Parkersburg, national committeewoman; Miss Madalyn Bazzle, state vice chairman, and Mrs. Ann Scott Wilson, state club president.

Organizational activities, discussing important factors in mobilizing the women's vote and other means of effecting successful campaigning to help support the Willkie-McNary ticket will be stressed at the conference.

The conference will be conducted by Miss Marion E. Martin, assistant chairman of the Republican National Committee and director of all women's activities. Miss Martin has been identified with the national committee since June of 1936, when she was elected national committeewoman by the state of Maine. She was appointed assistant chairman in October 1937.

Aiding Miss Martin in conducting the various sessions will be her assistants, Miss Sybil H. Holmes, and Mrs. Grace B. Reynolds, of Indiana, director of women's national committee vice chairman.

Miss Holmes is a former assistant attorney general of Massachusetts, and has the distinction of being the only woman ever elected to the Massachusetts state Senate.

Mrs. Reynolds, national committeewoman, is one of Indiana's leading Republican workers, and was twice elected state treasurer of Indiana. Mrs. FitzSimons began her political work in 1924, and has been a member of the national committee since 1930.

Other well-known political speakers who will feature in the conference will be Mrs. Ruth Baker Pratt, national committeewoman from New York, and Miss Jane Todd, vice chairman of the New York State Central Committee; Mrs. Worthington Scranton, of Scranton, Pa., and Mrs. Dolly Gann of Washington, D. C., president of League of Republican Women, Washington, D. C.

Samuel F. Pryor, of Connecticut, vice chairman of the Republican National Committee and campaign manager of the Eastern division; Clarence Budington Kelland, national committee member from Arizona, and Sinclair Weeks, of Massachusetts, chairman of the Executive committee of the Republican National Committee, will speak on the correlation of current organizational aspects at some of the sessions. Other leading speakers will include Mrs. FitzSimons, Miss Martin, and Miss Holmes.

Celanese Negotiations Move to Washington; Officials Optimistic

Two Cumberland Beekeepers Win Timonium Awards

John H. Lindner and Peter Klavuhn Capture $59 in Cash Premiums

Amateur beekeepers of Cumberland captured five premiums amounting to $59 at the annual Maryland State Fair which was held last week at Timonium.

The most successful exhibitor from Allegany county was John H. Lindner, of Bedford road, who took two out of a possible six blue ribbons offered as top prizes and in addition $38 in cash awards.

Lindner, winner of first prize for the best all-around display in the Beeculture Exhibit at the Cumberland Fair, won second place with his display of honey and beeswax at Timonium, which entitled him to a red ribbon and a cash prize of $25. He also won first prize and blue ribbons for showing the best twenty-four one-pound jars of light amber honey and the best beeswax in the show. The honey display carried a cash award of $8 while the beeswax netted the exhibitor $5 in cash.

Peter Klavuhn, of Yale street, took fourth prize of $15 in the competition for the best exhibit. He also finished second and won a $6 prize in the contest for the best twenty-four one-pound jars of light amber honey.

Lindner's exhibit at Timonium comprised four hundred pounds of honey.

Competition was unusually keen this year at the State Fair in view of the fact that many commercial beekeepers were in the running for premiums.

Lindner and Klavuhn plan to compete for premiums at fairs of Hagerstown and Frederick and also in the Sweepstakes, scheduled for January in the Lord Baltimore hotel, Baltimore.

Damage Suit Filed Just in Time

Telegrapher Barely Slips Under 3-Year Law of Limitations Deadline

A telegraph operator barely got under the wire Saturday in filing a $2,950 damage suit which is the outgrowth of an auto crash nearly three years ago.

The suit was docketed by James S. Stickley, of Garrett county, who contends the American Stores Company is responsible for injuries received by himself in the accident on the outskirts of Cumberland, Sept. 13, 1937.

In filing his suit, the telegraph operator just got under the wire by one week since the Maryland statute of limitations states that such petitions must be filed within three years following the accident.

Stickley, represented by Attorneys William A. Gunter and Walter W. Dawson, said he was riding with Harry V. Reeves on Sept. 13, 1937, when a delivery truck owned by the chain store firm and operated by Charles A. Daum collided with his machine on the Dingle hill.

Negligence by the truck driver is alleged by Stickley who claims he received neck, shoulder and spine injuries that prevented him from following his regular vocation and resulted in his spending large sums of money for medical care.

Cumberland Business Concerns Co-operate in Cooking School

Offer Many Fine Awards; School Will Open at 9:15 a. m., Tuesday

Cumberland business firms are co-operating and will give many useful awards at the annual Times-News cooking school which will open at 9:15 a. m., tomorrow in the Strand theater.

The school will be directed by Miss Emily Conklin, whose articles on food and cooking are published by leading newspapers and magazines. Miss Edalene Stohr will act as assistant.

Doors of the Strand theater will be opened at 8:45 a. m., and there will be an increased force of ushers and aides to assist in the school. Cook books and other housekeeping literature will be given to all who attend.

Girls from the Lee Winter studio, attired in colorful red, white and blue costumes, will be on hand to show the food at the end of each day's session.

Features to Watch For

The Old-Fashioned Baked Beans, cooked with salt pork in the true New England style.

Veal Heart Halves on Noodles, a novelty you'll want to try as soon as you get home. The gravy is the last word of goodness.

Sausage Links and Fried Apples. Always a favorite blend of flavors.

Cowpunchers' Chili, based on a recipe from Texas. It is a super-special chili con carne and is served with rice.

Cape Cod Pot-Roast. Old New England favorite.

Butterscotch Banana Pie. When you want something very fine in the dessert line.

Orange Sherbet. It is good either as a dessert or as an accompaniment for the meat course.

Snappy Biscuit Rolls with Dried Beef. Here is a new and different way to serve that perennial favorite, died beef.

Spareribs Special. Everyone likes spareribs. Here's a tasty way to prepare them. Meat and vegetables are cooked together, with soup to enhance the flavor.

Stuffed Cushion of Lamb. Lamb shoulder with celery dressing. An economy roast and a very fine dish.

Conference Starts Today at 2 p. m.; Plant Reported 'About Back to Normal' by Manager Small

Representatives of the Celanese management and Local 1874, TWUA, were genuinely optimistic yesterday as they prepared to leave for Washington where the negotiations are to be resumed today at 2 p. m.

Fred T. Small, plant manager, said that in his judgment the prospects for making a mutually satisfactory agreement are "very good."

Small, who has been optimistic regarding a satisfactory agreement throughout the series of conferences, yesterday repeated his conviction that "actually, we've never been very far apart."

Herbert Payne, vice-president of TWUA, was also optimistic yesterday when asked for information. He said he thought that continuing the talks in the office of Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins would "have a helpful influence".

Change May Help

Commenting on the labor head's eleventh hour invitation to come to Washington, Payne said that "changing the locale of the conferences sometimes proves a help."

President James M. Dundon, in accordance with his policy of never venturing predictions on the outcome of negotiation talks, declined to comment. Dundon said he was going down, take part in the conference and hope for the best.

Dundon, Payne and the negotiating committee for Local 1874 will leave for Washington this morning. Small could not say definitely last night whether he would attend today's conference. However, the New York officials of the plant will be present, he said.

Meanwhile, operations at the plant are "about back to normal," Small said adding that President Dundon and Payne "had been helpful" in helping to restore the situation to normalcy.

The union woman claimed her fellow worker had joked about the fact she was going to get a salary increase without paying any dues. This annoyed the union woman and a row ensued. This was the sort of situation that Payne and Dundon endeavored to iron out.

During and following Thursday night, zealous unionists started buttonholing non-union workers and

Speaker from Taxpayers Foundation in New York City

Members of the Allegany County Taxpayers Research Association will hear an address by John L. Hougardy, of the Taxpayers Foundation, Inc., of New York, tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. at the Central Y.M.C.A.

Mr. Hougardy, an organizer of groups interested in studying local, county and state taxes, will speak on the topic, "Taxpayers Organizations," Frank E. Smith, general chairman, announced.

Of late, Hougardy has been working in Maryland cities and towns. Announcement of the meeting states:

"We are faced with tremendous increases in national taxation to take care of the defense program, of which we all approve. It is, therefore, important that we utilize our efforts intelligently and soundly to hold taxes in other fields to a reasonable bas
